JURY CONSIDERS VERDICT IN STOLL KIDNAPING CASE

Returns to Courtroom to Ask for Copy of Note and for Special Delivery Letter.

JUDGE INSTRUCTS ON TWO COUNTS

Fugitive's Wife and His Father May Be Convicted of Conspiracy or of Aiding Crime, or Both.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—The Stoll kidnaping case was submitted at 3:48 p. m., today, to the jury of 12 middle aged business men and farmers after Judge Elwood Hamilton finished reading his instructions.

The jury returned to the courtroom at 9:18 o'clock tonight to ask for a copy of the kidnaping note and for the special delivery letter received by Thomas H. Robinson Sr., from his son, following the abduction.

After receiving the exhibits, the jury retired again to resume its deliberations. Later the foreman reported that no agreement had been reached. Judge Hamilton then ordered the jury to take a recess until 9 a. m. tomorrow.

The special delivery letter which was received by Robinson Sr., who was jointly tried with his daughter-in-law, Frances A. Robinson, for the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, included a note written by Mrs. Stoll to "Dear Mr. Intermediary," urging him to hurry and get the ransom paid. It also included her wedding ring.

The special delivery was received by Robinson Sr., from the fugitive, Thomas A. Robinson Jr., on the Sunday following the kidnaping Wednesday, Oct. 10, 1934.

Judge Hamilton instructed the jury that it could recommend the death penalty if it found them guilty of the charge. If such a recommendation were made, he said, the court would be required to impose the death penalty.

Need Not Fix Penalty.

"If you make no such recommendation as to punishment," said Judge Hamilton, "only finding guilty or not guilty, the court will impose a sentence for such a term of years in the penitentiary as in its discretion it deems proper."

"I feel it my duty to instruct you that in considering this case, you will take into consideration the relationship of the parties, their acquaintanceship and kinship, and if these relations are of any aid to you in arriving at the facts in this case, you should give them close scrutiny. The father and wife of the defendant, Thomas H. Robinson Jr., were not compelled to disclose his whereabouts or that he intended to commit a crime or was committing a crime. However, neither the relationship of father and son or husband and wife permit any one of them to join with the other in committing a crime or aiding and abetting in it..."

Judge Hamilton said the deefndants could be convicted or acquitted on either or both of the two counts in the indictment. The first count charges them with conspiracy to kidnap and the second with aiding and abetting.

Chief Government Points.

The points on which the Government asked the jury to convict both defendants, were as follows:

Against Robinson, Sr.:

He saw his son in September last year and gave him the money used to rent the kidnap car and the Indianapolis apartment where Mrs. Stoll was held;

Parts of Robinson Sr.'s letters of Sept. 28 and Oct. 3 apparently were written in code;

Robinson Sr. was named the intermediary in the ransom note;

Mrs. Robinson Jr. told Mrs. Stoll "My father will see that it (the ransom) is brought to me."

Case Against Woman.

Against Mrs. Robinson:

She rented the kidnap car with her husband, furnishing him the $5 deposit;

She rented, also with her husband, the kidnap apartment at which the ransom note was written;

She came to Louisville with her husband, where he told her he expected a package to be sent to him at Nashville;

The letter written to Robinson Sr. on Oct. 14, 1934, said "Instructions have been given your daughter-in-law;"

She had a telephone conversation with her husband the night of Saturday, Oct. 14;

She took the $50,000 ransom to him as he expected;

She used part of the ransom

WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, BAHIA HONDA, Panama, Oct. 12.—The cruiser Houston dropped anchor in this protected bay early this afternoon in time for the President to get up a fishing expedition.

On its way from Cocos Island, the presidential party encountered rains and heavy seas, but found calm waters here.

HOOVER IS CHEERED AT GAME

Smiles and Bows at Pennsylvania-Yale Contest.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Thousands cheered former President Herbert Hoover at Franklin Field today where he saw Yale defeat the University of Pennsylvania at football.

He was applauded as he reached the stands and then was greeted by Thomas S. Gates, president of Pennsylvania. A second cheer went up as he left his box after the game. Hoover raised his hat, smiled and bowed in acknowledgment.

He went to the home of John Beaver White to spend the night. Tomorrow he will start for Palo Alto, Cal. White, an electrical and mechanical engineer, has been a friend of Hoover for 30 years. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University and former Secretary of the Interior, and Hoover's son, Allan, were among those in the party.

MAN WOUNDS MOTHER, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Mrs. Mackeldon, 72, Shot Four Times by Son, Is in Jerseyville (Ill.) Hospital.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JERSEYVILLE, Ill., Oct. 12.—Mrs. Malinda Mackeldon, 79 years old, was taken to a hospital here tonight with four gunshot wounds she told officers were inflicted by her son, John Mackeldon, 50, whose body was found in a corn field not far from the Mackeldon home, four miles west of Jerseyville. Apparently he had killed himself with an automatic rifle, which lay by his side.

The woman was found by a neighbor in a thicket beside a road leading to the Mackeldon home. She said she had fallen there after she had been pursued and shot by her son. She was wounded in the head, left hand, right shoulder and right hip, and had been in the thicket for four hours, fearing to call for help.

At the hospital she said she had gone into the farmyard to feed hogs.

"My son was standing at the corner of the house with a rifle," she said. "He said he was going to end it all for both of us. Then he fired. I ran and he ran after me, continuing to fire. I reached the road and fell in the weeds. I feared to call for help because I thought he might come and shoot me again."

She said her son had been in failing health. His wife died a week ago. Mackeldon formerly was employed by a St. Louis wholesale drug company.

DOZEN MONTANA TOWNS DAMAGED BY EARTHQUAKE

No Loss of Life but Chimneys Topple and Residents Run Into Streets at Midnight.

By the Associated Press.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 12. — An earthquake in Western Montana today apparently centered here. The Weather Bureau reported 28 shocks.

Damage amounting to thousands of dollars appeared to be confined principally to broken glass, fallen plaster and chimneys. There was no loss of life.

Residents of a dozen Montana towns on both sides of the Continental Divide were awakened by the earthquake shortly after midnight. They ran into the streets.

The Statehouse here was not damaged, but Intermountain College, only a few hundred yards away, estimated its loss at $1000 from broken glass and fallen plaster. At drug stores bottle goods were shaken from shelves.

At the Fort Harrison Veterans' Hospital west of the city, there were cracks in nearly every building.

TWO COMPANIONS ARE ALSO CAUGHT

Third Gets Away — Machine Runs Down Prisoner, Hits Another Car on Highway.

By the Associated Press.

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 12. — Crouched in the driver's seat and flanked by three prisoner companions, Basil Banghart, "The Owl," one of the John "Jake the Barber" Factor kidnapers, sent a speeding commissary truck crashing through the gates of Southern Illinois penitentiary today in a short-lived escape that ended in his wounding and recapture.

When Banghart rushed from the prison tailor shop, commandeered the truck and sent it racing through the prison yards he embarked on the third and least successful of his flights from custody. In 1927 he and the notorious Gerald Chapman escaped from a Federal prison at Atlanta, Ga. Recaptured at South Bend, Ind., he shot his way out of the city jail before he could be extradited.

One of the three prisoners who escaped with Banghart remained at large tonight and officers said he, Cletus Stone, serving an armed robbery sentence, was surrounded in a thicket about 10 miles south of the prison.

How They Seized Truck.

Banghart and his three companions, Stone, Estell Franklin and Earl D. Spencer, ran from the tailor shop this morning as Edward Bartley drove by in the truck. Banghart leaped to the driver's seat when his companions knocked Andy Carico, a guard, unconscious and forced Bartley into the van of the vehicle.

Banghart, a former Touhy gangster of Chicago, sent the truck speeding in a wide circle around the prison yards, running over an unidentified prisoner in the flight. Racing down the front of the yard the convicts crashed the truck head-on into the heavy prison gates, ripping one from its hinges, and went south on a highway. An automobile load of guards pursued.

After sideswiping an automobile and injuring Julius Lamb, St. Louis, one of its two occupants, the truck turned off the main highway and soon was overtaken by the guards, who rescued Bartley and captured Spencer and Franklin who were armed with scissors.

Banghart and Stone jumped from the cab of the truck and fled to a nearby woods, where Banghart was shot and captured a few minutes later. He was returned to the prison, given treatment for a slight wound in the left arm and ordered into solitary confinement by Warden Joe Montgomery.

The shooting of Banghart caused Stone to flee from the nearby home of Vernon Jones, where he attempted to hide. Two women and three children were in the hosue when Stone entered. While he was demanding that he be hidden, the guards opened fire on Banghart. Stone, hearing the reports, turned and fled from the house.

Was to Have Been Transferred.

A. L. Bowen, director of public welfare announced at Springfield tonight that Banghart would have been transferred to the Stateville prison near Joliet tomorrow.

Mrs. Banghart had been visiting her husband frequently of late," said Bowen. "Last Wednesday, she was seen on a hill overlooking the yard of the prison. Circumstances were sufficiently suspicious to cause Warden Joe Ragan to arrange for the transfer of Banghart."

Banghart was convicted in Chicago, March 13, 1934, of participation in the kidnaping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor. He was sentenced to serve 99 years in Stateville prison, near Joliet. He was transferred to Chester prison two months later in order to separate him from his gang associates, Roger Touhy, Albert Kator and Gustav Schaefer.

Driver of Truck Tells How Convicts Rushed Him.

Edward Bartley, original driver of the truck which was seized by the convicts, is a former turnkey at the Security Hospital, near the prison. He is employed by a Chester mercantile firm.

"I drove my three-ton truck up

ITALY TO ANNEX ADUWA IN FORMAL CEREMONY TODAY

Surrender of Two Ethiopian Chiefs, One With 15,000 Men, Clears Road to Makale, Invaders Say.

TWO MORE TOWNS REPORTED TAKEN

Sakota, a Third of the Way to Addis Ababa, and Hauzien, Said to Have Been Captured.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY IN NORTHERN ETHIOPIA, Oct. 12 (Exchange Telegraph).—Advancing Italian troops occupied further towns today and it was reported that Sakota and Hauzien, the former a third of the way to Addis Ababa, are already in the hands of Italian patrols.

On the left wing, the Italian thrust to the south is meeting with little opposition. Officers said the advancing columns were making "satisfactory progress."

Fernand Bietry, a Swiss engineer who was with the Tigre Ethiopian Chieftain, Degiac Haile Selassie Gugsa, when the latter surrendered to Italy, said 250 soldiers of the Ethiopian Imperial Guard and other officers of the Ethiopian army refused to join Gugsa's movement and left for Makale.

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMIES, ADUWA, Ethiopia, 11:30 a. m., Saturday, Oct. 12.—Gen. Emilio de Bono, commander of the Italian armies in this sector, will formally annex Aduwa, capital of Tigre Province, tomorrow in the name of Italy.

The town appeared entirely submissive to Italian control today. Italian officers predicted Italy would soon rule the whole province, following the surrender of Degiac Haile Selassie Gugsa and Degiac Kassa Aria, Ethiopian chieftains, Degiac Gugsa said he and his 15,000 riflemen would join the Italian forces, while 15,000 more men at Makale also would go over to the Italian side.

Italians assert the surrender of the two Ethiopian leaders indicates the collapse of Ethiopian resistance and clears the path to Makale.

Ethiopian Explains Defection.

Replying to a question in an interview today, Degiac Gugsa said he came over to the Italian side "because I have always been friendly to Italy.

"I wanted development and modernization of my province of Makale," he said.

Italian officers hope his influence will induce more Ethiopian leaders to side with Italy. Degiac Gugsa is a relative of Haile Selassie and has long been an enemy of Ras Seyoum, Governor of Aduwa and Tigre Province.

Italy's sudden advance across the Ethiopian frontier has already taught the Italian Colonial General Staff many lessons. One is that great reliance can be placed on the native (Eritrean) troops. The central column under Gen. Biroli is composed solely of Eritrean Askaris (native soldiers), supported only by four battalions of blackshirts commanded by Gen. Diamanti. These askaris are really of the Ethiopian race. Eritreans who live near the border hate the Ethiopians even though they are of the same racial strain. They believe the Ethiopians are too proud—"they push us off the sidewalk," Eritreans say.

The two native divisions in the central column total about 30,000 men. Thousands of other askaris, however, have been sent from Eritrea to Somaliland, where the climate is much more difficult for white troops than for Eritreans to bear.

Munitions Rushed From French Somaliland Into Ethiopia.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 12 (Exchange Telegraph).—Six hundred tons of ammunition were reported tonight to be already en route to Addis Ababa from Djibouti, French Somaliland, following the lifting of the arms embargo against Ethiopia by the League of Nations.

Streets of the capital were almost impassable today. Thousands of warriors arrived from the surrounding country to receive arms and ammunition. They are anxious to hurry to the front.

Dramatic Surrender Of Ethiopian Chiefs at Italian Headquarters

Emperor's Son-in-Law Declares He Considers Invaders Not Conquerors But Liberators, Dispatch From Front Says.

(Copyright, 1935.)

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY AT ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 12.—Desertion of two Ethiopian tribal Princes and their followers to the Italian force was hailed here today by military leaders as evidence that the tribal chiefs at odds with Emperor Haile Selassie will consent peacefully to ruling their African hilltops with Italy as their controlling protector.

The defection of Ras Haile Selassie Gugsa, son-in-law of Haile Selassie and important Tigre Province chief, and Degiac Kassa Aria, one of Ras Gugsa's sub-commanders, with a total of 13,000 armed warriors, marked the first willingness of tribal chiefs to place themselves under Italian rule.

The deserters declared they were willing to fight Haile Selassie for Mussolini. Other chiefs not too well inclined toward the Emperor are expected to follow their example. Ras Gugsa of Makale placed his entire princely domain—10,000 square miles of Ethiopian territory—under Italian army protection, headquarters announced.

The dramatic story of Ras Haile Selassie Gugsa's desertion was told at Asmara headquarters today for the first time. The tall, thin, wiry, 30-year-old fuzzy-haired Ethiopian Prince, with the Ethiopian equivalent of a European khaki military uniform, arrived at Italian military headquarters at Adi Abuna late yesterday in an Italian military car in which he had been taken from his intrenchments.

He was saluted by staff officers and Gen. Emilio de Bono, and stiffly returned the salute. He was accompanied by Degiac Kassa Aria and two Lieutenants, declaring they were willing to organize their forces and lead the Italian troops south into Ethiopia to battle.

A company of askari (Eritrean native) Carabinieri were on duty at headquarters. Gen. de Bono, supreme commander of the Italian invasion of Ethiopia from the North, appeared from headquarters and Gugsa walked toward him calmly.

As Gugsa came within a yard of Gen. de Bono, he stood at attention, brought his right hand to his colonial kepi with his palm outward in a perfect French salute. De Bono returned the salute.

Then Ras Gugsa, direct descendant of King John IV of Ethiopia, and claiming descent from Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, said to Gen. De Bono: "With my armies, I surrender and lay before you my domain in Tigre Province and my citadel at Makale. It is not a surrender founded on lack of military possibilities, but because of my desire to serve under the ancient glorious flag of Italian civilization. I consider the Italians not as conquerors but as liberators of my country. My hope is that I shall be allowed to live for Italy and to bring to his majesty King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Mussolini the homage of my people."

Gen. de Bono accepted the surrender in glowing terms, praised the Emperor's son-in-law for his decision, and invited Gugsa to become his official guest.

It was semiofficially reported at Rome that Mussolini would proclaim Gugsa ruler of Ethiopia. By proclaiming Ras Gugsa the rightful sovereign of Ethiopia, Mussolini, it was pointed out, would at one blow establish Italian dominion in Ethiopia and encourage the desertion of Haile Selassie' domestic enemies to the side of Gugsa.

SUSPECT'S SISTER KILLED, OFFICER SHOT ON STREET

Fight Follows When State Troopers Meet Man Sought at Shamokin, Pa.

By the Associated Press.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Oct. 12. — A woman was shot to death and a State Police Corporal was seriously wounded tonight in a pistol fight on a Shamokin street between State Troopers and a man sought in connection with a robbery.

The suspect, Dave C. Shaffer, 28 years old, fled in his automobile. His sister, Betty Shaffer, was killed, and Corporal William Sterling Bloom, in charge of the sub-station here, was gravely wounded.

Corporal Bloom was shot three times—through the hand and arm and in the back.

Trooper Schminkey at the Shamokin sub-station said Bloom and another trooper named Lukens, started for the Shaffer home when one of the fugitives' sisters telephoned the barracks that he had arrived with an auto believed to have been stolen.

As the two troopers approached the house, someone was heard to shout: "Here comes the police."

Shaffer, who was standing in front of the house, whipped out his pistol and fired. Trooper Schminkey said his sister Betty apparently was in the line of fire.

ITALIAN ADMIRAL RETURNS MEDAL GIVEN BY BRITAIN

Sending Back Award for Aid Against "Mad Mullah" Says England Has No Gratitude.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 12.—An Italian Admiral notified Premier Mussolini today he was returning to the British Government a medal conferred upon him for assistance given the British during a 1902-04 campaign against the "Mad Mullah" in British Somaliland.

"In a period when the Mullah might have been a good political weapon in our hands," wrote Admiral Guiliano Pini, "Italy showed herself to be so loyal and sincere a friend of Britain as to lend ships and men to help defend British Somaliland. Today the British Government is so forgetful that I deem it my duty to return the medal awarded me by the British Governvent on that occasion, regretting that Italian sailors, under my orders, risked their lives for the sake of a country devoid of a sense of gratitude."

The "Mad Mullah" was Mohammed Ibn Abdullah, a Somali Dervish, who led campaigns against British rule.

PLANE AT GUAM AFTER 6500-MILE FLIGHT

Pan American Airways Clipper Arrives From Alameda, Cal.

By the Associated Press.

GUAM (Via Pan American Airways Radio), Oct. 13.—(Sunday)—Completing a 6500 mile experimental flight from Alameda, Cal., the Pan American Airways Clipper plane landed here at 5:40 p. m. today (11:10 p. m. St. Louis time).

The Clipper left Wake Island at 6:29 a. m. Saturday for the 1500-mile journey to Guam. Airways officers said the plane's performance indicated that passenger flights from Alameda to Guam could be made in about 60 hours.

The Clipper after leaving Alameda flew to Honolulu, then to Midway Island, next to Wake Island and finally to Guam.

Inauguration of the world's first trans-ocean mail service over the course being pioneered by the Clipper awaits only the approval of the Postoffice Department.

FINANCIAL SANCTIONS NEXT MOVE BY LEAGUE

Committee Recommendation for Withholding All Loans and Credits From Italy Expected to Follow Arms Embargo.

BUY NOTHING PLAN FAVORED BY EDEN

Briton Agrees Boycott Would Have Smashing Effect but French Favor Slower, Cautious Program.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 12.—A financial subcommittee of the League of Nation's general staff for sanctions recommended today that the League strike at Italy's pocketbook by the withholding of all loan and bank credits to the Fascist government, and such action is expected to be decided upon without undue delay. The League, with 50 nations on record for sanctions, already has placed an arms embargo upon Italy and lifted it from Ethiopia.

The Sanctions Committee of 17 adjourned until Monday without having reached a final decision upon the economic boycott which League leaders favor imposing upon Italy because of her invasion of Ethiopia. The general tenor of discussion was that the problem was exceedingly complicated and required further examination.

Anthony Eden of Great Britain advanced the chief proposal—for an embargo on purchases from Italy, along with an embargo on sale to Italy of products which might be used for the manufacture of armaments.

Resolution on Sanctions.

A resolution adopted by the financial sub-committee would forbid the following by members favoring sanctions:

1. The opening of credit to Italy in any foreign country.
2. Authorization of a public issue by Italy in any foreign country.
3. Authorization of a public issue by an individual or legal entity national of Italy or of either acting as an intermediary in one of the League's states.
4. Opening of bank credits in favor of Italy in any League country.
5. Opening of bank credit without any commercial character in favor of any individual or legal entity national of Italy or of either of them acting as Italy's intermediary in one of the League's states.
6. Opening of credits similar to those referred to in paragraph five but having the appearance of commercial credit.
7. Opening of normal commercial credits, details of which will be worked out by the Committee.

Referring to the last interdiction, No. 7, the report said: "This prohibition would tend to bring about an almost complete stoppage of trade in the country concerned."

The drafting committee of the financial sanctions subcommittee will meet tomorrow afternoon to complete the draft of the resolutions on financial sanctions.

"Butterfly" or "Bulldog."

An official said a discussion of the complicated and dangerous issues involved in sanctions disclosed that they would fall naturally into these categories:

"1. 'Buttefly' sanctions, nice on paper but hardly likely to pierce Italy's economic skin.

"2. 'Boomerang' sanctions, likely to hit back hard at those who apply them.

Eden bitterly opposed any idea of remaining content with "butterfly" sanctions. He advocated the immediate prohibition by League states of all imports from Italy.

Eden claimed for his "buy nothing from Italy" campaign the advantage that it could be put into effect immediately. Since League states buy 70 per cent of Italy's exports, he argued, a boycott would immediately have a smashing effect.

League and Non-League States.

The French position, however, was that the cutting off of products should come only after a deprivation of war materials had failed to bring Mussolini to terms.

INDUSTRIAL UNION FIGHT THIS WEEK IN A. F. L. SESSION

ISSUE OUTGROWTH OF MASS PRODUCTION

Old Guard Leaders Opposed to Organization of Workers in One Industry Into Single Union.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 12.—Factional leaders in the American Federation of Labor took advantage of the week-end lull in convention activities to line up their forces for next week's fight on the industrial union issue.

The question is whether the federation shall take an unqualified stand for the organization of all employes in a mass production industry, such as automobiles, into one big union.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, says it should. Siding with him are Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers; David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers; George L. Berry, president of the Printing Pressmen.

With Lewis are the brewery workers, the oil field and refinery workers, the Western metal miners, many delegates from the newly organized automobile and rubber workers' unions, several other international organizations, and most of the delegates from the "federal" unions—organizationos set up in factories which are not under the jurisdiction of now-established unions.

On the other side are lined up the federation's Old Guard, led by John Frey of the Metal Trades Department, and Arthur Wharton, president of the Machinists' Union.

They dispute Lewis' contention that industrial unionism would give labor greater strength than would the older form of organization by craft, and predict its defeat.

Resolutions to be acted on next week include:

Indorsement of President Green's stand against United States participation in any European war.

Resolutions calling on the federation to form an independent Labor party.

A new move to purge the federation of Communists is expected, as well as the adoption of a legislative program calling for a continued fight for the 30-hour work week, and minimum wage and maximum hour laws that will comply with the Federal Constitution.

The Building Trades Department row will be the subject of continued discussion.

REPORTS ITALIAN WARSHIPS FAIL TO SALUTE BRITISH FLAG

Correspondent Tells of Incidents of Mediterranean Cruise Showing Tenseness of Feeling.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD THE STEAMER CAIRO CITY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN, Oct. 12.—Messages from the Khedivial liner Khedive Ismail, which left Marseilles the same day as the Cairo City, disclosed it canceled its scheduled calls at Genoa and Naples. Other British vessels have canceled their Italian stops. One airplane service connecting Marseilles and Rome has been abandoned.

The Cairo City passed the Island of Sardinia Wednesday. Near eight Italian destroyers holding target practice with airplane reconnaisance. The Cairo City, a London registered boat, although Greek owned, dipped its Union Jack, but officers aboard the Cairo City declared the Italian destroyers did not salute the British flag although there is still a rigid rule of the sea requiring the salute when warships are involved.

Several such incidents have been reported in the Mediterranean. Officers of the Cairo City said an Italian boat which failed to salute British warships at Alexandria was forced to return to sea and re-enter the port, complying with regulations.

JUNIOR C. OF C. STAND ON WAR

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 12.—Directors of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce today adopted a new outline of principles—chief of which was a declaration in favor of abolition of wars of aggression. Passage of the war resolution—voted unanimously—marked the first time the Junior Chamber of Commerce directors have taken such action.

Allen Whitfield, president of the organization, said the resolution was passed because "of a feeling that the young men are the ones who have to pay the price of war." The directors voted also for adoption of a plan whereby the members of the organization would act as "godfather" to youths in Civilian Conservation Corps camps.

tioned against a boycott so smashing in effect that it might dislocate not only Italy's economic structure but that of all Europe.

The Rumanian delegate suggested that a committee be created to study means of compensating countries like his, which stands to lose heavily if cut off from the Italian market.

At the general meeting the Russian delegate expressed anxiety over the possibility that non-League states might not only wreck the sanctions program by refusing to co-operate with it, but also might capture the Italian market from League states. He advocated a study of retaliatory measures to be applied against any such state which attempted to break the League boycott.

On co-operation by non-member states, some members on the committee advocated: "Wait until we have a definite program before we call in outsiders." Others wanted an immediate consultation. The committee has before it all documents bearing on United States neutrality legislation and the embargoes which it involves.

The delegate for the Union of South Africa proposed that, in addition to economic and financial sanctions, a study be made of the feasibility of declaring a diplomatic blockade against Italy, through the withdrawal of Ambassadors and Ministers of League states from Rome. This proposal, however, was not discussed today.

Committee members seemed generally disposed to weigh carefully any action likely to impose harsh suffering upon great masses of the Italian people before putting it into effect.

The "immediate sanctions" committee, which started out as a Committee of 16 and later became one of 17, probably became 18 today when Mexico—which League officials say sends oil to the Italian market—was invited to join the deliberations.

The Siamese Government informed the League its cabinet had decided not to participate in sanctions against Italy. The Siamese Naval Chief of Staff and 70 officers and men will proceed aboard a Siamese warship to Italy shortly to take a delivery of torpedo boats from an Italian shipyard.

Italian on Arms Embargo.

The arms embargo resolution, which applies to future shipments to Italy as well as contracts already entered into, contained one paragraph designed to block any effort by Mussolini to get war supplies through neighboring anti-sanction states such as Austria. This paragraph states that the members of the League will 'take such steps as may be necessary" to prevent re-export "directly or indirectly" of arms to Italy or its possessions.

An Italian spokesman, commenting on the lifting of the arms embargo from Ethiopia, said bitterly this meant the "black empire could kill Italians with rifles, machine guns and anti-aircraft guns furnished by great white Powers.

"It means also that Italy will be obliged to make a greater military effort, which may weaken her capacity to come to the aid of Europe, if, for example, any attack on Austria's independence would create a new war menace."

The Italian delegation announced that its head, Baron Pompeo Aloisi, would broadcast from Rome tomorrow night to the United States. This will be the speech which the British Postoffice refused to rebroadcast from Geneva two nights ago—the first application of a sanction against Italy. Aloisi can speak directly to the United States from Rome without sending his words by England.

Official German quarters announced that the Reich was sending a check to the League for 5,300,000 Swiss francs to settle the dues Germany owes to the League. The third Reich leaves the League officially Oct. 21—two years after the date of its resignation notice.

"Italy Will Remember Her Enemies That Hurt Her."

ROME, Oct. 12.—Fascism's anger at its "new enemy," 50 League powers imposing sanctions, was shown clearly tonight. Italy will meet "threat with threat," authoritative quarters disclosed. Officials repeated what newspapers declared: "Italy will remember the friends that help her and the enemies that hurt her."

Italians accused Great Britain of shielding her interests behind the League and League members of attacking Italy because of "her poverty."

Sources close to the government scoffed at the idea Italy would be starved into submission. They echoed Premier Mussolini's frequent phrase: "Live dangerously!"

Italy is ready for an economic emergency, they asserted, with exports, imports, production and the cost of living alredy controlled.

Italian authorities said they relied upon three things—the smooth functioning of the Fascist organization of the country's whole life; patriotism, which Fascists claim Mussolini has brought to one of the highest points in history; and Italians' known ability to live comfortably on extremely little.

Long ago Mussolini began cutting off imports of luxuries by the quota system. English tobacco, for instance, is being sold out with the knowledge there will be no more.

Punishments were promised countries cutting off trade with Italy by Virginio Gayda, who is close to Mussolini, in an article in the Giornale D'Italia. "The change in international commercial relations will not end with this episode," he said. "It is understood that, if this monstrous principle proposed by Great Britain, is made effective, then Italy will refuse the products of those countries that do not buy her products."

Gayda added: "Italy will never forget this fury that actuates the men of the British Government and their group of friends, whose evident and significant partiality is so different from that extended to other countries in similar circumstances."

As for financial sanctions, Gayda commented that they "are nothing new. Britain and other countries applied them some time ago."

Strengthens Sea Defenses.

Mussolini has moved to strengthen his naval defenses in the Mediterranean so that he would be able to meet Great Britain with her own weapons if necessary. Through a series of decrees he has put high naval officers to work studying defenses and how to strengthen anti-aircraft services, especially in Sicily and Sardinia.

For anti-aircraft protection of the islands of the lower Tyrrhenian Sea he called specialists of the classes of 1909, 1910 and 1912. At the same time he signed a decree holding over in service indefinitely 300,000 men of the class of 1914 who are about to complete their normal training period.

Rome Reports 22 Ethiopians Killed in Skirmish.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 12.—A skirmish in which 22 Ethiopians were killed was reported tonight in a communique issued by the Italian press ministry. The fighting occurred on the northern Ethiopian front, beyond Aduwa, when Ethiopians opened fire on native Eritreans consolidating advance positions, it was announced. Eritrean casualties were not mentioned.

RISES 19,500 FEET IN ALTITUDE FLIGHT

Clare Bunch Thinks He Established New Record for Light Planes.

Clare Bunch, president and general manager of the Lambert Aircraft Corporation, with B. L. Carter, vice-president of the company, as passenger, made a flight from Lambert-St. Louis Field at 3 p. m., yesterday, in an attempt to break the altitude record for light planes. He returned at 5:17, believing from his altimeter record that he had succeeded. His altimeter showed a height of 19,500 feet, compared with the previous record of 18.600 feet, held by Wilfred G. Moore of Kansas City.

The record of altitude which will be considered by the National Aeronautic Association, and which will establish or fail to establish a new high mark, is in a sealed barograph. This was taken in charge by Oliver Parks, owner of Parks Airport, as official ground observer, and was sent by parcel post to the association's headquarters in Washington. A report on the barograph showing is expected from Washington within two or three days.

The light-plane class for which the previous record of 18,600 feet was made, is known as Class C, first category, limited to planes weighing 1272 pounds or less. The 90-horsepower, two-seater plane piloted by Bunch weighed 990 pounds, and he and his passenger, with parachute, weighed 334 pounds. They carried, at the outset, 18 pounds of oil and 72 pounds of gasoline. The gasoline supply, estimated to be sufficient for an hour and a half, lasted for the two hours and 17 minutes of the flight, and the pilot estimated that he had a pint of gasoline left when he reached the earth.

A strong wind was blowing from the south as the silver plane arose, and it was soon lost to view from the field. Two hours were taken in making altitude, Bunch reported, and 17 minutes in the descent. Before landing, the pilot made two loops.

The two men, wearing business suits with no heavy protecting garments, did not suffer from cold in the closed plane.

"It was all right up to 17,000 feet," Bunch related after landing. "Then there began to be trouble with the spark plugs. After that, it seemed as if every foot was a battle." He said the plane, in its ascent of more than three and one-half miles, kept nearly above the airport, which was never out of his view.

DEMONSTRATION AGAINST ITALY

2000 Englishmen March in Front of Ethiopian Legation.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 12. — Shouts of "Stop the war," and "Down with Fascism" were heard from 2000 marchers who massed today in front of the Ethiopian Legation. They presented Dr. Warqnex C. Martin, Ethiopian Minister to London, with a statement promising him their support in his country's conflict with Italy.

"You are defending Ethiopia against the murderous onslaught of a Fascist enemy who knows neither honor nor humane feeling," said the statement. "Fascism, which is slaughtering, burning and poisoning your people and which cynically seeks to cover its crimes by references to civilization, is a cancer which has fastened itself onto Italy and now seeks to fasten itself on all of Europe."

JAPAN ACCEPTS TERMS ON PHILIPPINE TRADE

Limit on Cotton Textile Exports Fixed by "Gentlemen's Agreement" With U. S.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Opening the way for a settlement of trade relations in the Pacific, the United States and Japan today concluded a "gentlemen's agreement" under which Japanese cotton textile exports to the Philippines will be limited to 45,000,000 square meters annually during the next two years.

The limitation, agreed to by Japan to stave off imposition of higher Philippine duties and anti-Japanese import agitation in the United States, was described by the State Department as likely to assure American manufacturers and exporters of "twice the value of imports form Japan."

With Conclusion of the Philippine agreement, Francis B. Sayre, assistant Secretary of State in charge of the trade agreements program, immediately went to work on a somewhat similar agreement which would limit Japanese textile exports to the United States.

The President's Cabinet Committee on cotton in its report on the cotton problem recommended that efforts be made to negotiate a pact with Japan by which its exports to this country would be limited in the interests of American textile manufacturers.

State Department officials are now gathering all pertinent data concerning Japanese textile exports to this country, including amounts, values, percentages and effect on domestic manufacturing interests.

Actual negotiation of the proposed agreement is expected to begin as quickly as the complete statistical picture of foreign textile imports and their effect on American cotton interests can be tabulated.

Until last year the United States enjoyed the greatest percentage of the textile business in the Philippines but the Japanese, utilizing a depreciated yen, made a strenuous trade drive in 1934 which gave them the lion's share of the market. As a result Japan was supplying 52.7 per cent of the island's total imports, as against 40.5 per cent by the United States.

During the first eight months of 1935 Japanese exports have continued to increase, amounting to 57.7 per cent of the market as against 37.7 per cent for American textiles.

Under the new agreement, retroactive to Aug. 1 and in force for two years, the recently formed association of Japanese exporters of cotton piece goods, will "voluntarily" limit their exports to the islands to 45,000,000 square meters, as against 59,790,000 square meters shipped in the preceding 12 months, and 56,356,000 square meters during 1934.

The Philippines annually import about 95,000,000 square meters of cotton cloth valued at roughly $10,000,000.

Suicide Follows Gangster Murders.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12.—Mrs. Mary Jo Ash Spano, 30years old, committed suicide tonight in a downtown hotel here by slashing her wrists and taking poison. Her brothers, William and Wallace Ash, were found shot to death in a burning automobile on the outskirts of Kansas City, Kan., four year ago. Said to have been police informers, the theory was then held that they were murdered by Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd because they planned to "turn him up."

Haile Selassie Takes Italian Envoy in Hand

Minister Who Refuses to Leave Placed in Home of Emperor's Son-in-Law—Actions Called 'Fascist Heroics.'

By the Associated Press.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 12.—Italy's Minister to Ethiopia, who defied an order of Emperor Haile Selassie to leave the country, was taken tonight from the legation and conducted by troops to the home of Ras Desta Damtou, son-in-law of the Emperor.

His position was obscure tonight. Although Haile Selassie delivered an ultimatum demanding that the Minister leave by 7 a. m. tomorrow, it appeared possible he might relent and allow Vinci-Gigliucci to stay.

Armed solders preceded and followed the dplomat when he was taken from the legation, where he was a virtual prisoner, to the home.

"Of My Own Free Will."

Haile Selassie was plainly outraged by the Minister's action. In a defiant letter to the Ethiopian Government, the Minister said:

"I am staying of my own free will despite the insistence of the authorities that I leave, awaiting the arrival of the two members of the Magalo Consulate. I also declare I submit freely to any measures the Government may take against me."

Ethiopian officials asserted, however, the Minister was deliberately trying to create an incident by forcing Ethiopian soldiers to invade the legation, which is considered Italian soil.

A special train was ready to take Vinci-Gigliucci to Djibouti, French Somaliland, as ordered by Haile Selassie. The Minister sent his pet leopard on it, but he himself refused to go.

Members of the diplocatic corps had waited for three hours at the station under a blazing sun to bid Vinci-Gigliucci farewell They were indignant when he did not show up.

First Secretary's Actions.

Rumors flew fast and thick. More excitement was created when First Secretary F. De Granet of the Italian legation did not leave on the special train but departed on an ordinary train which left an hour lateer. Ethiopian officials became suspicious and ordered the special train to wait and to take de Granet from the other train. Other legation officials except Col. Carderini, the military attache, left by the special train.

Haile Selassie had ordered Vinci-Gigliucci to leave, charging that the legation was the center of Italian espionage and that Vinci-Gigliucci's presence was embarrassing.

Ethiopian officials said De Granet, the first secretary, after boarding the train tried to leave and rejoin the minister. They said Ethiopian police discovered him hiding in a corner, holding a revolver, and forced him to reboard the train, accompanied by armed guards.

Case of "Fascist Heroics."

Haile Selassie declined flatly yesterday to receive Vinci-Gigliucci in a farewell audience. One Ethiopian official said the minister had a case of "Fascist heroics." Vinci-Gigliucci had said that like the captain of the ship he would leave only when every other Italian was safe.

He had turned over the keys of the legation to the French minister last night.

The only other Italians now in Ethiopia except for the two consular representatives and the military attache are about 40 Catholic missionary fathers.

In view of the Pope's declination to recall them on the ground they are in the service of the church, the Emperor intends to deport them en masse. He wishes to avoid responsibility for their lives during hostilities.

PAIR OBSERVING ANNIVERSARY IN SCUFFLE WITH POLICEMAN

All Three Taken to Hospital After Fight at American Hotel; Charges Filed.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Myerson, who were observing the eighth anniversary of their wedding at the American Hotel last night, engaged in a scuffle with a policeman who had entered the taproom to investigate loud talking.

All three were taken to City Hospital for treatment of minor hurts and the Myersons were then taken to Police Headquarters, where Myerson was booked on charges of malicious destruction of property, general peace disturbance, resisting arrest and common assault. Mrs. Myerson was booked on the last three charges.

The policeman, James Lanigan of Central district, said at the hospital that he took Myerson to the washroom after he had walked away from his wife and thrust his fist through the glass of the Market street door of the hotel. There, he said, Myerson struck him and he struck back. Mrs. Myerson, who had entered the room meanwhile, bit him on both hands, the policeman said.

Myerson said the glass broke when he shut the door and that he had offered to pay for the damage. His wife said the policeman hit her and knocked her down. Myerson, who resides at 5602 Enright avenue, identified himself as a vice-president of Union-May-Stern Co.

JURY CONSIDERS VERDICT IN STOLL KIDNAPING CASE

money while on the way to Indianapolis with it.

"I can't see how you can fail to convict Mrs. Robinson on the single fact that she used the ransom money when she knew it was ransom money," the prosecutor said.

The defense stressed what it termed the exactness of the story Mrs. Robinson told Federal agents the night after Mrs. Stoll was released, and her story from the witness stand.

"No woman," Defense Attorney Jack Norman said, "unless she was telling the truth, would have stood up under such a barrage as was leveled on her by Federal agents at the hospital, without breaking down and telling the truth."

SPANISH PRINCE WEDS HIS COUSIN IN ROME

Juan and Marie Blessed by Pope After Ceremony Marked by Splendor.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 12.—Bearing the blessing of Pope Pius XI, Don Juan of Bourbon, son of Former King Alfonso of Spain, and his bride, a princess of the House of Bourbon, are on a honeymoon, which, friends say, may take them to the United States.

Juan, 22-year-old heir presumptive to the Spanish throne, and his royal cousin, the Infanta Maria de la Esperanza of Bourbon-Sicile, 21, left Rome in an automobile as thousands cheered them, after their wedding of pomp and splendor today. They were en route to London, where they hope to obtain the blessing of Queen Victoria of Spain, the estranged wife of ex-King Alfonso.

"We'll See You in Spain."

Hopes for restoration of the Spanish monarchy were shouted by many in a great crowd of royalists who had gathered from all sections of the continent. They cheered Alfonso with "Long Live the King of Spain!" and greeted Juan and Maria with "We'll see you in Spain!"

Cardinal Elia Dalla Costa, Archbishop of Florence, performed the marriage ceremony in the old church of Maria Degli Angeli before an audience which included about 1500 Spanish women, most of whom wore high combs and long black veils, and hundreds of men of the old Spanish nobility wearing full dress and decorations of the monarchy.

Grandees in Procession.

In the wedding procession, the bride was followed by 49 couples dressed in characteristic costumes of the 49 Spanish provinces. Ushers were former grandees of Spain, attired in frock-coats of blue velvet on which insignias were embroidered in gold. The Sistine choir from the Vatican sang the wedding music.

Pope Pius received the couple both before and after the ceremony, the second audience being held privately in his library, where he blessed Juan and Maria, giving the bride a rosary and the bridegroom a gold commemorative medal. The Prince and Princess, attended by members of the papal court, prayed in St. Peter's Cathedral before a small wedding luncheon at the Grand Hotel, prior to their departure on the honeymoon.

WARE BABY CASE TESTIMONY TO BE OFFERED TUESDAY

Virtually All Respondents, Named in Petition of 19-Year-Old Unwed Mother, to Be Witnesses.

MUENCHES AMONG THOSE SUMMONED

Wilfred Jones, the Man Who Knows Everything, Has Been Absent From Home for Several Days.

Attorney Harry C. Barker, representing Anna Ware in the habeas corpus suit in the St. Louis Court of Appeals for recovery of her baby boy, said yesterday to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he will be ready to proceed with the taking of testimony at 10 a. m. Tuesday before Special Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh.

It is understood the list of witnesses served with subpenas by the marshal of the court includes virtually all of the six respondents named in the petition of the 19-year-old unmarried mother who came here from Philadelphia shortly before the birth of her baby last Aug. 17.

Two of the respondents are Dr. Ludwig O. Muench and his wife, Nellie Tipton Muench, who are alleged in the petition to have the baby in their home at 4736 Westminster place. Dr. Muench signed a birth certificate reporting that a baby boy was born to his 43-year-old wife at their home at 12:35 a. m. Aug. 18, an hour or two after Ann Ware's baby was taken away from the home of Mrs. Rebecca Winner, retired midwife, at 6015 Maple avenue, where it was born.

The habeas corpus petition names Mrs. Winner as a respondent, and also her cousin, Carl M. Dubinsky, who acted as her attorney. The other respondents are Wilfred Jones and Mrs. Helen Berroyer, a stenographer, of 5559 Pershing avenue, a friend of Mrs. Muench.

Jones, lawyer and friend of Mrs. Muench and her off-the-record adviser, who is the key man in the baby case, has been absent from his home at 1100A McCausland avenue for several days. He has not subjected himself to subpena as a witness, although he made answer and denial as a respondent. Jones is the man who knows everything. The last known of Anna Ware's baby it was in his possession less than two hours before the reported birth of a child to Mrs. Muench.

Grand Jury Foreman Promises Thorough Inquiry if Case Develops.

James A. McKeown, foreman of the grand jury, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday in answer to an inquiry, that if anything appears in the celebrated Muench-Ware baby case requiring the attention of the grand jury, "the matter will be gone into thoroughly."

When asked if the case had been brought to the attention of the grand jury, he said: "It has not been officially referred to the grand jury. There is certain procedure that should be followed."

Among the allegations in the habeas corpus petition of Anna Ware, 19-year-old unmarried mother, are that her baby boy was "wrongfully and unlawfully" taken from her a few hours after its birth last Aug. 17 at the home of Mrs. Rebecca Winner, retired midwife, 6015 Maple avenue. The pleadings in the case pending in the St. Louis Court of Appeals charge that Dr. Ludwig O. Muench and his wife, Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, of 4736 Westminster place, received the child and planned to "palm off on the public as their own."

Four other persons named with Dr. and Mrs. Muench as respondents in the habeas corpus action were charged by the petitioner with having conspired to take her baby. A hearing of the habeas corpus suit is to start Tuesday morning before Special Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh, appointed by the Court of Appeals.

Presumably the grand jury would be interested in ascertaining whether there has been violation of the criminal statutes in the case.

What Statute Says.

Every person who shall maliciously, forcibly or fraudulently lead, take or carry away or decoy or entice away any child under the age of 12 years, with the intent to detain or conceal such child from its parent, guardian or other persons having the lawful charge of such child, shall, upon conviction, be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding 20 years, or in a county jail not less than six months, or by fine not less than $500.

Concerning this statute, Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller said to a Post-Dispatch reporter a few days ago:

"This section has been put up to me before. It does not cover the Ware baby case. The section was intended to protect children who might be enticed or decoyed away from their parents. You can't entice away a day-old baby."

When asked whether he intend-

Presumably the grand jury would be interested in ascertaining whether there has been violation of the criminal statutes in the case.

What Statute Says.

Every person who shall maliciously, forcibly or fraudulently lead, take or carry away or decoy or entice away any child under the age of 12 years, with the intent to detain or conceal such child from its parent, guardian or other persons having the lawful charge of such child, shall, upon conviction, be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary not exceeding 20 years, or in a county jail not less than six months, or by fine not less than $500.

Concerning this statute, Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller said to a Post-Dispatch reporter a few days ago:

"This section has been put up to me before. It does not cover the Ware baby case. The section was intended to protect children who might be enticed or decoyed away from their parents. You can't entice away a day-old baby."

When asked whether he intended to take any action under that section, he replied: "No, we have enough cases without taking in any of doubtful jurisdiction."

Although it is customary for a grand jury to be guided by the advice of the Circuit Attorney, it may, if it wishes, conduct an inquiry independently.

Attitude of Probation Officer.

Jesse P. Smith, Chief Probation Officer of the Juvenile Court, whose duty is the protection of children before the court, said in response to questions it would depend on the outcome of the Court of Appeals litigation whether his office could take official notice of the baby case.

"While we are familiar from published reports of Miss Ware's allegations and the situation generally," he said, "we have no proof before us that her baby is being neglected, nor do we know where it was taken or is to be found. We have not so much as a complaint.

"To bring a matter before the Juvenile Court one must first make a complaint or we must have information of neglect. In this event we make an investigation, and should the facts warrant, we certify proof to the court. We can do nothing in the Ware case as matters stand."

to the prison commissary about 9 a. m. as usual, and started to unload 44 cases of butter," Bartley related. "There was a guard nearby. Suddenly three men appeared beside me, two armed with scissors.

"'Where are your keys?' one demanded. I began to struggle with them as he seized the keys. Before the guard came to my assistance, I was pulled into the rear of the truck by two of the convicts, while Banghart, the only one I knew, climbed into the driver's seat with the fourth. The guard reached the tailgate of the truck, but was knocked off and injured.

"Banghart drove along the road inside the wall at about 40 miles per hour in second gear. He didn't stop for the inner iron-barred gate but crashed right through. We felt little shock as the gate was crashed. About 100 feet further on, he drove the truck through the outer gate with the same ease.

"I Grabbed Both Scissors."

"I have had experience in dealing with persons who attack me. So I grabbed both of the scissors with which the two men in the back of the truck were threatening me.

"'I'll stick you in the heart,' one said. 'I don't think you will,' I replied. Both men were small, and I am pretty big. I held the scissors, getting only a few scratches on my wrists and arms. After a while I figured the only way I could get away would be to pull one or both of them out into the road, and I didn't want to risk a broken back, so I stopped struggling.

"Then one of the men told me to take off my coveralls. I did and he put them on. Banghart drove down the prison road past Chester then to Route 150, which he took south to Rockwood. One of the men asked me about the road to Cairo, mentioning that they would be met by a car with guns, but I told them I didn't know the road.

"At Rockwood, on a long hill, around a curve, Banghart stopped the truck and with his companion ran into the woods.

"My two captors didn't run as they saw the approaching car of the prison guards. They submitted to arrest quietly. Banghart was found in the woods and shot in the right arm by a guard's fire. The other man (Stone) got away. I went back to the prison and finished unloading my butter."

BRIDE FOUND KILLED; OTHER MAN WOUNDED

Throat Cut; Companion Found With Wrists Slashed in Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Her throat cut, a 21-year-old bride was found dead in a hotel room here today with a Culpeper (Va.) undertaker, whose own arm and wrists were also cut with a penknife. The woman, Mrs. Willie Mae Wood, was married three weeks ago to Herbert R. Wood, of Fairfax, Va., a State Highway Department employe. W. H. Reaguer, 50, the undertaker, was removed to a hospital and police said he would survive.

Police quoted Wood as saying that his wife had known the undertaker for many years. Wood gave authorities what they described as "important information." Anna O'Bannon, 17, Mrs. Wood's cousin, was found in an adjoining room of the hotel and is being held as a material witness.

No formal charges were placed against Reaguer. An inquest will be held probably early next week.

Reaguer, who is married and has two daughters, was in a frenzy when seized by police and he shouted wildly from the stretcher to which he had been strapped. He was weakened by loss of blood.

The killing occurred early today and was discovered when a hotel guest heard screams and called hotel employes.

Registering as "Mr. Thomas and family of Richmond, Va.," the undertaker, the woman and her cousin, came to the hotel last night. Wood said his wife left their home in Fairfax County yesterday morning to drive to Washington with her mother. Mrs. Wood and Miss O'Bannon were to meet Mrs. Wood's mother, Mrs. J. W. Fletcher, in the town of Fairfax. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher reside near Culpeper.

It was known police were looking into the acquaintanceship of the young bride and Reaguer.

In the downtown hotel room was found a pint of whisky. Police said they found the girl lying on the floor with Reaguer, face down, near her.

'TREASURE HUNTERS' HELD

Accused of Plot to Steal $38,000 to Finance Search.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—Two of three Boston brokers indicted for conspiracy to steal $38,000 from Mary Gray Morrison, a Newton woman, were arrested today and police continued search for the third man. Henry P. Fielding, Assistant District Attorney, said the woman was one of several investors who had turned over thousands of dollars to the brokers to finance search for sunken treasure.

The brokers were: John T. Hull of Newton, son of John C. Hull, director of the sale and securities division of the State Department of Public Utilities, and James J. Mullaney of Lowell. The third man sought was Leo C. Pyne of Brookline.

PRISONER NAMES TWO IN KILLING IN HOLDUP IN 1931

Vernon Belt, 21, Confesses Part in Murder of Service Car Association Head on East Side.

Continuing its investigation of the murder in a holdup four years ago of George Anderson, president of the East St. Louis Service Car Drivers' Association, the State's Attorney's office at Belleville announced yesterday that it had a confession from the man who drove Anderson's murderers to a point near the scene of the killing.

The confession, Assistant State's Attorney Fred Bier said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, was obtained from Vernon Belt, 21 years old, a prisoner in the reformatory at Pontiac, Ill. Belt named two other men as participants in the holdup in which Anderson was killed. One of those he named, Bier said, was Ned Lumley, arrested Monday in East St. Louis and charged with the murder in a warrant issued Thursday.

Killing at Time Laid to Dispute.

At the time Anderson was shot and killed, Dec. 12, 1931, the murder was attributed by police to his efforts to unionize service car drivers. Belt's confession said the killers had only robbery in mind.

Belt, who is serving an indeterminate term for receiving stolen property, recently wrote to a sister in East St. Louis that he was "worried" about a murder, Bier said. When the State's Attorney's office learned of the letter, Bier went to Pontiac to talk to Belt, who told him his story and signed a confession.

Statement by Prisoner.

In the confession, as quoted by Bier, Belt said that the plan to hold up Anderson was Lumley's. The actual shooting, he said, was done by the third man.

"Ned borrowed an automobile," the confession continued, "and I drove it out near Washington Park. When I stopped, Ned and N—— got out and told me to wait. N—— had a .32 caliber revolver. They said they were going to hold him up.

"I saw them walk about two blocks and then they got into a blue sedan. Anderson was in it. The car started up and came toward me. I saw there was a fight on. Then it crashed into a tree. Ned and N—— jumped out and ran. I started up the car and went to my sister's house.

"Ned and N—— came there later. They told me they had a fight with the man when he grabbed the gun. Ned held him while N—— pushed him back and shot him. They said they threw the gun in some water in a field."

Third Man Being Sought.

Police are searching for the third man named in Belt's confession. Lumley, a laborer, 24 years old, is held in jail in East St. Louis, has denied participation in the murder.

Anderson was killed in the 4200 block of Forest boulevard, East St. Louis, near Washington Park. A week before he was killed a service car driver had warned him to be careful. Anderson's organization of service car drivers had been in controversy with a rival group and with a taxicab company.

MOTHER OF GIRLS STEPFATHER KILLED NOT GOING TO FUNERAL

Michigan Woman Sends Spray for Children Whose Drowning She Admits Helping Plot.

HARRISON, Mich., Oct. 12.—Mrs. Ferrin Rowland will not be present when her two daughters, Katherine, 6, and Virginia Woodin, 2, are borne to their grave in Greenwood Cemetery tomorrow afternoon.

She will send a spray of flowers for the single white casket for the girls, whose deaths she confessed helping plot. Sheriff George Bates said he would provide a guard if she desired to attend the funeral, but she will remain in her cell at the Clare County Jail.

Authorities are waiting a report on Mrs. Rowland's sanity before proceeding with criminal action against her. Rowland hanged himself in a jail cell at Pontiac, Mich., a few hours before he was to have received a life sentence for drowning the girls in a lake in Oakland County.

GOVERNOR DENIES CLEMENCY FOR GERALD THOMPSON

Peoria Man Must Die in Electric Chair Tuesday for Killing Mildred Hallmark.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 12.—Governor Horner tonight announced he had denied the petition for executive clemency placed before him by the attorney for Gerald Thompson of Peoria, sentenced to die in the electric chair early Tuesday morning. It was Thompson's last hope to escape death for the killing of Mildred Hallmark, who was found dead after having been assaulted in a Peoria cemetery June 17.

Gov. Horner said he had made his announcement on the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, which shortly before had heard arguments by Ren Thurman, Thompson's attorney, and State's Attorney E. V. Champion.

Earlier in the week Gov. Horner had indicated he believed Thompson had had fair treatment in the State courts. Thompson's last appeal, to the Supreme Court, was turned down Oct. 2.

U. S. TO BUY COOKSON HILLS

Purchase of 34,000 Acres for $250,000 Approved.

By the Associated Press.

STILLWATER, Ok., Oct. 12.—The rugged Cookson Hills, long used as a hideaway by criminals, soon may be left entirely to small game and fugitives. The Government will pay $250,000 for 34,000 acres in the area, where "Pretty Boy" Floyd, Matt and George Kimes, Wilbur Underhill and many other desperadoes found refuge.

Approval of the purchase to enable the farmers of that area to move to better land was announced today by C. O. Blackwell, regional director of land utilization for the Federal Resettlement Administration. Of 400 families living on the rocky hillsides, 369 already have elected to move. The area apparently is destined to become a park or game preserve.

CCC Man Held in Woman's Death.

By the Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 12.—Sheriff Arthur L. Oakes said tonight he had arrested a man and obtained admissions in connection with the death of Miss Helen Shannon, 40 years old, who was criminally attacked and killed at Ironton, Oct. 1. He said the prisoner gave his name as Ralph Fulmer, 24 of Ironton, a CCC man, and admitted that he knocked Miss Shannon to a pavement but said he did not remember attacking and killing her.

Pilot, Out of Fuel in Midst Of Fog, Takes to Parachute

Captain Raphael Baez of Scott Field, After Flying Nearly Five Hours, Jumps and Lands in Tree Near Peoria.

Capt. Raphael Baez, army flyer from Scott Field, spent 45 minutes in the top of tree after jumping with his parachute when his plane was fogbound and out of fuel 19 miles north of Peoria, Ill., yesterday morning. The pilotless plane crashed against a hillside a mile and a half away.

When Capt. Baez took off from Scott Field at 4:15 a. m. on the daily weather observation flight there was some ground fog. He ascended to 17,000 feet and on descending an hour later he found that a dense blanket of fog had blotted out all view of the field.

Picking up the radio beam from Lambert-St. Louis Field, Capt. Baez crossed the Mississippi River in the hope of making a landing at the municipal airport in St. Louis County. He was heard over the airport at 6 o'clock and was given radio directions for landing, but reported later that, when he found a hole in the fog and started down, he was forced to veer away because of buildings, and lost the chance.

Attempts to Reach Chicago.

The weather reports radioed to him while he was over Lambert Field convinced him that it was useless to try to find an open space east, south or west, Capt. Baez related later. He turned north in the hope of reaching Chicago.

"Near Peoria I picked up the radio beam and followed it for a short time," the flyer told a Post-Dispatch reporter over long-distance telephone. "My fuel ran low and, there being on break in the fog mass below I prepared to jump. At 8:45 o'clock, from 6000 feet, I went over the side, remembering to hold onto the parachute cord for a souvenir, and I also kept my gloves. The chute opened promptly.

"I left the ship in bright sunlight and did not catch any glimpse of my plane before sailing into the fog at 4000 feet. In there it was like driving an automobile in St. Louis on a smoky evening. That was a long, dark drop. When I believed that I was nearing the ground I curled up and protected my eyes with my arms. I dropped out of the fog at an altitude of about 100 feet, and immediately crashed into a tall tree between two farms. I landed in such a position and was so tangled in parachute shroud lines and flying clothing that I was unable to extricate myself.

CAPT. RAPHAEL BAEZ.

Attracts Two Farmers.

"After 45 minutes of shouting I attracted the attention of two farmers, who obligingly climbed the tree and passed me a rope to help me get down. I was somewhat exhausted and hungry, as I left Scott Field before breakfast, but my kindly rescuers proved excellent hosts after they helped me off my perch."

Capt. Baez is 45 years old. A graduate of Marquette University, he entered the army as a flying cadet in 1917. During his training days he made a practice parachute leap, but yesterday was his first emergency jump. He came to Scott Field last May from Hawaii.

The pilotless plane fell on the farm of E. R. Swope and was wrecked. Capt. Baez visited the scene before returning to Scott Field by train.

A weather observation flight is made every day from Scott Field. The plane is equipped with instruments for recording humidity, pressure and temperatures.

SCHWAB WILL DIRECT 1936 MUNICIPAL OPERA

President Kiel Announces Retension of Producer for Another Year.

Laurence Schwab, producing director in charge of last summer's Municipal Opera presentations, will again have charge next near, it was announced last night by Henry W. Kiel, president of the Municipal Theater Association.

Kiel expressed gratification that Schwab would return and spoke of him as one of the outstanding producers in the theatrical world of today.

"He has had a year's experience with the producing problems peculiar to the Municipal Theater," Kiel said, "and this experience will stand him in good stead in shaping next year's policy. Schwab shares our desires to make the Forest Park theater the capitol of musical productions in the United States."

At present Schwab is in New York preparing "Venus in Silk," for its opening there. This operetta had its first production last summer at the Municipal Theater as "The Beloved Rogue." Early in November Schwab will produce "May Wine," a new musical play by Sigmund Romberg.

Schwab is one of the youngest of theatrical producers. At Harvard he wrote parts of the Hasty Pudding Club's annual shows. After the World War, during which he served in the navy, he started his professional career by writing, producing and booking vaudeville acts. In 1922, with Daniel Kusel, he wrote and produced "The Gingham Girl." Among the musical shows he has produced are "The Desert Song," "The New Moon," "Good News" and "East Wind."

BOY LOSES LEG INJURED IN CARBIDE EXPLOSION

Arnold Fritz, 13, Was Found Unconscious in Shed in Rear of Lebanon (Ill.) Home.

Arnold Fritz, 13 years old, suffered the loss of his left leg below the knee yesterday, when a large can of carbide exploded in a shed at the rear of his home in Lebanon, Ill. The leg was amputated at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville.

It could not be learned how the accident happened as the boy was unconscious when found. He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fritz. Carbide, when damp or wet, produces a gas.

CAPTAIN CARTER CASE COVERS 55,000 PAGES

Government Records of 37 Years Ago in "Affair"-Convicted Man Wishes Reopened.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—More than 55,000 pages of evidence in the musty files of the War and Justice Departments today told the official story of the military conviction of Captain Oberlin M. Carter 37 years ago.

Now a 79-year-old Chicago consulting engineer, Carter is seeking vindication in what he calls an American version of the famous "Dreyfus affair." He presented his evidence this week to Senator Duffy of Wisconsin for a senatorial review.

Carter was graduated from West Point in 1880 with a record second only to Robert E. Lee's. He scored 1939.2 points in his studies. The highest possible rating is 1950.

Six years later he was sent to Savannah, Ga., as engineering officer, remaining there two years, during most of which he was in charge of harbor improvements at Savannah and Cumberland Sound, Fla.

After he had been named military attache at London in 1897, his Savannah accounts were examined and he was charged with illegally sharing in construction funds. General E. S. Otis headed the court-martial which tried him on 37 specifications. The record of the trial filled 24 volumes, which for years have been gathering dust in the Army's files.

Records show 17 specifications were dismissed because of the statute of limitations. Carter was acquitted on four, but convicted on 16. President McKinley disapproved findings on 12 counts, but approved four considered the most important.

These charged that Carter had conspired with officials of the Atlanta Construction Co. to defraud the Government to obtain payment of false claims for $230,749 at Savannah and $345,000 at Cumberland Sound.

Carter, then a captain, was dismissed from the army, fined $5000, and sentenced to five years imprisonment at hard labor From Sept. 30, 1899, to Nov. 28, 1903, he was confined at Governor's Island, New York, and at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

The Government sued him in civil courts for $500,000. It obtained securities valued at $370,000 and a deficiency judgment. Two of the construction company officials were indicted, extradited from Canada, fined $575,749 and sentenced to four years imprisonment.

Carter told Senator Duffy that he had been "railroaded" because of animus of political leaders. They wished him removed, he said, because, as a member of the American Canal Commission, he recommended the Panama over the Nicaragua route.

The Chicagoan testified that the securities which the Government obtained from him in the civil suit were left in his possession by a wealthy father-in-law.

War Department records show that the civil suit was contested through the United States Supreme Court, while that tribunal refused to review the conviction of the two construction company officials.

CHARGES NEGLECT COST LIVES OF MANY IN FLORIDA STORM

Witness Tells Legion Committee Enough Trucks to Carry Veterans to Safety Stood Idle.

By the Associated Press.

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 12.—An American Legion investigating committee today was told world war veterans were overwhelmed by a hurricane on the Florida keys while enough trucks to carry all to safety stood idle in the Federal camps.

Arthur Brown, formerly of New York, who served as timekeeper at rehabilitation camp No. 3 on lower Matecumbe where 90 of 242 veterans encamped lost their lives, said the veterans were ready to leave as early as 2 p. m. Monday, Sept. 2.

Emergency mobilization orders went out early in the afternoon of the day the storm struck, and the veterans were ready to board the train for Miami, Brown asserted.

"There was sufficient time to get all the veterans out from camp 3," he said, "and the trucks could have picked up men at camp 5, seven miles to the north, and prevented great loss of life there."

Brown appeared before a committee appointed at the recent Legion convention in St. Louis to investigate the death of more than 300 veterans in the hurricane.

OFFICERS SEEK MOTIVE IN DROWNING OF GIRL

Sweetheart Rushes Into Brookfield (Mo.) Doctor's Office With Body and Collapses.

By the Associated Press.

BROOKFIELD, Mo., Oct. 12.—The banks of Yellow Creek where William Correll, 20-year-old farm youth said he found the body of his sweetheart, Thelma Wolf, were searched today by officers seeking a clew in the drowning of the girl.

Correll collapsed after taking the girl's body to a doctor's office, where she was found to be dead. He told officers the girl said: "Take this, you may need it," as she thrust a note into his pocket a moment before leaving his automobile and diving into the water.

The slip of paper read: "He is not guilty. Don't blame him."

No Indication of Violence.

Tonight, after examination of the drowning scene in a field owned by the girl's father, Prosecuting Attorney Vane C. Thurlo said there was no indication of violence in the girl's death and no reason as yet to doubt Correll's story. An inquest will be held Monday.

Thurlo, after talking with Correll at the farm home of his father today, said the youth told of receiving a telephone call from the girl in Brookfield yesterday asking him to come to town and take her home for the week-end.

As they were driving home, the boy related, he cut into a field where he said Miss Wolf told him her father was waiting. He stopped his car on the banks of the creek. He left the car and called for her father. There was no response.

Pulled Her Out of Water.

Thurlo quoted Correll as saying he plunged into the pool and fought to drag her out. The girl fought him off, he said, and almost dragged him under. He managed, however, to get her onto the bank and into his car, Thurlo said Correll told him, and drove to Brookfield, eight miles away.

The girl rode with her head near the floor, Thurlo said, Correll seeking thus to drain water from her lungs. In Brookfield, Correll aided by four friends, hurried the girl to an office building in search of a doctor.

Thurlo said he learned Correll and Miss Wolfe had quarreled last spring but had made up and had been seen together steadily since. A box found in Correll's car today contained a new house dress the girl had apparently been taking home.

Dr. H. H. Potter, who examined the body, said he found no marks of violence. "We think it was suicide," he said, "but we have not discovered any motive."

MAN AND WIFE SUE HOLC OVER LOAN THEY SAY WAS PROMISED

Mr. and Mrs. John Schmidt Allege Application Later Was Rejected and They Lost Property.

Suit for $22,000 damages was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. John Schmidt, 2332 Menard street, against the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, alleging failure to refinance their property at 6600-02 Michigan avenue.

The petition set forth that the property was encumbered by a deed of trust securing a promissory note for $6000. On Sept. 5, 1934, they applied for a loan of $8000 to refinance the note and they deposited $43 for expenses after receiving notice the loan would be made, according to the petition. Subsequently they were notified the loan would not be made by the Federal agency, in consequence of which the property was sold at foreclosure last March 11, the petition stated.

Schmidt conducted a bakery at the Michigan avenue address, and the petition charged his business was damaged $15,000 as a result of the loss of the property. In addition Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt asserted they suffered a loss in the equity of $7000. They were represented by A. Lowell Morris, Arthur F. Spathe and Alvin F. Hackman as counsel.

A representative of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation declined to comment on the suit.

OFFICIAL SAYS DILLINGER BETRAYER MUST BE DEPORTED

Labor Department Aid Declares She Is Guilty of Moral Turpitude.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Turner Battle, assistant Secretary of Labor, declared today Mrs. Anna Sage, who betrayed John Dillinger to Federal agents, was guilty of moral turpitude and must be deported.

Battle denied that Department of Justice agents promised her , she would not be deported, in return for her services in the Dillinger case The Department of Justice, he added, had no authority to offer immunity from charges not in its jurisdiction. Mrs. Sage, making a court fight to avoid being returned to Rumania on a charge she kept a disorderly house in Indiana, alleged she led Dillinger to his death for a $5000 reward and a promise by Melvin Purvis, Government agent in Chicago, that he would recommend she be permitted to stay in the United States. Purvis confirmed his promise of aid.

REFUSES TO PAY TAX WHILE SALARIES TO NRA GO ON Attorney Hill, Baltimore, Who Successfully Defied Volstead Act, Demands Test Suit.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12. — John Philip Hill, a lawyer today refused to pay a tax of $30.66 for so long as the Secretary of the Treasury "violates his oath under the Constitution" by continuing to pay the salaries and expenses of the defunct NRA. He said he wanted to carry the case as a test to the Supreme Court. The tax is an excise levy on Hill's membership in the Annapolis Roads Club. The Department of Internal Revenue wrote him that if it was not paid his property would be seized and sold "in sufficient amount to satisfy the claim."

In a letter to C. E. Tubman, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue in Baltimore, Hill asserted the NRA was paying more for salaries in July than it did before the Supreme Court ruled it illegal.

Twelve years ago Hill forced a test of the Volstead Act by preparing wine in his cellar and demanding that prohibition authorities notify him "when its alcoholic content becomes illegal." He reported its increasing strength from time to time. When its content rose to 6.31 per cent of alcohol, charges were filed against him for violating the prohibition amendment. He fought the case through the courts and won.

Tipton Girl Killed in Auto Upset.

By the Associated Press.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 12.—Alma Knipp, 21 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Knipp of Tipton, was killed late today when the motor car she was driving turned over south of Tipton. Her companion, Alma Lee Schultz of Tipton, escaped with bruises and slight cuts.

PLAN FOR COLONIZING ITALIANS IN ETHIOPIA

Outline of Work Proposed if Present Invasion Should Be Successful.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 12.—Italy is looking far beyond the immediate problem of the subjugation of Ethiopia to the time when it expects to begin the work of developing that country. As to the methods to be employed, Italians say they have been well tested in Eritrea and Somaliland. First will be the question of constructing roads and developing other means of transportation. Possibly a start would be made on a railroad connecting Massaua and Asmara in Eritrea with Mogadisco, the port of Italian Somaliland, and intersecting the present line from Addis Ababa to Djibouti in which the Italians have a joint interest with the French.

The second problem would be the establishment of friendly relations with the Ethiopians. Then Italy's surplus population would gradually be infiltrated into unoccupied areas and established through some such system as the homesteading projects which the United States employed to settle the West. Many of the troops which have been sent to the colonies are expected to remain on the soil after the military work is completed, sending for their families to join them at some later date.

Exactly how much of what is now designated on the maps as Ethiopia will be included in the colonizing plan is not forecast. This it is pointed out will depend entirely upon the success of Italian arms.

Newspaper Man Killed by Gas.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Pitt P. Hand, 50 years old, former newspaper man and once public relations director for the New York Central Railroad was found dead in bed today of gas poisoning. Police said the bed had been moved, apparently jarring open a gas jet. Last year he was engaged in press relations work for the Century of Progress at Chicago. His widow, a nurse, lives in Washington.

TENANTS SUE FOR DAMAGES

Suit for $65,000 damages was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Attorney Walter A. Hayes in behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard LaCroix, against their former landlords, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Zwick, 5209 South Broadway.

Mr. and Mrs. LaCroix allege that the Zwicks entered their apartment and assaulted them. Hays said that the alleged assault occurred in a quarrel over rent. Zwick said there was a dispute over rent and denied he and his wife had assaulted the LaCroixs.

PLANTER SAYS AAA COTTON PROGRAM FAVORS LANDLORD

Tulane U. Professor Who Also Owns Plantation Favors Revision of Code.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 12.—Spokesmen for the cotton belt said today the Government's acreage reduction program has helped to cure the economic ailments of the cotton producer. They appeared at the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's public inquiry into Southern sentiment regarding the program.

The cure, however, some witnesses said, has not extended to the tenant farmer and sharecropper, labeled by their spokesmen as "the forgotten men" of the New Deal. As it now operates, said H. C. Nixon, professor of political science at Tulane University, New Orleans, and a planter in Alabama, the AAA program is the "landlord's code." "The AAA program has increased purchasing power, but it has not been distributed equally among tenants and sharecroppers," he said.

Attacking absentee ownership as the main source of labor difficulties in the South, Prof. Nixon said he favored continuance of the AAA program with more benefits to the sharecropper. "If we degrade any section of the population," he declared, "we put a chain on every section of it. Sharecroppers do pay taxes, because some of mine have gone barefooted so I could pay the taxes."

MAN JOBLESS TWO YEARS SHOOTS AND KILLS HIMSELF

Fred N. Graddy Dies Two Days After Wife Found Him Wounded in Home.

Fred N. Graddy, 34 years old, died at City Hospital last night from a wound in the right temple, suffered last Thursday. His wife, Mrs. Mary Graddy, found him wounded in a bedroom of their home at 3314 Shenandoah avenue. A revolver with one empty shell was lying nearby.

Mrs. Graddy said he had been unemployed two years and had threatened to end his life.

Former Official Found Dead.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12.—A bellboy today found Charles H. Moore, 62-year-old stationer and former Jackson County Recorder, fatally shot in a hotel room her. A revolver was near him and police found two notes, one addressed to his wife and the other to a business partner. Moore died in the receiving ward of a hospital. Detectives said the notes indicated he had been depressed by worry over business affairs.

CATTLE JUDGING AT DAIRY SHOW TO BE TOMORROW

Attendance Light on Opening Day—Exhibitors Put Finishing Touches on Their Displays.

Exhibitors at the National Dairy Show, which opened at the Arena yesterday, spent the day grooming their charges for the real business of the show—cattle judging, which begins tomorrow — while educational, commercial and other exhibitors were busy putting the final touches on their displays.

Attendance was light—about 11,000, since no special features, except judging of exhibits at the poultry show, had been announced. Practically all of the exhibits, howeveer, were in place and visitors found much to interest them from one end of the Arena grounds to the other.

Winners announced last night in the St. Louis-National Poultry Show included Jessie Rogers, Rogersville, Mo., and F. L. Bossingham, Stanford, Ill., in the Dark Barred Plymouth Rock class; Ralph Sturtevant, Marshfield, Mo., Buff Wyandotte class; E. J. Lang, Affton, St. Louis County, White Plymouth Rock class, and Wesley Rasche, Jackson, Mo., and Mrs. Frank E. Hillgarter, Fulton, Mo., in Single-Comb Rhode Island Red class.

The show officially opened with a parade through West End and downtown streets, participated in by a troop of United States cavalry and 30 girl riders for the horse show which begins tomorrow night.

Special Event Today.

The only special event scheduled for today was the WLS radio barn dance troupe of 32 persons, which will perform in the main building at 2:30 and 8:30 o'clock. An extra admission will be charged.

Cattle-judging will continue each day until Friday. National grand champion bulls and cows will be selected from the 493 animals entered among five breeds — Jersey, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Holstein-Friesian and Ayrshire. Cash prizes totaling $15,000, besides many ribbons and trophies, will be awarded.

Chief among the exhibits are several prepared by the Bureau of Dairy Industry of the Department of Agriculture, and presented in the front lobby of the central building. Motion pictures also are being shown, as a part of the bureau's exhibit, for the benefit of dairymen and others interested in the more fundamental aspects of dairying. Cinema-photographs show the physiological processes in breeding and are intended to give breeders a clearer understanding of the principles underlying inheritance. Other Government exhibits relate to other breeding problems, feeding and trade practices.

A display of paintings and sculptures on rural subjects, presented by the Society of Independent Artists of St. Louis, is on the mezzanine floor of the main building. Beginning tomorrow, demonstrations of painting, batik work, clay modeling, costume designing and print and block cutting will be given by members of the society in a tent north of the Arena.

Cash prizes totaling $1020 will be awarded in the Dairy Milk Derby, which will start tomorrow and continue until Friday. It is open to purebred and grade cows, which will be milked by owners three times daily—once in the Arena at 4 p. m.

The Dairy Show Cooking School, with George Rector, member of the New York restaurant family, in charge, will open tomorrow. The Health Milk Institute, consisting of St. Louis milk dealers, is sponsoring a series of talks on milk, to be presented by food experts afternoons and evenings from a stage near the institute's 130-foot "milk bar."

A two-hour matinee entertainment program, beginning at 3 o'clock tomorrow, will include the milk derby, demonstrations by 4-H clubs, cavalry troop maneuvers, a 100-foot dive by Ray Woods into a 10,000-gallon tank of skimmed milk and an exhibition of the Guernsey herd which Admiral Byrd took to Little America. The latter is housed in a reproduction of the barn used at the Byrd expedition base.

U. S. Forestry Exhibit.

To St. Louisans, who recently have heard much of the Civilian Conservation Corps and of the Government's efforts toward preservation of forests, the large exhibit of the U. S. Forest Service in Building A proved most interesting.

Dominating the exhibit is a scale model showing a typical area where CCC groups, under Forest Service supervision, are put to work. The model, prepared at a camp at Boss, Mo., shows how streams are controlled, erosion prevented, new forests planted and denuded areas revived. A typical CCC camp is laid out, together with a Forest Service headquarters.

In a corner of the exhibit is the top of a 100-foot lookout tower, used in sighting fires. A member of the service is on hand to explain use of the "fire finder" with which fires are sighted and plotted on an oriented chart of the area within view of the tower. After the lookout obtains the direction of a fire he telephones a central office, which in turn notifies other lookouts. The exact location of the fire is then obtained and the nearest CCC camp is ordered to the scene to put out the fire. The equipment and personnel for the exhibit were sent from the Clark national forests in South-Central Missouri.

Visitors at the show yesterday were attracted by the Wisconsin exhibit in the west promenade, which included a 4000-pound cheese, made in Denmark, Wis., and loaned to the State for exhibition. It is about three feet high and six feet in diameter.

A display of the St. Louis and St. Louis County Beekeepers' Association, depicting through a glass-walled hive the process of manufacturing honey, also proved popular.

TOWN CHIEF HEIR UNDER WILL

Lowell, Mich., to Get Most of $1,000,000 at Widow's Death.

AKRON, O., Oct. 12.—The will of Philip H. Schneider, real estate man who died Monday, names the town of Lowell, Mich., with 2000 population, as the principal ultimate beneficiary of his estate ,estimated to be worth $1,000,000. By the terms of the will the money is to be used in that town "to alleviate suffering." Lowell was the boyhood home of Schneider. Under the will the city of Akron will receive a 15-acre tract of land for a botanical garden. City and children's hospitals, and the University of Akron are other beneficiaries.

Mrs. Schneider will receive the income from the estate which will remain intact until her death, except for small trusts and gifts to relatives.

'SHRINE TO GREAT GENTLEMAN,' ROBERT E. LEE, IS DEDICATED

Roosevelt Message Read at Memorial Service in Restored Virginia Mansion.

STRATFORD-ON-THE-POTOMAC, Va., Oct. 12.—Stratford, home of the Lees, was dedicated to the Nation today. In the words of President Roosevelt, as a "shrine to a great gentleman, Robert E. Lee."

Restored by the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, Stratford, the President said, "is equally a permanent memorial to a brave sound civilization for which America will always be grateful."

Mrs. James Delano Roosevelt, the President's mother, listened as Mr. Roosevelt's words were read by Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore.

The dedication oration was by Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman, Richmond editor and student of the Lee family. He spoke in the great hall of the mansion in which General Lee and four other patriots of the Lee family were born.

Dr. Freeman said that citizenship was the loftiest of vocations but that universal suffrage, with a system of contentious primaries and abusive general elections, "will never bring back into public life men like the Lees."

"It would be a potent augury for the future were we to apply to the present homes of our families the zeal we have displayed for preserving the ancestral seats of our heroes," he said.

Belleville Gets Bar Meeting.

MARION, Ill., Oct. 12.—M. J. White of Mount Carmel was elected president of the First District Bar Association here today at the annual meeting, and Belleville was selected for the 1936 gathering. Other officers: Vice-president, Charles H. Thompson of Harrisburg; secretary, Wilber E. Krebs of Belleville; treasurer, H. O. Farmer of Pinckneyville. Morris V. Joyce of East St. Louis was re-elected as a district member of the State Bar Association Board of Governors. Charles P. Megan of Chicago, State Association president, spoke at a banquet tonight.

ENGINEERS TOLD OF NEW ALLOYS USED IN PLANES

J. B. Johnson, Chief of Air Corps Material Section, Addresses Aeronautical Convention.

Recent developments in metallurgy, which have provided new alloys for the construction of airplanes, were discussed yesterday by J. B. Johnson, chief of the material division, United States Army Air Corps, at the closing session of the ninth annual convention of the aeronautical division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at Hotel Chase.

It has been 15 years since aeronautical designers broke away from the practice established during the World War of using wood in the construction of aircraft, he said. Since that time, he explained, the use of aluminum alloys has become extensive as designers learned from experience the fundamental requirements of light weight and strength in the materials to be used.

Use in High-Speed Planes.

All-metal construction will undoubtedly be favored by designers of airplanes operating at speeds in excess of 200 miles an hour, he stated, with the exception of racing craft built for a relatively short life. The alumnium base alloys, he pointed out, are available in a wide range of tempers, varying from the very malleable 99 per cent pure aluminum to the heat-treated alloys with a tensile strength of 70,000 pounds per square inch.

He attributed the wide use of these alloys not only to the research that uncovered their useful qualities, but also to the control in producing uniform sheets and sections of the alloys by regulating its manufacture.

"The corrosion of the aluminum alloys has been thoroughly investigated under a wide range of atmospheric conditions," he continued. "The alloys are susceptible to surface corrosion which causes pitting and the formation of aluminum oxide, similar to rust. Those which contain copper as the principal alloying element are susceptible to an inter-crystalline attack extending below the surface of the metal and causing a loss of ductility and strength."

These pits and inter-crystalline decay cannot be tolerated in airplanes which are subjected to great stresses, he said, and protective organic coverings, such as oil enamel and lacquers, have a relatively short life and are destroyed by weathering and abrasion, and must be renewed.

Pure Aluminum as Coating.

Metallurgical research has shown, the speaker stated, that high purity aluminum is exceedingly resistant to pitting and crystalline decay, and can be coated over the alloy at the mill and become an integral part of the sheet for airplane covering. He related the results of a recently completed service test on two airplanes, which had been in service for four years under practically the same conditions. One was constructed with an aluminum alloy surface and the other with pure aluminum coating over its covering of the same alloy.

"There was no visible deterioration in either case," he reported, "but tensile specimens cut from the thin sheet metal surfaces indicated that the uncoated alloy had lost 20 per cent of its original strength and 80 per cent of its ductility, whereas the coated sheet retained its original properties."

Testing of Materials.

Other papers, dealing with new methods of testing aeronautical materials and parts, were read at the session by D. M. Warner, testing engineer for the United States Army Air Corps, and N. L. Mochel, metallurgical engineer for the Westinghouse Electric Co.

Following the morning session, delegates made an inspection tour of Lambert-St. Louis Field and the airplane factories there. A demonstration of blind flying with the use of two-way radio communication was given by Army Air Corps aviators from Scott Field, Belleville. The public address system at the air field was connected with the two-way broadcast to enable the delegates to hear the instructions as they were broadcast. Stunt and formation flying exhibits were given also by Missouri National Guard and Naval Reserve units.

An informal dinner and smoker was held in the evening, followed by a demonstration of night flying by Missouri National Guard flyers.

Historical Society Given Replicas of Spirit of St. Louis Medals.

The Missouri Historical Society announced yesterday it had been presented with bronze replicas of all Spirit of St. Louis aeronautical medals awarded by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. All are the same, except for the names of the recipient.

The 1935 award was given posthumously Friday night to Will Rogers, humorist and air traveler, who was killed with Wiley Post in a plane crash in Alaska. Rogers had been named for the award, before his death, for his encouragement of aviation.

Fight Over Flag and Oath Laws Stirs Massachusetts

Growing Opposition to Acts Requiring Pupils to Salute Banner and Teachers to Pledge Loyalty to Constitution.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oc 12.—Massachusetts is in bitter turmoil over its laws requiring school children to salute the flag and teachers to swear allegiance to state and Federal Constitutions.

In Lynn, an 8-year-old boy, Carleton Nichols Jr., was expelled from school for refusing to obey the state law which requires a weekly salute to the flag. He is preparing to continue his education at home with a Harvard graduate for a tutor.

At Saugus, six children who, like the Nichols boy, are members of a sect called Jehovah's Witnesses, which regards homage to the flag as incompatible with homage to God, also refused to comply with the law. The town school committee, before taking disciplinary action, will hold a private conference with their parents Monday night, hoping they will recant.

Genesis of Situation.

The current agitation goes back to the closing days of the last session of the Legislature.

Sponsored by the American Legion and introduced by Representative Thomas Dordan, Boston veteran, a bill was pushed through ov the practically unanimous opposition of Massachusetts college heads, providing that every teacher must take the following oath:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of the position of . . . according to the best of my ability."

The law, signed by Gov. James M. Curley, stipulated that teachers already in service on Oct. 1 must take the oath within 60 days and others before entering on their duties. The bill carried no penalties.

At Harvard University, oldest institution of higher learning in the United States, opposition to the required oath has been led by Prof. Kirtley F. Mather, note. geologist, who insists that the oath is both humiliating and discriminating.

Father, Lawyer Involved.

The case of young Nichols ultimately involved both his father and the latter's attorney, Edward Holton James, nephew of Henry James, the noted author, and of William James, the equally famous psychologist.

The father and his lawyer went to the lad's school to see him decline his last opportunity to salute the flag and both were arrested for disturbing a school session.

James paid a $25 fine but Nichols, a machinist who lives with his wife and two other young children in a flat over a neighborhood store, appealed and says he intends to carry his fight to the United States Supreme Court, if necessary.

The Nichols boy says the flag "is the symbol of the devil." The school committee says he can't go to school unless he salutes it.

ST. LOUIS DEPARTMENT STORE SALES GAIN 18 PCT. IN WEEK

31 Pct. Over Year Ago, Department of Commerce Reports; Collections "Very Good."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Department of Commerce reported today that St. Louis department store sales during the week ended Wednesday increased 18 per cent over the previous week and 31 per cent over the corresponding week of 1934.

Colder weather accounted for "good gains" over the previous week in the Kansas City retail trade, the department said.

The department reported recent cool weather had helped the movement of seasonal merchandise both in urban centers and country areas in the St. Louis territory. Some spottiness was reported in wholesale lines, "but generally recent high rate of activity has been well sustained."

Collections were reported "very good." Further "moderate gains" were made in employment of a seasonal character. Public works and private building showed steady improvement.

German Radio Bars "Negro Jazz."

By the Associated Press.

MUNICH, Germany, Oct. 12. — "Negro Jazz" was banned today from Germany's 26 broadcasting stations to "finish once and for all with those subversive elements still influencing our dance music." Eugene Hadamovsky, radio director of the Reich, announced the order. "Negro jazz, in the form it is being imported here," he asserted, "is a product of primitives. It belongs in museums of ethnology."

MILK DRIVER SAYS THREE YOUNG WOMEN ROBBED HIM

Says She Appeared to Have Pistol; Took His $1.25 and Threatened Him.

Wilfred Freund, milk wagon driver, told St. Louis County officers that he was robbed by three young women who held him up while he was on his way to work yesterday morning.

He related that he was driving on North and South road when at Page boulevard the women hailed him. He stopped for them, he reported and drove to Olive Street road, where one passenger, who, Freund said, was about 20 years old, had dark hair and wore a red dress, pointed what he believed was a pistol at him and directed, "give us your money, and get out of the car."

Freund handed over $1.25, he told police, and started to walk away, and the woman, who had taken the steering wheel, stalled the engine. The woman with the pistol ordered him to return and start the engine. When he was unable to get it started, the woman threatened to shoot him, he asserted. The women abandoned the machine and departed on foot. Freund later drove to Clayton and reported the holdup.

AMERICAN SHIPPING FIRM IN CHINA QUITS

Sells River Fleet With Result U. S. Flag Has Virtually Disappeared on Yangtze.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, China, Oct. 12. — The Stars and Stripes have all but disappeared from the Yangtze River, as a result of the sale of the merchant fleet of the Yangtze Rapid Steamship Co. to British and Chinese interests. Today, two or three ancient steamboats and several oil tankers are all that remain of American shipping on that river. The nine little express boats of the old Yangtze Rapid Steamship Co.'s fleet are still doing service. But six of them are carrying the Chinese flag and the remainder the Union Jack. They are among the swiftest boats on the river, and they travel with ease the rapids of the upper Yangtze which are closed to all but the most powerful steamers. Shipping men here agree that the break-up of the fleet is a severe blow to American shipping prestige in this part of the world.

The Yangtze Rapid Steamship Co. was not the pioneer American shipping company on the Yangtze River, but it was the last of any importance. For the last 10 years, it alone has kept the American flag flying up and down the full length of the Yangtze from Shanhai to Chungking, in competition with British, Japanese and Chinese lines.

The American shipping concern passed successfully through many Critical periods in the history of shipping, including several civil wars. But the world-wide depression, hitting China with full force this year, finally forced the company to suspend business.

American gunboats which have been stationed along the Yangtze River for the protection of American lives and property will have little left to protect, with the passing of the American merchant fleet. For several years it has been customary for the Yangtze rapid boats to carry guards of sailors on the upper reaches of the river.

Man, 107; Wife, 91, Who Do Own Work

MR. and MRS. THOMAS A. FOGERTY.

Debut of Leiter Heiress.

BEVERLY, Mass., Oct. 12. — A harvest moon glowed tonight on the debutante party of Miss Nancy Leiter, daughter of the late Joseph Leiter of Chicago. Dinner was served on the terrace of Edgewater House, Leiter Mansion. Guests sat in golden-hued chairs within a specially constructed tent decorated with autumn flowers and foliage. Miss Leiter inherited $1,300,000 on her eighteenth birthday last November.

MAN, 107, TELLS HOW TO LIVE LONG TIME

Take Walks, Sleep Well, Be Friendly and Use No Liquor or Tobacco.

Thomas A. Fogerty, who used to have jobs as a grocery clerk, porter, deputy market master at the Union Market, and watchman for the Police Department, will celebrate his 108th birthday on Dec. 10 in company with his wife, Mary, who is 91 years old.

The Fogertys live in a modest five-room flat at 5029 Highland avenue. He gets up every morning to make the fire. She does all the housework, including washing and baking. They were married in 1903 when Fogerty was 75 and his wife was 59.

Born in County Kilkenny, Ireland, Fogerty came to St. Louis at an early age. He is pink-cheeked, with a good crop of hair. He usually doesn't wear his glasses when he reads but in talking to him it's necessary to write out most of the questions.

Whenever any one disputes his age, he gets his naturalization paper out of the dresser drawer and holds it out for inspection. Issued to him in the spring of 1868, it gives his age as 40 at that time. He says they never did issue birth certificates in County Kilkenny.

His receipe for long living, he says, is about as follows: No liquor, no tobacco, long walks, good sleep, and a friendly attitude toward everyone. He is a consistent reader of the Bible and both he and his wife are members of Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church.

Fogerty was married the first time in 1870, when he was 42 years old. He had four childen by that marriage, one of whom, Mrs. Mary Gordon, 5253 Maffitt avenue, is still living. Mrs. Fogerty had 13 children by her first marriage of whom only one, a son, is still living. He is Joseph Britton, who resides on Elizabeth avenue, Ferguson. Britton supports the Fogertys now but they hope they'll be able to get an old age pension.

When a Post-Dispatch photographer snapped a picture of them yesterday Mrs. Fogerty said jokingly: "If that gets in the paper, they'll know how old I am. Then I'll never be able to get another man."

HAUPTMANN GUARDED TO PREVENT SUICIDE

Three Attendants to Take Turns at Watching Him in Death House.

(Copyright, 1935.)

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 12. — An augmented guard was set today over Bruno Richard Hauptmann in the death house at the State Penitentiary, to prevent any attempt at suicide. Hauptmann, convicted of murdering Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., has withstood well the shock of learning that his appeal was denied by the State's highest court, but Warden Mark O. Kimberlin is taking no chances of Hauptmann's taking his own life.

As the time for his execution, which now seems certain before Christmas, Hauptmann's nerve shows signs of breaking, prison attaches say. In addition to the usual death-house guards, three new attendants have been added, with instructions not to let Hauptmann out of the sight of one of them day or night. They must report every movement he makes in his cell.

While Warden Kimberling is concerned with preventing a suicide attempt, there is another reason for the precautions. That is the fact that Hauptman twice escaped from jail in Germany. The death-house here is not escape-proof, for another condemned man once slipped out of it to temporary freedom.

Because of good behavior, Hauptmann is permitted certain liberties in the prison. He was allowed to write his autobiography. And he is allowed to play cards through the cell bars with one of his guards. But another guard, now, is detailed to see that Hauptmann makes no sudden move which the closer guard might not anticipate.

Hauptmann's attorneys continued today to plan an appeal to the United States Supreme Court. They were considering two moves, one a writ of certiorari, which would result in a new trial, and the other a writ of habeas corpus, which if granted might turn Hauptmann free and prevent his re-trial. The latter suggestion was made by the New York Law Journal.

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard in Flemington will re-sentence Hauptmann to death, and set a new date for his execution, within a few days. The execution date will be from 30 to 60 days after the re-sentencing.

MAN LEAPS 165 FEET TO DEATH

Ends Life in Jump from High Bridge in Seattle.

SEATTLE, Oct. 12.—A man identified from letters he left as William L. Gust, a manufacturer's agent, leaped 165 feet to his death from the Aurora bridge into Lake Union today. Several persons witnessed the leap.

Five letters, found in an overcoat left on the bridge, were signed with Gust's name. One addressed to Mrs. Lillian Gust, told her she would "not have to get a divorce now," police said. Thirteen other persons have killed themselves in leaps from the span. Four have survived.

MILK FARMERS PROPOSE 60 TO 90 DAY STRIKE TRUCE

Chicago Dealers Decline, However, to Enter Into Negotiations for the Present.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Strikers in the 13-day-old milk strike came forward today with a proposal for a 30 to 60 day truce, but dealers spurned the proffer for the present.

A committee representing Northern Illiois and Southern Wisconsin farmers who are withholding milk from the Chicago market laid their case before Dr. Herman Bundesen, president of the Board of Health. The members asserted they would suspend their embargo for a one or two month's guaranteed $1.75 a hundredweight for their product and if all strikers were reinstated on their markets. They also declared their original objective—a price of $2.50—would remain unchanged.

The Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., combination of 115 Chicago dairies, declined to enter negotiations until the producers determined which selling agency they preferred. Paul Potter, secretary of the organization, said: "We prefer to wait until sentiment among the dairy farmers has crystallized and they know whether they want to stay with the Pure Milk Association, recognize the new rival Union Producers, sell direct to the dealers or market through brokers."

The Pure Milk Association is the marketing agency for 18,000 farmers. It opposed the strike. Dr. Bundesen estimated 55 per cent of the normal milk supply was reaching Chicago.

'HOCUS POCUS PREVALENT IN ARCHITECTURAL EDUCATION'

Dean Hudnut of Harvard Says Students Should Not Design What They Can't Build.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. — Joseph Hudnut, dean of architecture at Harvard, in a paper prepared today for the American Institute of Architects, said: "Students of architecture should not design buildings which they cannot build. Our architecture has lost its vitality, its power to command our imagination and to interpret our civilization. What is needed is some integration of these two elements in our art.

"Hocus pocus is especially prevalent in that quaint activity which we call architectural education." He said that in New York City a society of architects has imported from Paris "ingenious conceits."

"And yet the actual educational technic of this group consists in eating a good dinner once every six weeks," and making 400 architectural awards.

"It occasions not the least surprise to learn that scarcely one of the competitors could built even a part of the structure that he has designed."

RESORTS REOPENED IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Gambling Revived After Brief Halt During Legion Convention.

Vice resorts and gambling in East St. Louis, halted briefly during the recent American Legion convention here, have been reopened.

When word of threatened police raids went out just before the convention, vice resorts in the district known as The Valley were darkened, handbooks were closed, slot machines were covered or whisked away into basements and baffle boards were no longer displayed openly. Only the lotteries called policy games or numbers, catering almost wholly to Negroes, continued to operate.

With the convention over, The Valley reopened and the 15 or more handbooks in the city began again to be crowded. By yesterday nearly all the slot machines and baffle boards had appeared again.

The slot machines, most of them said to be owned by an East St. Louis liquor dealer, are in taverns, pool halls, cigar stores, drugstores and other places where men congregate. Some of them are in metal cabinets with sliding covers.

"Sure, they're back again," the proprietor of a drugstore told a Post-Dispatch reporter, "and it's a good thing for me, too, because I've been paying my rent out of the machines. The owner of the machnes and the storekeepeer split the take fifty-fifty, you know."

The baffle boards are said to be owned largely by an attorney, with one extensive string, and a tavernkeeper with another. They were opened to customers yesterday. Occasional police raids have resulted in confication of some slot machines. There are about 25 of them in police headquarters as the results of raids during the past year.

MERAMEC CEMENT CO. ORDERED LIQUIDATED

It Is Adjudged Bankrupt After Attempt to Reorganize Fails.

The Meramec Portland Cement & Material Co., was adjudged bankrupt and ordered liquidated by Federal Judge Davis yesterday after George Ratermann, president, had informed him the company had been unable to make financial arrangements for re-organization.

Elmer E. Pearcy, an attorney, was appointed trustee by Judge Davis with instructions to wind up the affairs of the company "with utmost dispatch." He was instructed that attorneys' fees and other costs incident upon the unsuccessful attempt to re-organization be first leins against the assets.

The company has its main office and yard at 1701 South Vandeventer avenue, a plant at Sherman, Mo., and yards at 7600 North Broadway and 1576 North and South road, St. Louis County.

With only $4.18 in its cash drawer, the company filed a petition last July for reorganization under the amended bankruptcy act. Its assets were listed at $488,883, including real estate, buildings and machinery, all covered by mortgages which were said to be in default. Liabilities were set at $457,713, exclusive of capital stock, $400,000 at par value.

$100,000 GIFT TO RED CROSS

Gold Miner in Will Makes Bequest to Canadian Society.

By the Associated Press.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 12.—A retired gold miner's bequest of $100,000 to the Canadian Red Cross Society to "help them in the good work they are doing for sick women and children in the northern part of Canada" was revealed today in application for probate of the will of William Richardson Will. To his partners in mining operations will left his interest in the Capella mines at New Denver, B. C.

The estate is roughly estimated at $128,000 in cash, real estate and securities. Legacies to nieces and nephews were for $1500 and $2000 each.

U. S. WORK RELIEF PROGRAM IS FAR BEHIND SCHEDULE

Chance of Reaching Goal of Jobs for 3,100,000 (400,000 Below Original Mark) on Time, Remote.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. — Not only has the goal of 3,500,000 jobs on work relief by the end of October been shaved to 3,150,000 by Works Progress Administration officials, but some concede privately that there is little likelihood of ending the Federal dole by Nov. 1. With less than three weeks remaining, only six states have been cut off direct relief.

Furthermore, delays in approving WPA projects—which must provide at least 2,500,000 jobs for the early stages of the $4,000,000,000 program —combined with the slowness of Comptroller-General J. R. McCarl's office in releasing allotments, cast doubt even on attainment of the reduced 3,150,000 job goal by the end of the month.

Sept. 10 had been set by President Roosevelt for submission of the last applications, and Sept. 24 for the last allotments, but WPA applications still streamed in. Harry L. Hopkins' agency will have at least $1,040,000,000 to spend, but additional projects involving about $1,500,000,000 remain to be approved to give state administrators a wide choice in providing work relief jobs.

2,033,746 Jobs to Be Found.

The latest compilation showed 1,126,234 at work, leaving 2,023,746 jobs to be provided.

No date has been set for the last direct relief allotments, although some officials asserted another $100,000,000 would be sufficient. The dole is costing $65,000,000 this month.

Even after attainment of the goal of 3,150,000 jobs, work for 350,000 others must be found, a large number of unemployables must be transferred to states and communities, and funds must be provided for the support of those laid off during the time needed to start new projects after old ones are completed.

Of the $1,040,000,000 WPA allotment, half is still under study at McCarl's office and is not available for spending.

Slum Clearance.

Among recent relief activities was a public works purchase of sites for three slum clearance developments, including two at Louisville, where the Federal Circuit Court had held up condemnation proceedings on the ground the Government lacked this power to condemn land for housing purposes. Also, after many delays, a special committee approved most of the highway and grade crossing elimination programs to be financed from a $400,000,000 work relief allotment.

In addition to the two Louisville projects—neither of which, however, will be on the original site—PWA bought a site at Fort Worth, Tex., and awarded a contract for the construction of a third development in Cleveland.

Replies to Charge of Politics.

Aubrey Williams, acting Works Progress Administrator, said today in an interview that people sympathetic with President Roosevelt's program had obtained the preponderance of positions on WPA administrative staffs over the country. He denied, however, that it was necessary to be a Democrat to get such jobs.

Asked regarding newspaper reports that applicants for staff positions in the Springfield (Mo.) district had been told there was no use applying unless they were Democrats, Williams said he knew nothing about the situation there and did not consider newspaper accounts a sufficient basis for investigation. "We wouldn't tolerate it if we found out it was a fact," he declared.

$4300 GIVEN IN CAMPAIGN FOR $20,000 FOR FREE CLINICS

Solicitation of Funds for Central Institute for Deaf to Close Friday.

Contributions of $4300 have been made in the campaign to secure $20,000 for the support of the free clinics of the Central Institute for the Deaf, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Max A. Goldstein and Mrs. Border S. Veeder, co-chairmen of the campaign. The campaign will close Friday.

Enrollment for the free clinics in speech correction and lip reading was higher this fall than in any previous year, Miss Julia M. Connery, principal of the institute, said yesterday. There are 66 persons now attending the clinics, a number which was expected to increase materially later, she said.

Philippine Election Certified.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 12.—Election of Manuel Quezon as first President of the Philippine Commonwealth by more votes than his two opponents combined was certified to Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy today by the Insular Legislature. The official totals were: Quezon, 695,332; Emilio Aguinaldo, Nationalist, 179,349; Bishop Gregorio Aglipay, Republican, 148,010. For vice-president: Sergio Osmena, Quezon's running mate on the Coalition ticket comprising Quezon's Nationalist-Democratic party and Osmena's National Pro-Independence group, 812,352; Raymundo Melliza, Nationalist, 70,889; Norberto Nabong, 51,433. Aguinaldo won in two provinces and Aglipay one.

FORMER CCC MEMBER CRITICISES DISCHARGES

Says Many Are Listed as Dismissed to Accept Job Who Have No Prospect.

After reading a news dispatch from Washington stating that the War Department had selected 115,927 unmarried youths and World War veterans to replace men leaving Civilian Conservation Corps camps to accept private jobs, John W. Goheen, 306A Market street, told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he had been discharged from a CCC camp "to accept other employment," although he had no prospect of a job and is still unemployed.

Goheen said he knew of other men, formerly employed with him at a CCC camp at Warrensburg, Mo., whose discharge papers also bore the notation, "discharged to accept other employment," but who had no prospects of employment at the time of their discharge and, in many cases, had been forced to apply for relief.

Goheen was employed at the Warrensburg camp from Aug. 2, 1934, to Sept. 5, 1935. His discharge certificate was mailed to him a few weeks ago from CCC divisional headquarters at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. He said the reason for his discharge was that he broke camp rules by "getting drunk."

"I never told any of the officers that I expected to get another job," Goheen said, "and yet, when my discharge paper was sent to me, it said that I left to accept other employment. There were many others at the camp whose discharge papers had the same notation, and while I don't know why they were discharged, I do know it was not because they had other jobs in prospect. Many of them had to go on relief after they left camp."

Lieut. J. D. Crichton, United States Naval Reserve, in temporary charge of the camp at Warrensburg, whose name was signed to Goheen's discharge papers, told the Post-Dispatch on the telephone that the notation "to accept other employment" was made on discharge papers only in cases where the worker specifically stated that he had obtained another job. He said that some workers, however, desiring to obtain discharges, told the officers they had outside jobs merely to obtain discharges, although they had no prospects of employment. He said he recalled Goheen had been disciplined several times for breaking camp rules and that Goheen told him he had another job before he obtained his discharge.

"When one of our workers tells us he has a chance to obtain another job and wants a discharge for that reason, we accept his statement without requiring any other evidence," said Lieut. Crichton. "I do not recall a single instance in which a discharge paper stated the man was to obtain another job, where we did not first obtain a statement from him that he had obtained other employment and was leaving for that reason."

Fortune Assessed at $983,637; Son and Son-in-Law Entitled to $46,720 as Executors.

A state inheritance tax of $22,486 was assessed yesterday against the estate of Mrs. Julia S. Straub, widow of August W. Straub, president of the old International Bank.

Her estate was appraised at a gross value of $983,637 by Vincent Dempsey, who was appointed by Probate Judge Glendy B. Arnold to determine the inheritance assessment.

Mrs. Straub, who resided at 3925 Flora place, and died April 15, bequeathed the bulk of her property to her daughter, Mrs. W. Fred Anheuser and to her son, Arthur O. Straub. Her son and son-in-law were appointed executors. They are entitled to commissions totaling $46,720, while the fee of their attorneys, the firm of Rassieur, Long & Yawitz, was set at $12,500, as shown in the appraiser's report.

INVENTOR LOSES $11,000 SUIT

Verdict for Defendants in Action Over Oven Patent.

A verdict in favor of Harry Rottersmann and Joseph C. Wismann was returned by a jury yesterday in Circuit Judge John W. Joynt's court in a suit charging them with breach of contract. The suit was filed by Louis D. Houlis of Cincinnati, who alleged they were indebted to him in the sum of $11,108 under an agreement to pay him royalties in connection with a revolving oven patented by him.

The agreement was made in September, 1931. Rottersman and Wismann are officers of the Advance Oven Co., 930 Chouteau avenue. The patent owned by Houlis was installed in bakery ovens, and the defendants in the suit were given exclusive right to sell the device in Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska. The defendants denied being indebted to Houlis and asserted he had accepted $500 in settlement of his claim.

'QUEEN OF BIAS BAY PIRATES' IS AWAITING TRIAL IN CHINA

Tan Ching-Chao, 31, Proud of Her Exploits; Helped to Kill Ship Officer.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, China, Oct. 12. — A comely young woman who boasts of her exploits at a leader of pirate gangs is awaiting trial in a military prison here, on charges which carry the penalty of death.

She is Miss Tan Ching-Chao, 31-year-old "Queen of Bias Bay Pirates," who, according to military authorities, has admitted complicity in several recent piracies along the South China coast.

Most brazen of the crimes in which Miss Tan declares she had a part was the attack on the steamship Taiyi in which a ship officer was killed and thousands of dollars worth of loot obtained by a pirate band.

Miss Tan said she boarded the boat as a passenger, carrying a bundle which she told questioners was a dying baby. Actually, however, the bundle contained a small arsenal of eight pistols, which were passed out to accomplices when the ship put to sea. The attack followed, and the pirates escaped in small boats.

The young woman was twice married. Her first husband, a pirate leader, was killed in a mutiny of his subordinates and her second mate is still pursuing the profession of piracy somewhere along the China coast.

Belding to Buy Hose Factory.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A decision to acquire the Propper, McCallum Company, Inc., hosiery manufacturers, was announced today by Raymond C. Kramer, president of the Belding Heminway Company. Propper stockholders will vote on the move Nov. 12 and Belding Heminway stockholders will act Nov. 15. The Propper Company operates plants in New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. Heminway, known as Belding Heminway Corticelli, is one of the largest manufacturers of thread and a distributor of silk fabrics and hosiery. The new company will be known as the Belding-Heminway Company.

OFFICES TO BEGIN MOVING INTO NEW FEDERAL BUILDING

Transfer Starting Tuesday Is Expected to Take Until Nov. 18, and Cost Will Be $13,450.

The tedious task of moving 50 Government offices into the new Federal Building at Twelfth boulevard and Market street will begin Tuesday.

Transfer of all of the offices, now quartered in the old Federal Building at Eighth and Olive streets, in the old Customs House at Third and Olive streets, and in office buildings throughout the downtown district, will not be finished until Nov. 18, according to Fountain Rothwell, Collector of Customs and Custodian of Federal Properties, who announced yesterday the schedule of moving days for each office.

Cost of transporting the voluminous records, books, files and furniture will be $13,450. About 70 per cent of the furniture now in the old offices will be moved to the new quarters, including many of the heavy wooden pieces used in the old Federal Building since it was opened in 1884.

First Offices to Move.

First offices to move will be those of the Army District Engineer, the Clerk of the Circuit Court of Appeals and the Library of the Court of Appeals. The Engineer expects to be in the new quarters by Wednesday night, but it will not be until the following Monday that the records of the Circuit Court Clerk and the books of the library will be in place.

On Wednesday a new postoffice, to be known as Plaza Station, will be moved into the building. The Central Station, in the Eighth and Olive building, will remain as a financial office, giving the same service as it does now, except that it will have no delivery section. The letter carriers now operating from the Central Station will have their headquarters in the new building after Wednesday. The Cupples Station, at Seventh and Spruce, streets, and the City Hall office will be abandoned and those services transferred to the new branch.

Moving Schedule.

Schedule announced for moving of other offices is as follows;

MAKERS OF REM INTRODUCE REL
1/2 MINUTE HEAD COLD RELIEF
REL IS AS GOOD FOR HEAD COLDS AS REM IS FOR COUGHS
MEDICINE never stands still! Every day research is discovering new ways to relieve the ills that make us miserable.
Now something new has been developed for head colds . . . something better . . . and it's called REL Head Cold Jelly.
REL the result of 137 different experiments!
REL didn't just happen. It started out with the big advantage of 49 years of pharmaceutical experience of the makers of REM. Then a study was made of the good and bad points of existing remedies. There were many consultations with distinguished physicians, pharmacists, chemists and pharmacologists. One hundred and thirty-seven different experiments were made. Clinical tests were conducted in actual cases under careful medical supervision.
The result was REL, the finest thing yet for head colds.
Make this One-Side Nose Test
Put a little REL Head Cold Jelly up just one side of your nose. Wait a few seconds—and see what happens! First you'll note a delightful, refreshing "pine woods" odor. Then you'll feel that side of the nostril open—clearly—all the way up. That "stuffed up" feeling is gone! You breathe freely and naturally again! And the other side—what a difference!
REL is as good for head colds as REM is for coughs!
Try it—you'll say it's the finest thing for head colds you have ever used!

OFFICES TO BEGIN MOVING INTO NEW FEDERAL BUILDING

Transfer Starting Tuesday Is Expected to Take Until Nov. 18, and Cost Will Be $13,450.

The tedious task of moving 50 Government offices into the new Federal Building at Twelfth boulevard and Market street will begin Tuesday.

Transfer of all of the offices, now quartered in the old Federal Building at Eighth and Olive streets, in the old Customs House at Third and Olive streets, and in office buildings throughout the downtown district, will not be finished until Nov. 18, according to Fountain Rothwell, Collector of Cuctoms and Custodian of Federal Properties, who announced yesterday the schedule of moving days for each office.

Cost of transporting the voluminous records, books, files and furniture will be $13,450. About 70 per cent of the furniture now in the old offices will be moved to the new quarters, including many of the heavy wooden pieces used in the old Federal Building since it was opened in 1884.

First Offices to Move.

First offices to move will be those of the Army District Engineer, the Clerk of the Circuit Court of Appeals and the Library of the Court of Appeals. The Engineer expects to be in the new quarters by Wednesday night, but it will not be until the following Monday that the records of the Circuit Court Clerk and the books of the library will be in place.

On Wednesday a new postoffice, to be known as Plaza Station, will be moved into the building. The Central Station, in the Eighth and Olive building, will remain as a financial office, giving the same service as it does now, except that it will have no delivery section. The letter carriers now operating from the Central Station will have their headquarters in the new building after Wednesday. The Cupples Station, at Seventh and Spruce, streets, and the City Hall office will be abandoned and those services transferred to the new branch.

Moving Schedule.

Schedule announced for moving of other offices is as follows:

Internal Revenue Agent, Oct. 21-23.

Geological Survey, Coast Guard and United States Commissioner, Oct. 21.

Alcohol Tax Unit, Oct. 23-25.

Upper Mississippi Division, Army Engineers, Oct. 26-28.

Bureau of Accounts, Interstate Commerce Commission, Oct. 29-30.

Federal Judges George H. Moore and Charles B. Davis, United States District Attorney and assistants, United States Marshal, Clerk of the District Court, Probation Officer, Secret Service, Collector of Customs, Assistant Custodian of Federal Properties and District Ordnance office, Oct. 30-Nov. 1.

Collector of Internal Revenue, Nov. 2-8.

Narcotic agents and Intelligence Unit of Internal Revenue Bureau, Nov. 4.

Divisional Disbursing Office, Nov. 6 and Nov. 8.

Post Office Inspectors, Nov. 8.

Market News, Fruit and Vegetable Inspection Service and Civil Service Commission office, Nov. 8, 9, and 11.

Immigration and Naturalization Service, Nov. 9.

Lighthouse service, Customs Appraiser and Army recruiting office, Nov. 11-13.

Accounts and Land Values office of Interstate Commerce Commission, Navy recruiting office, Steamboat and Locomotive Inspection Services and Inspection of Naval Materials Bureau, Nov. 12.

Federal Grain Supervision office, Weather Bureau and Referee in Bankruptcy, Nov. 14-15.

Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Nov. 15-16.

National bank examiners, Nov. 14-16.

Biological Survey, Meat Inspection Laboratory, Bureau of Animal Industry and Food and Drug Administration, Nov. 16.

Space for Relief Workers.

The only quarters in the Eighth and Olive building which will remain in the hands of the old occupants after removals are completed, besides the postoffice, will be the printing office in the basement, for which no provision has yet been made in the new building. However, as rapidly as the offices are vacated, they will be reoccupied by relief workers who will compile a card index of the 1900 census for use in administering the old-age pension law. It is planned eventually to employ 3000 persons in the work. About 150 already are busy in the courtroom of the Court of Appeals, which has recently been idle.

CLASH AT NEW YORK COLUMBUS DAY RALLY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Fighting resulted when anti-Fascists held a rally in Columbus Circle today alongside a meeting in memory of Columbus' discovery of America, at which Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia were to speak.

The anti-Fascists displayed posters ridiculing him, Mussolini, and the Italian-Americans waiting to hear the Governor speak attacked the bearers.

More than 3500 had gathered to hear the Governor and the Mayor and about 2500 had assembled for the anti-Fascist meeting across the square.

The fighting, in which only bruises were inflicted, did not spread beyond the fringe between the two crowds. Mounted policemen separated the groups. Gov. Lehman and Mayor LaGuardia decided to adjourn the meeting to the Central Park mall, where the anti-Fascists had no license to meet.

COUNTY WATER CO. EMPLOYE KILLED BY ELECTRIC SHOCK

Philip Hawkins, 52 years old, an assistant operator at the St. Louis County Water Co. pumping station at Howard's Bend on the Missouri River, died yesterday of a skull injury and burns suffered when he touched a high tension wire and fell from a stepladder on the roof of the station.

No one saw the accident, but when the man's body touched the wires, which carry 33,000 volts, the power was turned off by an automatic relay. Pumping at the station was delayed 20 minutes. Vance Lischer, superintendent of the station, said Hawkins had gone to the roof to make his weekly inspection of equipment. He said Hawkins probably touched the wire with his shoulder as his shirt was badly burned.

Hawkins, who resided at Chesterfield, St. Louis County, was taken to County Hospital, where he died two hours later.

YOUTH PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN KILLING OF SWEETHEART

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Glenn Brasser, 20-year-old former choir boy charged with killing of Muriel Hall, 17, his high school sweetheart, entered a formal plea of not guilty to a charge of murder in the first degree, in City Court here today. He was held for a hearing Nov. 20.

Brasser appeared in court with Maurice G. Lynn, his former Sunday school teacher, as his attorney. Lynn asked Judge William J. Tompkins for the adjournment so he could prepare his case. He also asked the privilege of a hearing at any time before the adjournment date. Both requests were granted.

Funeral services for the girl Brasser is accused of strangling because she refused to marry him, were held at Fairport, a suburb, where she lived with her fostermother before coming to Rochester about a month ago. Brasser sent a wreath of flowers to the girl's funeral.

HERSCHEL ALT GETS LEAVE

To Study Social Conditions in Pennsylvania for Six Weeks.

Herschel Alt, executive secretary of the St. Louis Children's Aid Society, has been granted a six-week leave of absence to complete a study of some of the social conditions in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, Pennsylvania.

Alt is completing the work at the request of a citizens' committee of Pittsburgh. He was one of 30 welfare workers who began the survey and was put in charge of the division of dependency and social case work. Miss Edith Baker, also of St. Louis, assisted in the study made of hospital social services.

1936 PULITZER PRIZE FOR REPORTER'S WORK

New Formula Based on Getting and Writing Story Under Pressure of Time.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The 1936 Pulitzer Prize for the best example of a newspaper reporter's work will be awarded to the news story most ably reflecting the craftsmanship of the working press in gathering and writing news, Dean Carl W. Ackerman of the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism said today in making known the new formula of the Schools' Advisory Board for determining the bestowal of the annual prize.

The purpose of the revision, Ackerman said, is to bring public recognition to the reporter who produced his story under the exigencies of newspaper deadlines.

The board believes that "ability and judgment," and not "public service," as in the past, should be the criterion of good reporting, he said. The new formula for awarding the prize reads:

"For a distinguished example of a reporter's work during the year, the test being strict accuracy and terseness, the preference being given to news stories prepared under the pressure of edition time that redound to the credit of the profession of journalism."

Interested in Spot News.

"We hope the winning story next year will be one the reporter gathered and wrote himself," Dean Ackerman said. "No feature stories will be considered. The board is interested in spot news, and that does not mean the winning news story must be a Morro Castle or a Hauptmann trial yarn. Should it be a story, however ,in which more than one reporter participated, all will be credited.

"In the past tendency has been to send the board the work of special and feature writers. These are not examples of the work of the best reporters on their daily assignments.

"The board hopes, for example, to elect for next year's Pulitzer prize the work of a reporter who received an assignment without preliminary warning, who brought to bear upon the story he investigated and reported the best of his ability and judgment and who wrote it under the ordinary conditions of pressure made necessary by the timing of editions."

Where to Enter Stories.

Entries for the 1936 prize must be mailed to the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism for receipt not later than Feb. 1. They must have been reported and written between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1935. The Advisory Board will make its selection by the last Friday in April, 1936.

Dean Ackerman said he hoped the board's new formula for judging news stories would so appeal to reporters throughout the United States that they would send in without sanction of their editors the best examples of their work.

Fire Wrecks Hotel in Illinois.

By the Associated Press.

WESTFIELD, Ill., Oct. 12.—Fire destroyed the Westfield Hotel, the postoffice and a barber shop and threatened a business block late today before it was brought under control. Six families staying in the 27-room hotel were forced to flee to the street. Postoffice records were saved. Authorities said the fire began when paint, to be used on the ceiling of the hotel, was placed on a stove to be warmed and exploded.

Gen. Greely's Old Friend Guards Secret of Arctic

Leader of 1881-85 Expedition, Near Death, Has Never Been Told by Gen. Brainard Who Shot Private Caught Stealing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. — The secret of a military execution almost in the shadow of the North Pole is still undisclosed as a 55-year friendship of two men approaches its close.

Gen. Adolphus W. Greely, 91 years old, who commanded the ill-fated Arctic expedition which made a "farthest north" record, 1881 to 1885, was in Walter Reed Hospital where physicians said he could not live long.

The only other survivor, Gen. David L. Brainard, 78, but with upcurling military mustache and soldiery bearing denying his years, sorrowfully visits him daily. Brainard has never told Greely the secret of who shot Private C. B. Henry. And Greely, who ordered Henry executed for stealing food, has never asked.

With tears coming into his blue eyes at the thought of parting with his closest friend, Brainard told again today the stirring incident of that tragic expedition when all but seven of 25 men perished.

Greely, then bedfast, had issued in writing the order for Henry to die if caught stealing again, naming Brainard, Frederick, and Long, the three most able-bodied among the starving men, to carry out the order.

"The order was addressed to me as senior sergeant," said Brainard. "I summoned the other two, called Henry, and read the order to him.

"The next day Henry was again detected in the act of stealing food.

"The way the original order was drawn—I still have it—two balls and one blank would have been fired simultaneously, so none of us would have known whose shot was effective.

"But owing to the guns we had it was not possible to carry out the order as Greely wrote it. The only serviceable rifles were of different calibers.

"I called the other two together, and we decided only one gun was really suitable. I prepared straws, and the gun went to the man who drew the short straw.

"Afterwards, the gun was passed from one to another, each swearing as he held it he wouldn't tell who had fired the shot. The other two never told. I am the only one left, and I shall never tell.

"You can see the reason. I would have no more compunction shooting a man who was stealing from the starving than in shooting a wolf. But no matter what the provocation, the family of a man doesn't want to think of him as an executioner."

Next to Commander Greely, Brainard was the outstanding figure in the expedition which put the American flag "farthest north" 51 years ago, and it was his hand which actually planted the flag in the Arctic ice.

AID SENT BY PLANE AFTER 50 ARE KILLED IN EARTHQUAKE

MOSCOW, Oct. 12.—First aid by airplane was sent today to Tovidolinsky, near the Afghan frontier, following a severe earthquake Tuesday.

The number of dead, given as 50, threatens to increase because of the serious condition of many among the hundreds of injured.

There was no report of damage done by additional shocks at Stalinabad yesterday.

RESIDENCE AND HOUSEBOAT ARE BOMBED AT ALTON

Explosions Occur 20 Minutes Apart; None of Sleeping Occupants Injured.

Within 20 minutes early yesterday a residence on the eastern edge of Alton and a houseboat moored on the steamboat levee near the City Hall, were bombed. The scenes of the two bombings were about three miles apart.

At 2:20 a. m. a bomb was exploded on the front porch of the home of Doran D. Belcher, 3210 Brown street, a union carpenter employed on the Alton dam. The explosion threw the front door into the living room where Belcher's 15-year-old daughter was sleeping. Neither she nor any of the six others in the house, including three guests from Herrin, Ill., was injured.

Twenty minutes later a bomb was exploded on the river side of a runway around the houseboat of Clarence Calhoun, union steamfitter and co-proprietor of a levee fish market. Asleep in the boat were Calhoun, his wife and three guests from Chicago. None was injured. The bomb smashed a window and tore away a section of the houseboat's roof.

Turkey Bars Free Masons.

By the Associated Press.

ISTANBUL, Oct. 12.—The Government decided today to abolish Free Mason lodges throughout Turkey. Their properties were ordered returned to the Government. Informed sources said the action was taken because the authorities believed Masonic principles were incompatible with the National Government's policies.

WAR FEARS SEEMINGLY CAST OFF BY WALL STREET

Bullish Turn Follows Three Weeks of Fretting Over Threat and Course of Business — Most Notable Change in Bond Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. — Wall Street turned bullish again this week, after more than three weeks of fretting over the threat of war and the course of business.

Industrial shares came back to around their recovery peaks of mid-September, and rails regained roughly half of their losses.

The subsidence of the war fright was most notable in the bond market, where foreign issues scored their best gains in a long time, although Italians slid off somewhat at the end of the week.

Wall Street still found the news from Europe confusing, but houses with London connections were encouraged by the more hopeful tenor of advices from that center and the recovery in the London Stock Exchange.

Look for Better Statistics.

Furthermore, with the automobile industry smoothing out the problems of new model production and planning to resume production at full tilt by November, financial circles were led to look for increasingly favorable business statistics during coming weeks.

The September business showing had been a little spotty, what with the automobile industry almost shut down in preparation for its earlier than usual 1936 presentations, the bituminous coal strike causing a momentary slump in freight movement, and retail trade hampered early in the month by adverse weather.

As a result, statistical indices of business activity had wavered, and while underlying sentiment in Wall Street remained optimistic, an inclination to wait and see was natural.

Bullish flames in the share market appeared to have been kindled by the warning issued in a public address Wednesday evening by President Gay of the stock exchange that a dangerous, inflationary boom might develop, leading to another crash like 1929, if the Federal Reserve and the Treasury do not apply the brakes.

James M. Landis, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, said the next day that control of an inflationary boom was something demanding monetary action and was thus beyond the scope of the S. E. C.

Only a Kindling Spark.

But this seemed to be only the kindling spark, although on Thursday the stock market experienced its widest advance, measured by price averages, since last June.

Commodity prices continued their advance during the early days of the week, boosting the Associated Press daily index of 20 basic staples to new recovery highs. But the movement levelled off later, with wheat and cotton slipping back a little. Rubber, copper, silk, hides and a few other stables scored net gains for the week, however.

Stock Exchange Topics.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—With financial markets and institutions closed for the Columbus day holiday, Wall Street traders and analysts had an opportunity to give some quiet contemplation to the business outlook today.

Trends of the week were mostly upward, with carloadings snapping back sharply after the recent setback, as coal movement was resumed. Electric power production reached a new high. Retail trade hummed with favorable weather over much of the country. Automobile production was still low, but active outturn of new models was expected by the end of the month.

Reverberations of the inflation warning of Charles R. Gay, president of the New York Stock Exchange, are still to be heard in Wall Street. Comment reflecting varied shades of opinion have been piling up. The view held in most quarters, however, has crystallized somewhat as follows: Gay said nothing which had not been realized in well-informed circles for several months. His speech merely served to train the spotlight of publicity on the fact that an enormous amount of idle credit is lying around which, if touched off, could well bring a speculative conflagration. Some commentators, however, seemed to think that the stock exchange president is unduly concerned over the credit situation and pointed out that there remains such restraints as the spectacle of 10,000,000 or so unemployed.

* * *

Others feel that Gay in no sense has taken an alarmist position. The contention in these quarters is that fundamentally the market is a composite of mass emotion which produces fluctuations which are ironed out by reason only long after the underlying fundamentals have exerted themselves. The point they stress is this: That no matter how sobering the unemployment total may be, it is still conceivable that the edges of the vast paper credit base could catch fire. They make the point that no matter what the initial cause, a first outburst of heavy speculation could easily generate more unreasoned inflation buying.

* * *

Veteral Wall Street observers call attention to two factors. The first is the traditional fear of the average stock buyer that the market will run away from him. It is this physchology, they explain, which often results in the nonprofessional trader rushing into the market at a time when shares are leaping up for large daily gains, usually the phase of the rise at which some professionals turn sellers. The second point is that caution among market followers, if sustained long enough, sometimes gives way to an abrupt swing toward rashness. In general the market has been cautious more or less since the crash that followed the speculative boom in the summer of 1933.

Foreign Markets at a Glance

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—Prices on the Bourse opened weak today. Orders were scarce, and quotations showed small fluctuations. The closing was quiet and practically unchanged.

London and Paris closed on Saturday.

Increase in Telephones.

By the Associated Press.

The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. reports a net gain of 1822 telephones in Greater St. Louis for September, seasonal influence and the closing of the directory accounting for the sizeable increase. Total number of telephones in Greater St. Louis on Sept. 30 was 216,430.

COMMODITY INDEX AVERAGES

Other statistical data showing economic trend.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity today registered its sharpest advance since July.

Boosted by big gains in automobile production, cotton mill activity, and freight movement, the index rose to 73.1, compared with 70.9 the previous week, and only 60.1 a year ago. The index is adjusted for seasonal variation and based on the 1929-30 average as 100.

The index, together with seasonally adjusted indeces for its six component parts, all based on 1929-30 as 100, follows:

	Latest Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Composite	73.1	70.9	60.1
Automobile production	46.5	35.3	37.3
Steel mill activity	66.7	68.2	31.1
Cotton mfg. activity	93.3	90.3	91.7
Electric power prod.	101.6	101.6	93.6
Residential building	42.5	43.5	17.2
Total carloadings	66.5	*58.6	59.4

Electric power production increased to a record high level, but its gain over the previous week was only of normal seasonal proportions, so the index for that factor was unchanged. Steel and residential building registered the only declines, but they were slight and came after recent substantial gains.

FINANCIAL BAROMETER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Engagement of additional large amounts of gold in Europe for shipment to New York is expected to send monetary gold stocks in this country well above the $9,500,000,000 mark. Moreover, the metal influx is expected to bring about further expansion in excess reserves of member Federal Reserve banks, which have risen to unprecedented figures.

The monetary gold stock, as reported by the Federal Reserve Board, compared as follows:

Week ended Oct. 9	$9,463,000,000
Preceding week	9,414,000,000
Same week last year	7,985,000,000

Demand Funds Increase $11,042,000 — Sharp Gain Called Seasonal.

Demand deposits in St. Louis Clearing House Association banks increased $11,042,000 to $267,439,000 for the week. The rise was viewed in financial circles as reflecting the natural fall season upturn. Total deposits increased $13,738,000 to $505,779,000, this item and the one above representing new high marks for the last three years.

Bank deposits increased $2,550,000 to $140,849,000, time deposits increased $146,000 to $97,491,000, loans and discounts increased $3,657,000 to $127,546,000, bond and stock accounts decreased $441,000 to $237,432,000; total resources increased $14,191,000 to $557,499,000; total lawful reserves increased $12,718,000 to $93,111,000, the last two items also touching new peaks in the past three years.

Total clearings for the week amounted to $71,000,000, compared with $81,900,000 last week. Debits to individual accounts for the week (up to Friday) totaled $109,000,000 compared with $129,900,000 last week.

Local money rates were as follows: Prime commercial paper ¼@1 per cent, customers' loans 1@5½ per cent, collateral loans 2½@5½ per cent, loans secured by warehouse receipts 2@5 per cent.

AMERICAN DOLLAR QUIET IN THE EXCHANGE MARKET

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The United States dollar closed today unchanged from the overnight New York quotation of 15.17625 francs (6.59 cents to the franc).

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—In a quiet foreign exchange market today, the United States dollar closed at 4.90 5-16 to the pound, as compared with the over-night New York rate of 4.90½.

The French franc closed at 74.40 to the pound, as compared with yesterday's close of 74.44.

Bombay Exchange to Reopen

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Bombay correspondent of Reuters reported today that the Board of Directors of the Stock Exchange had officially announced the exchange would reopen next Monday. The exchange had been closed since Sept. 18 following selling which led to fears that a crisis might result.

MOST METAL PRICES TOP BEST LEVELS IN SEVERAL YEARS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Highest prices in several years were touched by most of the metals on advances registered in the past week.

Another active buying wave in copper, in which more than 50,000 tons were taken on several days, preceded a ¼ cent rise in the domestic price for electrolytic to 9¼ cents, the best level since 1931.

Because previous heavy purchases had supplied remaining 1935 requirements, demand was largely for January delivery. The latest advance reflected a rise in export prices to as high as 9.15 cents c. i. f. European ports and continental demand was sustained during the greater part of the week. Moderate buying by home fabricators continued at the advance. Some increase in both domestic and foreign mine output was said to be under consideration.

Tin quotations rose 3 cents largely because of sharp advances at London, where active demand for limited spot supplies was reported. Domestic mill buying, however, was moderate owing to curtailed tin plate operations at 50 per cent of capacity and large stocks of finished tin plate. The advance in metal attracted a little reselling by some consumers from stocks.

Zinc prices moved up $2 per ton when active buying, stimulated by firmness of other metals, absorbed supplies. Business tapered off at the advance but sellers were firmly entrenched by a stronger statistical position. Large September shipments reduced smelters' stocks, but additional business placed has left large unfilled orders on their books. Some old zinc mines are said to have been reopened.

After advancing $2 per ton, lead smelters later rescinded the advance when buying interest was withdrawn. Fears of competition from scrap also was believed to have influenced the action of sellers. However, large orders placed prior to the advance were said to have placed smelters in a firm position.

Antimony quotations for various grades advanced ⅛ to ½ cent to the highest prices since 1927, due largely to reports of advances on the continent and in China. Trading, however, remained restricted.

Mixed trends affected steel operating schedules with the net result that ingot output decreased slightly for the week. Delays in entering into active production for new automobile models checked orders from that source, but manufacturers derived encouragement from reports of appearance of rail orders, sustained structural awards and increases in production by farm equipment and miscellaneous plants. Prices were unchanged for finished steel but scrap quotations were slightly lower. Active demand for pig iron continued at unchanged quotations.

BAR GOLD, SILVER AND MONEY

WHEAT PRICES AT LIVERPOOL AND WINNIPEG DOWN

Canadian Board Trading Light—Argentine Weather Is Foreign Influence—U. S. Exchanges Closed.

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12.—A trickle of selling orders, engendered by lower price trends at Liverpool, sent futures values ⅞@½c under the previous close in a listless Winnipeg Grain Exchange session today.

All options were at the day's bottom levels at the close, October at 91½, November and December at 92, and May 95⅞@96c. The session was the quietest in some time due to holidays in the United States and Argentina, restricting trade news.

A pinch of export buying—with no figure being placed on the day's foreign sales of Canadian wheat—was the market's sole support, and this was insufficient to offset the occasional selling order that dribbled into the trading pit.

Liverpool prices were easy from the opening, closing ⅝@½d lower. Price trends there were influenced by reported crop improvement in Argentina, where drouth in recent months has resulted in severe deterioration to growing grains.

Cash and coarse grains also did little.

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 12.—The wheat futures market here opened slightly easier today, held steady throughout the day, and closed quietly with quotations about ½ to ⅝ pence below yesterday's closing prices.

The decline computed in American money was about ½ to ⅝ cents, December closing at 94¾ cents and March at 90¾. Easier American and Argentine markets yesterday and reports of some rain and warmer weather in the Argentine caused the drop in prices here today. There were little other features in the market, business being generally quiet.

Demand deposits in St. Louis Clearing House Association banks increased $11,042,000 to $267,439,000 for the week. The rise was viewed in financial circles as reflecting the natural fall season upturn. Total deposits increased $13,738,000 to $505,779,000, this item and the one above representing new high marks for the last three years.

Bank deposits increased $2,550,000 to $140,849,000, time deposits increased $146,000 to $97,491,000, loans and discounts increased $3,657,000 to $127,546,000, bond and stock accounts decreased $441,000 to $237,432,000; total resources increased $14,191,000 to $557,499,000; total lawful reserves increased $12,718,000 to $93,111,000, the last two items also touching new peaks in the past three years.

Total clearings for the week amounted to $71,000,000, compared with $81,900,000 last week. Debits to individual accounts for the week (up to Friday) totaled $109,000,000, compared with $129,900,000 last week.

Local money rates were as follows: Prime commercial paper ¾@1 per cent, customers' loans 1@5½ per cent, collateral loans 2½@5½ per cent, loans secured by warehouse receipts 2@5 per cent.

AMERICAN DOLLAR QUIET IN THE EXCHANGE MARKET

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The United States dollar closed today unchanged from the overnight New York quotation of 15.17625 francs (6.59 cents to the franc).

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—In a quiet foreign exchange market today, the United States dollar closed at 4.90 5-16 to the pound, as compared with the over-night New York rate of 4.90½.

The French franc closed at 74.40 to the pound, as compared with yesterday's close of 74.44.

Bombay Exchange to Reopen

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Bombay correspondent of Reuters reported today that the Board of Directors of the Stock Exchange had officially announced the exchange would reopen next Monday. The exchange had been closed since Sept. 18 following selling which led to fears that a crisis might result.

MOST METAL PRICES TOP BEST LEVELS IN SEVERAL YEARS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Highest prices in several years were touched by most of the metals on advances registered in the past week.

Another active buying wave in copper, in which more than 50,000 tons were taken on several days, preceded a ¼ cent rise in the domestic price for electrolytic to 9¼ cents, the best level since 1931.

Because previous heavy purchases had supplied remaining 1935 requirements, demand was largely for January delivery. The latest advance reflected a rise in export prices to as high as 9.15 cents c. i. f. European ports and continental demand was sustained during the greater part of the week. Moderate buying by home fabricators continued at the advance. Some increase in both domestic and foreign mine output was said to be under consideration.

Tin quotations rose 3 cents largely because of sharp advances at London, where active demand for limited spot supplies was reported. Domestic mill buying, however, was moderate owing to curtailed tin plate operations at 50 per cent of capacity and large stocks of finished tin plate. The advance in metal attracted a little reselling by some consumers from stocks.

Zinc prices moved up $2 per ton when active buying, stimulated by firmness of other metals, absorbed supplies. Business tapered off at the advance but sellers were firmly entrenched by a stronger statistical position. Large September shipments reduced smelters' stocks, but additional business placed has left large unfilled orders on their books. Some old zinc mines are said to have been reopened.

After advancing $2 per ton, lead smelters later rescinded the advance when buying interest was withdrawn. Fears of competition from scrap also was believed to have influenced the action of sellers. However, large orders placed prior to the advance were said to have placed smelters in a firm position.

Antimony quotations for various grades advanced ⅛ to ½ cent to the highest prices since 1927, due largely to reports of advances on the continent and in China. Trading, however, remained restricted.

Mixed trends affected steel operating schedules with the net result that ingot output decreased slightly for the week. Delays in entering into active production for new automobile models checked orders from that source, but manufacturers derived encouragement from reports of appearance of rail orders, sustained structural awards and increases in production by farm equipment and miscellaneous plants. Prices were unchanged for finished steel but scrap quotations were slightly lower. Active demand for pig iron continued at unchanged quotations.

WHEAT PRICES AT LIVERPOOL AND WINNIPEG DOWN

Canadian Board Trading Light—Argentine Weather Is Foreign Influence—U. S. Exchanges Closed.

By the Associated Press.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12.—A trickle of selling orders, engendered by lower price trends at Liverpool, sent futures values ⅞@½c under the previous close in a listless Winnipeg Grain Exchange session today.

All options were at the day's bottom levels at the close, October at 91½, November and December at 92, and May 95⅞@96c. The session was the quietest in some time due to holidays in the United States and Argentina, restricting trade news.

A pinch of export buying—with no figure being placed on the day's foreign sales of Canadian wheat—was the market's sole support, and this was insufficient to offset the occasional selling order that dribbled into the trading pit.

Liverpool prices were easy from the opening, closing ⅝@½d lower. Price trends there were influenced by reported crop improvement in Argentina, where drouth in recent months has resulted in severe deterioration to growing grains.

Cash and coarse grains also did little.

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 12.—The wheat futures market here opened slightly easier today, held steady throughout the day, and closed quietly with quotations about ½ to ⅝ pence below yesterday's closing prices.

The decline computed in American money was about ½ to ⅝ cents, December closing at 94¾ cents and March at 90¾. Easier American and Argentine markets yesterday and reports of some rain and warmer weather in the Argentine caused the drop in prices here today. There were little other features in the market, business being generally quiet.

WHEAT, OFF 2 CENTS FOR WEEK, UP 20 IN MONTH

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Despite European warlike complications outstanding as a major market influence, some Chicago trade leaders say most wheat speculators are expecting too much in a hurry.

The fact is pointed out that inside of a month wheat has scored around 20 cents a bushel rise, and has held the greater part of the gain. Friends of higher prices contend, though, that reactions from recent top levels have now to a great extent corrected overbought pit conditions, and it is emphasized also that receipts both of domestic spring and winter wheat probably will be moderate hereafter.

On the other and, Canada is expected to move wheat freely from farms for another six weeks.

Compared to a week ago, Chicago wheat prices today range from 2½ cents decline to ⅜ of a cent advance, with corn 1⅛@2¼ down, oats ¾@⅞ off, and provisions showing 22 cents to 42 cents setback.

Helping to give backbone to the market is the circumstance that domestic flour production is running the heaviest in several years. This calls for liberal buying of wheat futures on the part of mills. Furthermore, European port stocks of wheat are small compared to last year, and so as well are supplies on ocean passage.

Wheat bears nevertheless make much of reports that although the crest of the movement of spring wheat in terminal markets this side of the international line is regarded as having passed, there have been such liberal Canadian purchases made by Northwestern and Buffalo mills of late that the Minneapolis market has evinced a notable disposition to follow the trend at Winnipeg rather than Chicago. Some interests expect this will continue for some time owing to further United States import requirements. Meanwhile, seeding of domestic winter wheat is reported as showing rapid progress.

Corn traders are looking forward to inevitable readjustment between old and new crop corn prices. Until then the corn market and oats as well are largely paralleling the action of wheat.

For the most part, provisions appear to take their cue from the changes of hog values.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct 12.—Wheat and corn futures reflected in bid and asked prices the trend of grain prices on the outside boards. The cash market was featured by arrival of first car of new Missouri corn.

WORLD WHEAT CROP ESTIMATE AND OUTLOOK FOR MARKETS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The estimated wheat production for 1935 in 41 countries now total 3,052,990,000 bushels, as compared with 2,949,542,000 bushels produced by the same countries in 1934 when they accounted for about 85 per cent of the estimated world totals, excluding Russia and China.

Reports to the Division of Foreign Crops and Markets indicate a record yield in Austria this season, it being placed at 17 per cent higher than in the 1934 production. Although the Esthonian crop was revised upward during the week, it still is about 16 per cent under that of 1934, which was the largest crop recorded.

Unfavorable climatic conditions once more have been responsible for the failure of governmental plans to expand cotton production in Manchuria. Governmental encouragement early in 1934 resulted in increasing the cotton area to 227,000 acres from the 135,000 acres planted in 1933. Excessive rainfall, a comparatively cool summer, and an early frost, however, combine to reduce yields so that the crop amounted to only 86,000 bales compared with 60,000 bales in 1933.

Renewed efforts were put forth in the spring of 1935. As a result, the area planted this year was from 15 to 20 per cent greater than the 227,000 acres planted in 1934. However, continued dry weather after planting interfered with the germination and many farmers planted soy beans and substitute crops on land already planted to cotton.

The final estimates from Brazilian official sources place the 1934-35 cotton crop in Southern Brazil at 609,724 bales. This figure is somewhat lower than the second estimate released about three months ago and represents a very substantial decline from the first estimate of around 853,000 bales.

The 1935 European prune supplies available for the major European markets are about 28 per cent less than last year, but about the same as the five-year average for the years 1929 to 1933.

The general reduction in all European fruit crops this season probably is a more favorable factor in the American prune export situation than is the smaller quantity of prunes in European exporting countries.

The reduced European prune crops undoubtedly will contribute toward a more favorable outlet for the American product.

Apple prices appear to have about hit bottom on the British markets. The average price paid for United States apples at Liverpool was $1.45 a bushel against $1.57 the preceding week. With the disappearance of some of the many odd varieties the average price is expected to rise.

SOUTHERN HEDGING INFLUENCE IN COTTON MARKET LAST WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Southern hedging and a mildly bearish sentiment generated by the larger than expected official estimate of the crop, were the dominant influences in the cotton futures market this week.

The Government report released on Tuesday pointed to a crop of 11,464,000 bales. It was about 25,000 bales below the official estimate of September, but many had been looking for a drop of 200,000 to 300,000 bales, due to adverse weather conditions during much of August.

Traders were keenly interested as to the character of the expected sanctions to be imposed on Italy by the League of Nations, mainly for their possible effects upon international trade conditions.

The domestic goods market was quieter, but there has been a fair volume of trading, and reiterated reports of improving general business conditions encouraged expectations of increased domestic consumption.

The New York Cotton Exchange Service reported that domestic consumption for September amounted to 450,000 bales, against 408,000 in August and 295,000 in September last year.

Increased exports are expected, following recent foreign buying in the South, but the movement of cotton to market is also increasing, with 745,000 bales brought into sight this week, against 461,000 last year.

Memphis Spot Cotton.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 12.—Spot cotton had a steady tone; middling closed at 10.70c, unchanged from yesterday. Sales amounted to 20,319 bales.

BUTTER-CHEESE RATIO NARROW, BELOW NORMAL

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—An abnormally narrow spread between butter and cheese prices was a point of interest in the produce trade here today.

Normally the price of butter is 2.2 times the price of cheese, largely because, according to trade authorities, this is approximately the ratio of the quantities of milk required in the manufacture of the two products.

However, recently this price ratio has narrowed to about 1.9.

Consumption of cheese to date this year is estimated by trade experts in the mercantile exchange about 30 per cent greater than last year, and this, they assert, has been the main reason why prices have held so well. Production has been running 20 to 40 per cent ahead of last year. Receipts at Wisconsin warehouses the week ended Oct. 5 was 27 per cent greater than that of the same week a year ago.

On the other hand, butter production has been slowing.

The American Association reported last week's production 15 per cent under last year and 8 per cent under the previous week, and this is fairly representative of the country as a whole.

The Government report on butter stocks as of Oct. 1 is to be released soon. Trade observers expect a fairly sizeable surplus will be shown, anticipating a total United States storage stock of around 150,000,000 pounds, the fourth largest holding on record for the date, compared with 125,000,000 a year ago, indicating a 25,000,000 surplus.

The Sept. 1 surplus was 36,000,000 pounds, indicating a decrease during the month of 11,000,000 pounds. Normally during September the movement of butter from storage aggregates from 8 to 20 million pounds, but this did not hold true in 1933 and 1934. An unusual movement occurred in September last year when stocks actually increased 5,000,000 pounds.

Cash butter prices are now at the highest level for this time of year since 1931. Extras quoted around 26 cents are selling about 2 cents above a year ago, 3 cents above two years ago and 7 cents above three years ago.

The position of the Government in the butter market is largely uncertain. From Sept. 10 to Oct. 1 approximately 1,450,000 pounds were purchased for the AAA here and in New York for relief distribution. The AAA has advertised for bids on 5,000,000 pounds for delivery within the next five weeks and 600,000 of this already has been accepted.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—On the basis of the consistent forward strides made by business during the summer months, Wall street looks for a generally favorable showing of corporate earning statements for the September quarter. The few that have appeared so far have been mostly in line with the optimistic expectations. Statements of the larger industrial organizations will begin to appear next week.

Sugar consumption in the United States as measured by distribution totaled 493,734 long tons raw sugar value, against 561,891 in August, 1934, according to B. W. Dyer & Co., sugar brokers. For the first eight months of 1935 consumption amounted to 4,028,738 tons, compared with 3,885,088 tons for the like period of last year.

Don E. Bates, president of the Reo Motor Car Co., announced today that the company will go into production of its new 1936 models immediately in conformity with the early production schedule set this year by the entire industry in an attempt to level out production and employment.

W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, reports that the company is now carrying an average of 458,000 pieces of mail daily, a record high. During the past six months the company has flown 1298 tons of mail, an increase of approximately 40 per cent over a year ago.

Industry, says Dun & Bradstreet in a survey of trade conditions, has displayed more uniformity in its upward movement during the last few months. "Whereas during the first half of the year there were occasional pauses to permit a consolidation of the ground recovered, during the third quarter the almost constant improvement raised the level of activity and sales of a number of primary divisions of industry to new highs for the past five years," the survey declared.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Favorable dividend changes in the past week totaled 23 compared with 20 in the previous week, the Standard Statistics Co. reported today. There were five unfavorable changes against two the week before.

EXCHANGES WERE CLOSED YESTERDAY FOR COLUMBUS DAY

THE New York Stock Exchange, the Cotton Exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade, the St. Louis Stock Exchange, Merchants' Exchange and other leading exchanges were closed today, in observance of Columbus day.

There was no session of the St. Louis Butter, Egg and Poultry Exchange.

TRADE TRENDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The New York Cotton Exchange service estimates total consumption by domestic mills in August and September at 858,000 bales against 714,000 for the two months last year. A major factor in the increase was the sharp curtailment in September of 1934, due to the textile strike.

Furniture—The New York wholesale market continues to book heavy reorders on practically all types of merchandise, according to reports in trade quarters. Bedroom and living room suites to retail at $75 to $150 are in especially good call.

Hardware—Buying of late fall and winter goods by retailers has brought a large volume of business to the wholesale market. Furnace accessories, paints, weather stripping and electrical appliances are among the most active items.

Steel—Conservative estimates, says a survey by Dun & Bradstreet, place the current year's domestic production at around 32,000,000 gross tons, which would compare with 25,599,118 in 1934 and with the average of 41,500,000 gross tons per annum for the 10-year period ended with 1929.

Tobacco—The average price of U. S. type 31 air-cured burley tobacco advanced during the past week to 16.5 cents a pound from 16.2 cents in the previous week, according to the Stitch weekly index.

HOG TRADE UNEVEN, LAMB PRICES HIGHER

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Oct. 12.—(United States Department of Agriculture.) —Most classes of cattle showed firm to higher price trends the past week despite a slight increase in receipts. Arrivals totaled approximately 33,100 as compared with actuals of 27,240 the preceding week and 17,393 the corresponding period last year. Compared with the previous week's close, native steers and butcher yearlings closed steady to 25c higher; western steers steady; cow stuff steady to strong; bulls strong to 25c higher; vealers $1 higher; stock steers steady to a shade lower; other feeding cattle steady. Tops for the week: 1068-lb yearling steers $11.25; 1172-lb medium weight steers $10.70; 878-lb Oklahoma steers $6.80; 880-lb mixed yearlings $10.75; 678-lb heifers $9.75; beef cows $6.50; sausage bulls $5.50; vealers $11; stock steers $7. One load of 1461-lb steers at $9 comprised the heavy offering. Medium weight steers of 1112 to 1295 lbs average ranged from $7.35@10.70 and bulked at $8.10@9.75, while yearlings and lightweights bulked at $7@9.25 in a range of $6@11.25. Bulk of all native steers $7.25@9.75. Western grass steers ranged from $4.50@6.80 and bulked at $5.50@6.50. Most good steers brought $8.50@10; good and choice mixed yearlings and heifers $8@9.75; medium fleshed mixed yearlings and heifers $6.50@7.50; beef cows $4.50@5.50; cutters and low cutters $3@4; stock and feeder steers $5.50@6.50. The period closed with top sausage bulls at $5.50 and top vealers $11.

Bulk and top prices the corresponding week last year were as follows: Steers $4.50@7.75, top $9; good and choice mixed yearlings and heifers $6@6.50, top $7.50; medium fleshed mixed yearlings and heifers $4.50@5.75; beef cows $2.60@3.50, top $4.50; cutters and low cutters $1.50@2.50; top sausage bulls $3.15; top vealers $7.25; bulk stocker and feeder steers $3.25@3.85; top $4.10.

Hog Trend Irregular.

Under the influence of diminishing supplies of lightweights and light lights, demand this week turned more from the medium and heavyweight butchers with very irregular trends for the week. Weights below 180 lbs. wound up 10c to 25c higher than the close of last week, some of the pigs as much as 40c higher, while heavier hogs finished barely steady to, in spots, slightly lower. Supplies totaled around 28,300 this week compared with 29,406 last week and 51,821 similar week last year. Toward the close of the week, weights from 150 to 170 lbs. average realized the top prices. On one occasion a peak of $11.25 was paid for a part load but the practical top was $11.15, this price paid on Friday. Saturday trade was of very narrow proportions and 5c to 15c lower, better 150 to 180 lbs. weights selling at $10.90 to $11.00, top $11.00, while a few 200 to 225 lbs. weights scored $10.80. Based on Friday sales, 250 to 290 pounders were quotable at $10.50 to $10.75 and 100 to 140 lbs. weights $9.75 to $10.75. Packer sows scored $9.25 to $9.75, smooth lightweights quotable to $10.

Lamb Market Higher.

Under the stimulating influence of active shipper competition, fat lamb trade rose to the highest point of the season but later reacted to finish 25 to 50c higher than at the close of last week. Sheep and yearlings advanced 50c. Supplies this week figured around 16,700 compared with 16,051 last week and 24,492 similar week last year. At the high time, shippers paid up to $10.25 for choice lambs while the packer top did not exceed $9.75. On Friday, outsiders took good to choice lambs at $9.35 to $9.65 while packers absorbed the remainder at $9 to $9.50, buck lambs $1 less; and throwouts mostly $6 to $7. Wooled yearlings sold during the week at $7.50 to $8, clipped yearlings at $6.75 to $7.35, aged shorn wethers at $5 and slaughter ewes mostly $3.25 to $4.25.

HORSES AND MULES.

Generally steady to firm prices were paid the past week for a modest supply of horses and mules. Receipts aggregated only about 500 head on commission — 350 horses and 150 mules.

There was more life to the mule trade and cotton animals were particularly well received.

Broke horses developed a firmer trend, but little offerings and smooth mouthed material continued to display a lower trend. Good fillies with size, good mares and colts, and desirable blocky mares broke or halter broke, of good ages, held about steady.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft, $120@150; medium to good draft, $90@110; good to choice chunks, $95@125; smooth-mouthed chunks, $70@90; young farm mares, $90@115; Southern mares, $50@85; small cheap horses, $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, good size and bone, $80@125; colt mules, small, $50@75; draft mules, $125@150; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $120@140; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $75@100; choice cotton mules, 15.1 to 16 hands, $135@160; choice cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $110@125; small green mules over 3 years old, $40@70.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STOCK YARDS.

CATTLE—Compared with last week fed steers and yearlings were about steady; good beef cows about steady; choice higher; top bulls steady; vealers $1.25 higher; stocker and feeders slow and about steady.

SHEEP—Compared with last week, lambs were around 25@50c higher.

HOGS—Compared with last week, market was 40c lower.

STOCK TRADE IS LIGHT AND CHANGES SMALL

A Few Issues Show Alterations of Point or So for Week.

Trading was light on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week and net changes for the most part were only fractional. Exceptions were Brown Shoe, which moved up nearly 2 points in adjustment to New York price level, and Laclede Steel, which reacted a point. Alterations were chiefly upward.

Wagner Electric, National Candy and Pedigo-Lake were higher, while Missouri Portland and Key Company were lower.

ST. LOUIS STOCKS

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, Oct. 12. —Sales of stocks on the local board during the week (5 days) amounted to 2528 shares, compared with 3250 the previous week. Bond sales were $8000 compared with $6000.

Following is a complete list of transactions on the exchange during the week, with dividend rates, sales, high, low, closing prices and net changes:

LAST LIBERTY BONDS CALLED THIS WEEK

Holders of Fourth War-Time Issue May Get Cash or New Low Interest Securities.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Liberty bonds will practically disappear this week. Tuesday, the Treasury will retire the last big block of bonds, which like most of its predecessors, will be replaced by new Government securities bearing a lower interest rate.

A total of $1,250,000,000 in fourth Liberty Loan bonds has been called for that date, meaning that interest payments will cease, and the holder may exchange his bonds for the new securities or receive cash.

However, officials expect about $1,000,000,000 of the called bonds will be presented. The rest will come into the Treasury in the next 10 or 20 years. Some of them have been lost or destroyed and never will be presented. Later, they will be figured as profit for the Government.

Interest Cut Nearly in Half.

The Treasury has been paying 4¼ per cent interest on the bonds called for Tuesday, an annual disbursement of some $42,500,000 on the $1,000,000,000 to be refunded. It will substitute about $430,000,000 of short term Treasury notes at 1½ per cent and $570,000,000 of 10-year bonds at 2¾ per cent. Interest charges on the block in question will thus be reduced to about $22,125,000.

America had been in the war scarcely two months before the first Liberty loan was announced. The Government asked for $2,000,000,000 and the people offered it $3,035,226,850. The actual totaled $1,989,455.000. The second Liberty loan, in November, 1917, was announced at $3,000,000,000, brought in subscriptions of $4,617,000,000 and a total of $3,807,000,000 in bonds was issued. In May, 1918, the Government called for another $3,000,000,000, was offered $4,176,000,000 and issued $4,175,000,000 in in third Liberty bonds. The fourth was larger still. The toal called for was $6,000,000,000. The people responded with $6,992,000,000 and on Oct. 24, 1918, scarcely three weeks before the armistic, $6,964,000,000 in fourth Liberties were issued. There followed the Victory loan of May 20, 1919. The Government asked for $4,500,000,000, was offered $5,249,000,000 and took $4,495,000,000.

Interest rates on the first issue were 3½ per cent, which soon was converted into 4 and 4¼ per cent. The second loan was at 4 per cent, later converted into 4¼ per cent bonds. The third and fourth were at 4¼ and the Victory loan bore partly that yield and partly 3¾.

Refinancing Operations.

In the 18 years that have passed since the Victory loan was floated, succeeding administrations have refinanced one issue after another almost steadily at a lower interest rate. The Victory bonds fell due in 1922 and 1923. They were replaced with a variety of Treasury paper—long term bonds and short term notes and certificates at rates averaging around 3½ per cent.

The second and third Liberty bonds came due or were called in 1927 and 1928. Large blocks were redeemed for cash, others were exchanged for a variety of securities at about 3 per cent.

The first and fourth issues have all been called within the last three years at rates even lower, culminating in the yield on the bonds offered in exchange for the fourth Liberties.

Illustrative of the slowness with which the last blocks of bonds reach the Treasury, it had still outstanding on Oct.1 $84,000,000 in first Liberties, $1,696,000 in seconds, $2,733,000 in thirds and $772,000 in Victories.

FORMER RIFF CHIEF WEARYING OF EXILE

Abd-el-Krim Hints to French He Will Behave If Set Free.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Abd-el-Krim, former leader of the Riffs in Morocco, has broken nine years of silence with word that he is weary of his exile on the island of Reunion. He hints he will behave if the French will set him free. However, he has made no formal request for a pardon.

Abd-el-Krim was permitted to take his harem into exile with him—his family at present numbers 36 persons—but even so, he says, life on the torrid island in the Indian Ocean is boresome.

He has a commodious mansion and a pension of about $7000 a year frm the French Government, but with prices what they are and a family of 36 to support, his domestic problems are trying.

Vowing to avenge the death of his father at the hands of the Spaniards, Abd-el-Krim assumed leadership of the turbulent tribes of the Riff—a mountainous section south of Spanish Morocco—and attacked the Spaniards, beating them consistently for almost five years and driving them to the coast.

He set up a Riff republic with himself as head and attempted to obtain recognition from Spain, France and England by offering mining concessions. And he dreamed of conquering all of Morocco, both Spanish and French, and making himself the Sultan of a new Mohammedan nation. In 1925 he made the mistake of attacking the French. He found the French colonials and the foreign legion difficult to deal with, and soon was pushed back into the mountains, where his own men deserted him and he was compelled to surrender.

Four months later he was deported to Reunion—an island which France reserves for prisoners of high rank. Among those exiled there in the past were Tanh-Tai, Emperor of Annam, in French Indo-China; Ranavalona, Queen of Madagascar, and Ursule de Machimba, Princess of the Comoro Islands.

New Rubinoff Program Over KSD Saturday

Virginia Rea, Jan Pearce and Graham McNamee Billed with Him—Clara, Lu and Em Featured at 4:45 Weekday Afternoons on KSD, Starting Tomorrow; Voice of the People Shifts to KSD at 1:30 Today.

RUBINOFF'S new program on KSD will replace the G-Men at 8 o'clock next Saturday night. In addition to playing the violin, he will lead a 35-piece orchestra. Virginia Rea, who is billed as one of his featured soloists, is the soprano who sang some years ago as "Olive Palmer" and not so long ago sang with Frank Munn, the tenor, on KSD's Sunday Album of Familiar Music programs. Jan Pearce, the tenor, also billed with Rubinoff, is heard Sunday mornings in the Radio City concerts and in the Gypsies' concerts on KSD Monday nights. The announcer will be Graham McNamee. Rubinoff is probably radio's most popular violinist. He was starred with Eddie Cantor, has played in virtually all of the countries' larger theaters, has had a part in numerous movie shorts and has just finished a feature role in the new picture, "Thanks a Million."

* * *

Clara, Lu and Em Again on KSD.

CLARA, LU AND EM, who will be back on KSD this week, at 4:45 p. m. daily except Saturday and Sunday, for five years have held the interest of listeners with their seemingly aimless, artless, homey chatter about things in the life of any housewife. In private life, Clara is Mrs. Louise Starkey Mead, Lu is Mrs. Isabel Carothers Berolsheimer and Em is Mrs. Helen King Mitchell. They turned to radio following their graduation from Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., scored an immediate success as Clara, Lu 'n' Em, and never have played any other microphone roles.

On the air, Clara, Lu 'n' Em are housekeepers who live in a double house in a suburb of Chicago. Clara rents half of the house, Em the other half and Lu lives in small quarters above Clara's place. Obscure folk to whom the spending of 10 cents for a birthday present is a matter for grave consideration, they portray the drama and comedy in the lives of the millions of women who keep up homes, rear families and somehow savor the flavor of living on meager incomes.

Each broadcast finds Clara, Lu 'n' Em together in the home of one of them, in the back yard, or on the porch having a little chat as they pause in their work. Sometimes the talk is about their homes, often about their neighbors and frequently about events current in the news. Other characters are referred to now and again, but there is no confusion of other voices. The girls just talk about other people, and no one but the trio is actually heard.

Street Interviews Program on KSD.

NEW on KSD at 1:30 this afternoon will be the Voice of the People program in which Jerry Belcher and Parks Johnson, two Texans who have been setting up a microphone on street corners in New York and amusing listeners by firing questions at persons who gather around them. The two former newspaper men originated their program for a radio station in Houston, Tex. Belcher picks a likely looking onlooker, draws him to the microphone and begins popping questions. The questions are sometimes serious, sometimes humorous, sometimes tricky or slightly personal. Meanwhile, Johnson looks through the crowd for another "victim," whom he leads to the microphone and puts "through" while Belcher seeks a third person.

Sophie Tucker With Ben Bernie.

EDITH LORAND, who has played in more than 400 concerts abroad and in this country, and her Gypsy band, and Bob Burns, the Arkansas comedian, will head the bill for Paul Whiteman's Thursday night period on KSD.

Lucy Monroe, the soprano; Joe Howard, the comedian and song writer, who was Anna Laughlin's vaudeville partner, and Dorothy Mackaill, the movie actress, will be starred in Ted Hammerstein's Music Hall on KSD at 7 p. m. tomorrow.

Jessica Dragonette will be the soloist, for the third consecutive year, in the Armistice day ceremonies of the American Legion at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery, Washington, Nov. 11.

Lanny Ross is seeking a successor to Murial Wilson for the role of "Mary Lou" on the Show Boat Thursday night. Clyde Barre, the young Negro baritone, who is rapidly making a name for himself in radio, will be among the soloists.

Frank W. Beckett, retired banker, will play his own music for the piano in the Music Is My Hobby program on the WEAF net at 6:30 Thursday.

Sophie Tucker will be featured by Ben Bernie at 8 p. m. Tuesday on KSD.

London and Rome Stations Tuned in Easily in St. Louis

Most of Principal European Short Wave Broadcasters Heard Here Regularly—British Programs to Be Carried by Canadians as Regular Features.

OPERAS and symphonic concerts which were so popular among listeners to the "Radio-Coloniale" stations at Pontoise last year are to be continued this year according to word from Paris. They will be broadcast from the Casino and outdoor gardens at Vichy, famous French watering place. Concerts by the Paris Symphony Orchestra, oratorios, choral works and operatic presentations will constitute the programs. American listeners should tune to one of the three French stations around 2:30 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, at 9:30 a. m. Thursdays and 10:45 a. m. Saturdays.

During the past week, reception has been good of the principal Europeans, including London, Berlin, Paris, Madrid, Huizen and Rome and many South Americans such as Barranquilla, Velencia, Guayaquil, Rio de Janeiro, Medellin, Caracas and Costa Rica, Panama, Cuba and Santo Domingo. These are the stations which the average listener hears most often week after week, except when reception conditions are abnormally poor.

News bulletin broadcasts in English by European stations include GSD or GSC, London, at 6:45 p. m. and 9:45 p. m.; DJC or DJD, Berlin, at 7:15 p. m.; FYA, Paris, at 7 p. m.; EAQ, Madrid, at 4:15 p. m., and 2RO, Rome, at 6 p. m.

Daily broadcasting throughout Canada of British and other foreign short wave programs, which is soon to become a regular feature on the Canadian broadcasting stations, may prove of advantage to listeners in the United States when foreign atmospheric conditions prevent them from contacting the countries across the Atlantic direct.

If weather conditions prevent an American listener from tuning London, he stands a good chance of picking up the British program on short-wave stations CJRO and CJRX at Winnipeg on 49.7 m. (6150 kc.) and 25.6 m. (11,720 kc.); that is, assuming that the Canadians happen to be broadcasting a London program at that particular time.

Months of experimenting by the Canadian Radio Commission have resulted in the construction near Ottawa of a powerful short-wave receiving station which will pick up BBC programs and relay them to CRCO in Ottawa, whence they will be put on the commission's national network, which includes the short-wave stations CJRO and CJRX, at Winnipeg.

Because of the difference in time which makes it inconvenient to Canadian listeners to hear British programs direct, the daily programs will not be relayed to the network as they come in, recordings will be made of the best, and they will be a regular feature each evening.

Broadcast Planned From 31 Countries.

AS MANY as 400 stations in 31 countries probably will take part in a "Youth Sings Across Borders" broadcast planned at 11:30 a. m. Sunday, Oct. 27. It will bring choral singing by groups in 20 European countries as well as in this country, Brazil, Argentina, Australia, Hawaii, Paraguay, Uruguay, Japan, Siam, the Dutch East Indies and British colonies. The United States will be represented by the chorus of the New Utrecht High School of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Plans are to make the network of stations the most extensive in the history of radio.

* * *

ON THE night of Nov. 1 a bridge team headed by Ely Culbertson, playing in Schenectady, N. Y., will play a brief match by short wave radio with a team from the Jockey Club in Buenos Aires. The match will be played through broadcasts by W2XAF, Schenectady, and LSX, Buenos Aires. A listener tuned to either station will be able to hear a complete account of the contest. Twelve hands will be played and replayed in duplicate bridge.

Lower-Priced Cadillac Among New Models, Has 125 H. P. Engine

Three new lines of cars for 1936—a Cadillac-Fleetwood series, a Cadillac Series 60, and a La Salle, are being shown in St. Louis by the Oliver Cadillac Co. and dealers.

Prices are lower for all three lines, especially in the Cadillac group, to which has been added the Series 60, an entirely new and smaller Cadillac designed for exceptional performance.

The Series 60, lower in price than any Cadillac since the four-cylinder models of 1908, lists at $1645 at the factory. This model is exceptionally easy to park.

The new Cadillac-Fleetwood series, including the V-8, V-12, and V-16, all are improved in appearance, comfort and performance. Fleetwood bodies are standard throughout this series. All carry turret tops, this being the first application of steel top construction to custom-built bodies.

La Salle Further Refined.

The 1936 La Salle reveals further refinement of the slender lines which started a new vogue in body design. The performance promise implied in these fleet lines is confirmed by La Salle's pick-up and speed. Reduced La Salle prices now range from $1175 to $1255 at the factory.

The new Cadillac Series 60, sets an all-time high in Cadillac performance. Powered with an entirely new V-8 motor of more than 125 horsepower, it provides spirited acceleration and is capable of road speeds up to 90 and 100 miles per hour. Also it has swift high gear pick-up even at speeds above 70 miles per hour.

Built in three body models by Fisher, the 60 has a frame designed to be the most rigid on any American automobile. In the closed models, the turret top, sides and the entire rear floor are of steel. Body choices include a five-passenger four-door touring sedan with rear trunk; a closed coupe with opera seat for an additional passenger, and a convertible coupe with rumble seat. Interior appointments and upholstery reflect the combined talents of Cadillac and Fisher craftsmen. Double stabilizers add definitely to passenger comfort in both the Series 60 and in the Cadillac-Fleetwoods. The 1935 Cadillac models had this anti-sway device at the rear of the chassic. A second stabilizer now is carried at the front of the chassis as well.

Cadillac-Fleetwood Group.

The Cadillac-Fleetwoods are considerably lower in price. This group includes five chassis and 30 Fleetwood body models: Series 70, a V-8, 135-horsepower car on a wheelbase of 131 inches; Series 75, of the same horsepower, but on a wheelbase of 138 inches; Series 80, a V-12, 150-horsepower model of 131-inch wheelbase; and Series 85, of the same power but on the longer, 138-inch wheelbase.

The Cadillac 90, senior of the line, has a V-16, 185-horsepower motor and a wheelbase of 154 inches. Several ready-built Fleetwood body types are provided for the 16, individual Fleetwood bodies in any desired special design are available.

Narrower radiators and more pronounced streamlining are noticeable on the Cadillac-Fleetwoods. The radiator fins on all Cadillac models are of two-tone chrome and the radiator ornament is a forward-leaning feminine figure in bright chrome. Smart Fleetwood interior appointments accord in all details with Cadillac standards. There are material increases in seat width, seat heighth and in head room, the latter without affecting the overall height of the cars.

Mechanical Improvements.

Mechanically, the Cadillac-Fleetwoods have much that is new. Even quieter operation is assured by a more rigid engine, by complete crankshaft counterweighting and by hydraulic valve adjusters which eliminate tappet clearance.

Improved lubrication and cooling systems protect the motor in extremes of service and temperature. A "peak load" generator varies its output to maintain the battery at full charge. A "triple range" choke functions automatically, but also may be operated manually if the driver so desires, or used as a "de-choke" if necessary.

The new La Salle, with four attractive bodies by Fisher, continues the distinctively narrow La Salle radiator, but the grille has been rounded out in a slightly convex effect. A long, slim torpedo rib now joins the top halves of the cup-shaped ventilating ports along the hood. Doors are hinged forward instead of at the rear.

Other changes include a new instrument panel finished in a chrome-striped modern motif, and a new hand brake lever now placed under the instrument panel at the driver's left. The chassis is built around a frame of even greater strength and rigidity.

In the closed coupe body of the La Salle, as in the Series 60 Cadillac, an opera seat is placed behind the conventional coupe seat.

The Cadillac Co. held a dealers' meeting at the Coronado Hotel on Wednesday which was attended by over 150 dealers and salesmen from Missouri, Illinois and the Eastern part of Nebraska. The meeting was in charge of H. W. Peters, assistant general salesmanager of the Cadillac Motor Co.

Guy W. Oliver, local distributor of Cadillac and LaSalle cars, introduced officials from the factory who outlined the 1936 program covering the many improvements made in Cadillac cars. The engineering improvements were described by C. V. Crockett, of the engineering department, and the advertising and sales plans by Frank Denny, advertising manager.

Dodge Dealers Order Cars Worth $854,000 For Shipment at Once

Orders calling for immediate shipment of 1068 Dodge and Plymouth passenger cars — approximately $854,000 worth of merchandise—have just been placed with the Dodge factory by St. Louis Dodge and Plymouth dealers. Orders from the Dodge and Plymouth dealers of Greater St. Louis total more than $1,000,000.

"While this million-dollar commitment is the largest local dealers have ever placed at one time, we feel confident that the vehicles will be sold as fast as they are received," said John G. Graham, St. Louis manager, speaking for a group of local Dodge and Plymouth dealers in the office of Paul A. Jerrue, regional manager of Dodge Brothers Corporation.

"These orders, which we regard as only the beginning, prove our belief that the upward trend of sales in the automobile business is not only going to continue but will quicken in pace. The 1935 selling season certainly stepped along faster and kept up longer than any we have known for several years—and so when we saw the new 1936 Dodge and Plymouth cars a few days ago we felt it was just plain business sense for us to get ready for the increased buying wave which these new and attractive models are creating in our market.

"One of the factors that caused these dealers to place orders of this size so early in the season," Mr. Graham continued, "is the stir which these new cars are making wherever they are seen; another circumstance that influenced our decision to a great extent, is the evident return of confidence to industry and business in general. Dodge and Plymouth had a great year in 1935—are still having it, in fact—and, after making a thorough canvass of our territory, we feel sure that 1936 will be an even better year—for us and for practically all other lines of business."

Chrysler Improves Plant to Increase Production of Cars

In prepartion for an increased production of the 1935 cars the Chrysler Corporation has made extensive improvements in the shipping and storage facilities at its factory at 12,200 East Jefferson avenue, Detroit. The first step in these improvements was the removal of the railroad yards from the Chrysler porperty to vacant land to the south. This permitted the use of a large amount of space for loading docks, paved driveways and the construction of a new storage building.

The storage building is large enough to store 800 cars, which means that when Chryslers come off the assembly line and pass through the final conditioning building they will be stored under cover while awaiting shipment, instead of being exposed to the weather.

Another improvement that will make for quality and efficiency in production is the straightening of the motor line. As rebuilt, the motor line is now a perfectly straight stretch of 500 feet, instead of being broken as in the past. This means a saving of time in the handling of the parts that go into the motor and obviates the necessity of several handlings of the motor in the course of construction.

The body plant has been completely revamped in the interests of quality, efficiency and convenience.

To Build "Cotton Road."

Construction of a "cotton road" nearly one mile long and 20 feet wide has been started near Greenville, Miss. The road will contain a reinforcing cotton fabric membrane between the road base and the bituminous top surface.

Goodrich Introduces Hot Water Heater of New Type for Autos

A new Goodrich "boiler type" hot water heater, with several features not heretofore seen in car heaters, is announced by C. E. Newman, manager of Goodrich Silvertown Stores.

The heater has an exclusive hot-water trap. With this device the heater works on the same principle as a home heating system.

In ordinary heater construction, increased car speed raises the speed of the water pump, sucking water through the heater rapidly. The new Goodrich water trap keeps the hot water from being sucked out, and the faster the car is driven, up to 55 miles an hour, the greater the heat produced. It also gives quicker heat at the start.

Another feature is a universal deflector. Because of the design and mounting of this deflector, heat may be thrown in any direction.

Sweden Puts Money Into Roads.

More than $58,500,000 was spent in Sweden last year for the repair or construction of highways, bridges and grade crossings. The money came from taxes on automobiles, tires and gasoline.

Speed Regulated at Corners.

Corners in Hungary must not be turned at a speed exceeding four miles an hour. Many motorists are protesting, saying they must put their cars in low gear.

Executives Here for Dealers' Meeting

Pontiac Co. President Addresses Meeting of St. Louis Zone Dealers

Klingler Says New Models Will Be Shown Oct. 19—To Make 225,000 Cars in 1936.

Production of 225,000 Pontiac sixes and eights in 1936 is planned as a minimum, and the new Pontiacs for 1936 will be shown throughout the country on Oct. 19, H. J. Klingler, president and general Manager of the Pontiac Motor Co., told 400 dealers and salesmen from the St. Louis zone Wednesday at a meeting in the German House. Two lines of sixes and a straight eight again will make up the Pontiac line, Klingler said.

Klingler, who is well known here, as he was St. Louis zone manager in 1924 for another division of General Motors, said before departing for the East, that he had been impressed by reports by dealers on conditions all over the St. Louis zone.

"Everywhere we go we find strong evidence of improving business," he declared. "Dealers report a marked change in the mental attitude of the public toward spending. They say that again there is money to spend; that merchants are reporting a faster turnover of their stocks; that farmers are better off than they have been in years; that manufacturing is getting better; that there is more building in almost every community and that jobbing centers are flourishing.

"The hardening of almost all prices, of course, is one of the most conclusive indications of improving business. As business improves, prices go up.

"Although Pontiac's business in this territory in 1935 has been double that in the same period of last year, our dealers who attended the meeting look for 75 to 100 per cent increase next year."

The chromium grille, called the 'Silver Streak," will be continued on Pontiac cars, Klingler said, but it will be somewhat changed and refined.

The Pontiac factory is working on double shift, produced 600 cars Wednesday and will be on a 700-cars-a-day basis within a few days. When the Pontiac was announced for 1934, there were only 4500 of the new models on dealers' floors. On Oct. 19, Klingler said, there will be at least 12,000 of the new Pontiacs in dealer showrooms. Production schedules call for turning out at least 48,000 of the new cars by the close of this year, and, as 125,000 have been turned out since Jan. 1, production for 1935 will be more than 170,000 cars, as against a total of 81,000 in 1934.

Production capacity of the Pontiac factory has been doubled in preparation for 1936, and the $3,500,000 Pontiac foundry, closed for several years, is being reopened.

Executives of the Pontiac Motor Co. who accompanied Klingler to Wednesday's meeting included D. U. Bathrick, assistant general sales manager; J. L. Evenson, sales promotion manager; G. W. Burrage, assistant service manager; W. A. P. John, vice-president of McManus, John & Adams, Inc., advertising counsel for Pontiac, and L. H. Robinson, Midwest region business manager.

W. P. Winslow, St. Louis zone manager, who was in charge of the meeting, said that Pontiac sales in the first nine months of this year have exceeded those in any other year since 1929, and that indications were that the sales increase in 1936 would be as great as this year over 1934.

Airplane Sales Firm Will Distribute New 100 M. P. H. Model

The plane has a wing span of 35 feet, is 22 feet long, and has a cruising speed of 100 miles per hour. It is a two-place plane, and operates at the rate of 20 miles per gallon of gasoline. It has dual controls and a special stabilizer which permits the pilot to fly with hands off the controls under varying load conditions. It is powered by a five-cylinder, 70-horse power, air-cooled LeBlond motor.

The cabin is fully enclosed, so no special flying clothes are necessary. There is a special luggage compartment and the instrument board is fully visible both to the pilot and his passenger. The fuel capacity is 24 gallons.

The ease with which the plane handles makes it an ideal ship for students, and with this in mind the corporation is planning a flying school.

Officers of the distributing firm are J. A. Davis, president; Joseph A. Imeson, secretary-treasurer, and R. E. Patton, vice-president.

A branch office has been opened in Springfield, Ill., by the Universal Credit Co., to extend the authorized Ford finance plan into that part of Illinois. This is the sixty-eighth office of the company which was organized seven years ago for exclusive service to Ford dealers and buyers. The new office is in the First National Bank Building in Springfield, and the manager is F. J. Pursley.

"Three of five purchases of all makes of cars are on a time payment basis," says J. F. Krebs, branch manager for the Universal Credit Co. This buying out of income makes possible large scale production, resulting in greater values. The importance of consumer credit in motor car sales, and what it means to general prosperity, are further emphasized when we know that one out of every ten persons employed is connected directly or indirectly with the automobile business.

"Paying for transportation as it is used and enjoyed has met with public approval. This credit method eliminates the necessity for larger outlays of cash and encourages a more careful and efficient handling of income to make payments as they become due.

"Every day people are returning to gainful employment. The increasing volume of time buying is evidence of the fact that with the return of employment comes the urge to buy necessary transportation representing true value in economy and quality."

Highway Safety in Amsterdam.

FASHION AUTHORITY ASKS ABOUT 1936 CARS

Rita Ross (well known fashion authority of Station KSD, St. Louis): "What can you tell me about the looks of some of the new 1936 motor cars, Mr. Spencer? Have you seen the new Dodge?"

James Spencer (automobile department, St. Louis Post-Dispatch): "In every way the smartest Dodge car ever turned out is the new model for 1936. The refinement in styling, from radiator grille through softly flowing lines to the more graceful rear end, is manifest at the first glance. The interior appointments are more luxurious and cleverly calculated to appeal to women. Owners should find the attractive appearance of their new Dodges a fruitful topic of conversation."

A branch office has been opened in Springfield, Ill., by the Universal Credit Co., to extend the authorized Ford finance plan into that part of Illinois. This is the sixty-eighth office of the company which was organized seven years ago for exclusive service to Ford dealers and buyers. The new office is in the First National Bank Building in Springfield, and the manager is F. J. Pursley.

"Three of five purchases of all makes of cars are on a time payment basis," says J. F. Krebs, branch manager for the Universal Credit Co. This buying out of income makes possible large scale production, resulting in greater values. The importance of consumer credit in motor car sales, and what it means to general prosperity, are further emphasized when we know that one out of every ten persons employed is connected directly or indirectly with the automobile business.

"Paying for transportation as it is used and enjoyed has met with public approval. This credit method eliminates the necessity for larger outlays of cash and encourages a more careful and efficient handling of income to make payments as they become due.

"Every day people are returning to gainful employment. The increasing volume of time buying is evidence of the fact that with the return of employment comes the urge to buy necessary transportation representing true value in economy and quality."

Highway Safety in Amsterdam.

Recent statistics show that Amsterdam is second in Europe only to Stockholm in the matter of traffic safety. Deaths in the Swedish capital were only 5.5 per 100,000 inhabitants. Amsterdam scored 6.4, Paris 10.8, and London 17.

Oldsmobile Dealers Will Hold St. Louis Meeting Wednesday

Oldsmobile dealers and salesmen in the St. Louis zone will be told of Oldsmobile's sales plans for 1936 at a meeting here Wednesday. Leading the delegation of factory officials will be H. A. Trevellyan, assistant general sales manager.

Trevellyan will discuss in detail the expansion program which has just been completed in Lansing, the expenditures totaling $7,500,000.

This expansion includes acquisition of a large new plant in which to build Fisher bodies for Oldsmobile and the expanding of Oldsmobile machining and assembly facilities to make possible production of more cars than have ever before been built in an Oldsmobile factory.

These two plants already are in heavy production, Trevellyan said, with more than 750 cars coming off the final assembly line every day. To give the dealers and salesmen a more definite idea of the Lansing factories, they will be shown a moving picture which will portray Oldsmobile's position in 1936.

"Before Dec. 31, Oldsmobile will have built during the calendar year more than 175,000 automobiles," Trevellyan said. "This will mean a great increase over the previous all time high of 102,028 in 1929.

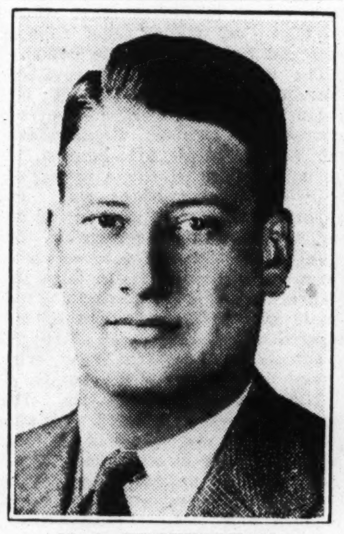
"There has been a heavy increase in Oldsmobile sales in recent months. Advance orders by the thousands already have been received from dealers for the 1936 models."

Oldsmobile, just winding up a year in which all records were broken, faces 1936 with every indication of again setting new all-time highs in prdouction, sales and employment," said Harry A. Klees, Oldsmobile zone manager, on his return from the national sales convention at the Oldsmobile plant in Lansing, at which the wholesale personnel from every part of the country was shown the new 1936 Oldsmobile cars.

"The 1936 models are destined to again set the style in the automotive world. Advancements in design, inside and out, lend a new beauty to the Oldsmobile soon to be introduced.

"When the factory closed its 1935 production season it still had on hand a large number of unfilled detail orders, a condition unprecedented in the industry."

WILL SPEAK AT OLDSMOBILE MEETING HERE



H. A. TREVELLYAN.

Assistant general salesmanager for Oldsmobile, who will address a meeting of dealers and salesmen here Wednesday.

H. A. KLEES.

St. Louis zone manager for Oldsmobile.

Auto Accidents Costly.

Automobile accidents on North Carolina highways during the last six years have cost the State $180,000,000, it is estimated, substantially more than the cost of Government during that period.

Parking Problems in Germany.

Dr. Julius Lippert, State Commissioner for Berlin, has decreed that all new office buildings must have basement garages to avoid parking congestion.

Present at Dealers' Meeting

VISITS ST. LOUIS FOR ADDRESS AT DEALER MEETING

G. H. PRATT.

ASSISTANT general sales manager of the Hudson Motor Car Co., Detroit, who spoke at a meeting of Hudson and Terraplane dealers here yesterday.

Advancing Auto Show Dates May Result in Buying Habits Change

Advancing the date of the national automobile show from January to November this year may result in a new picture in the automobile industry, in the opinion of the National Automobile Dealers' Association after a study of viewpoints expressed by dealer associations and manufacturers.

A letter from national headquarters here to automobile dealer association managers, requesting further opinions on the matter, says:

"The burden of the change will fall upon the automobile dealer. It is comparatively easy for the manufacturer, but the retailing of new cars in the winter depends upon the hard work and advertising by the dealer, not only as that pertains to new cars, but also as to used cars he must take in trade in lieu of cash on the sale of new cars."

Hudson, Terraplane Dealers See 1936 Cars In St. Louis Meeting

Three hundred dealers and salesmen attended a meeting yesterday at the Coronado Hotel held by the Hudson and Terraplane Sales Corporation, local distributer, and inspected the new 1936 Hudson and Terraplane cars,

G. H. Pratt, assistant general salesmanager of the Hudson Motor Car Co., conducted the meeting. In his talk Pratt noted the rapid strides made in the past year by the Hudson Co. He said that Hudson and Terraplane dealers could expect an exceptionally large increase in business in 1936, as the new Hudson line was one of the most beautiful in the industry and general business conditions were definitely on the upgrade.

Orders were taken for 492 cars, which will be shipped as promptly as the increasing production in Detroit will permit.

During the morning the dealers were given a pre-view of the new cars, and in the afternoon session they were shown the sales promotion and advertising programs for the 1936 models. The larger part of the advertising will be in newspapers.

Employes Urged to Use Vigilance and Care in Driving

Employes of Swift & Co. have been instructed by G. F. Swift, president of the concern, to exercise the greatest vigilance and care in the operation of company cars and trucks and of their own automobiles.

"Most accidents are caused by a lack of ordinary precaution—usually fast driving," Swift's letter to the company's branch manager, M. Z. Irish, says. "I do not think there is a proper realization of the risk. I wish that every employe would take a moment to consider the shock and financial hardship to his family that would follow a serious accident, and also give consideration to the loss that would be felt by the company in a temporary or permanent deprivation of his services. Often pedestrians do not take ordinary precautions for their safety, and many accidents can be averted if employes on foot will keep in mind the hazards of traffic.

"Careful driving and proper regard for others, and exercise of due caution by pedestrians, will reduce accidents not only in number, but also in severity."

SUNDAY IS AD DAY

CHILDREN CAN HARDLY WAIT FOR THE SUNDAY NEWSPAPER

Nearly every normal boy or girl gets up bright and early Sunday and begins to tease for the Sunday newspaper The Comic Sections are just as important to the children as eating breakfast in millions of American homes each Sunday The children's interest in the Comic Sections is equalled and even exceeded by the interest of the grown-ups in other sections of the Big Sunday newspaper---General News, Editorial, Sports, Society, Financial, Rotogravure and Magazine Sections. Taken in its entirety the Sunday newspaper is an indispensable part of the home life of America. "SUNDAY IS AD DAY."

TAIL AND FINS OFFERED IN SUPPORT OF FISH TALE

This One Jumped 40 Feet Through Ship's Port and Batted Head Against Ceiling.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12.—How a two-foot fish leaped 40 feet out of the sea, threaded a main deck porthole and dashed its head against the ceiling of a stateroom was told by passengers on the ship arriving here from the Orient.

C. H. Elliott, British attache a Hong Kong, and Mrs. Elliott produced a tail and long-webbed fins which they said belonged to the identical fish. The fish made its jump, they said, not far out of Hong Kong in a sea which had a moderate chop. They insisted there was no possibility that a wave had thrown the fish into the boat.

"The fish apparently saw the open port and decided to jump through it," said Capt. J. F. Patrick, who vouched for the tale.

AMPLIFIES CHARGE OF VOTING FRAUD IN BOND ELECTION

P. O. Peters, Director of Citizens' Committee Opposing Issue, Says Registration Was Padded.

NOTES UNIFORMITY OF THE MAJORITIES

Charges that the registration for the special bond election of Sept. 10 was heavily padded and that fraudulent returns of the vote were made in several precincts were amplified yesterday by Paul O. Peters, executive director of the Citizens' Nonpartisan Committee.

The committee, which opposed the $7,500,000 bond issue for the city's share of cost of the proposed Jefferson memorial on the river front, has demanded a Federal investigation in letters sent to President Roosevelt, PWA officials and others, as was told last week. The memorial bonds were passed by a vote of 123,133 to 50,574 and an issue of $800,000 for rail approaches of Municipal Bridge was passed by almost the same vote. The PWA and WPA have been asked to furnish $22,500,000 of the cost of the memorial.

Charges Ballot Box Stuffing.

Peters displayed to a Post-Dispatch reporter numerous affidavits and studies of the registration and election figures in support of his charges. He also showed two letters received from citizens last week.

One letter, written by a man who said he was a Republican clerk in a midtown precinct in the bond election, asserted that from 150 to 185 fraudulent ballots were placed in the ballot box by a Democratic judge in this precinct. He said the returns showed a proportion of about 30 to 1 in favor of the bonds and added he would be glad to testify before the grand jury if his name were kept secret.

The other letter was from a man in a North Side river ward, who did not vote, but said his neighbor, a park division employe, canvassed the vicinity, then told some one at the polls "who would vote and who would not." Peters gave the returns in this precinct as 575 votes for both bond items and 14 against, out of a registration of 630.

Peters has been receiving a number of letters daily about the demand for an investigation, at his home, 1819 Thurman avenue, and his office, 300 Merchants-Laclede building.

Affidavits Obtained.

Peters and other representatives of the Citizens' Committee, accompanied by notaries public, have made canvasses of several precincts, obtaining affidavits of voters who said they either did not vote, or that they voted against the bonds. These affidavits were examined by the reporter.

In the fourth precinct of the Twenty-second Ward, inhabited largely by Negroes, returns showed 505 votes for the bridge bonds and none against, Peters said. However, he showed 16 affidavits by residents of the precinct who declared they voted against the bonds and 34 affidavits by others who said they did not vote. The printed list prepared by the Election Board after the supplementary registration preceding the election showed 486 voters registered from this precinct. A record of registration furnished a Post-Dispatch reporter by the Election Board last week gave the enrollment for this precinct as 506.

The thirteenth precinct of the Twentieth Ward had a registration of 487 and returned 438 votes for the memorial bonds and six against, Peters continued. However, he exhibited 34 affidavits by residents of this precinct, who said they voted against these bonds, and 40 affidavits by others who sai dthey did not vote. In addition, Peters said he had learned that four of the registrants were dead, one refrained from voting because of her husband's death, five were out of town on election day, and four had moved out of the precinct. Two women, who said they voted "no," declined to sign affidavits and another woman, who did not vote, was too ill to sign.

466 Votes, 464 Registered.

For the tenth precinct of the Third Ward, Peters showed affidavits that 23 voters voted against the bonds, 74 failed to vote, six had removed from the precinct before the election and one was serving a term in the workhouse, but was carried on the poll list contrary to law, according to Peters. The registration for the precinct was 464, but the returns showed 461 votes for both bond items and five against, Peters said. Furthermore, Peters added, his canvass disclosed that a total of 36 voters had moved out of the precinct before the election, and his committee had received more than five pledges to vote against the bonds from this precinct.

A Republican election official of another Third Ward precinct, who had signed a pledge to work and vote against the memorial bonds, told Peters that the returns, which were counted at better than 10 to 1 in favor of the bonds by the precinct officers, were boosted, by 75 votes, to a ratio of 50 to 3, as given out by the Election Board. The same official asserted that some election workers had threatened that voters in his precinct would be taken off public relief rolls if they did not vote for the bonds.

The vote exceeded the registration in the fourth precinct of the Twentieth Ward, Peters averred, giving these figures: Registration, 482; for the bonds, 512; against, 11, on both items. Uniform voting on both bond propositions was regarded by Peters as ground for being suspicious of the returns. He pointed out that the vote was uniform on the two items in 15 of the 23 precincts of the Twentieth Ward, in 13 of the 15 precincts of the Fourth Ward, and in 11 of the 13 precincts in the Fifth Ward, with heavy majorities for the bonds.

Topheavy majorities for the bonds also were regarded with suspicion by Peters, who had estimated before the election that 58,000 votes could be mustered against the memorial proposal on the basis of pledges and organized opposition. He cited the vote in two precincts of the Fourth Ward, which is dominated by Justice of the Peace Jimmy Miller, a Democratic Committeeman; Sixth precinct, 306 registered, 180 "yes" and 5 "no" on both items; Twelfth precinct, 669 registered, 557 "yes" and 7 "no" on both items.

The second precinct of the Fifth Ward, a downtown section, had 497 voters registered and returned 398 votes for and one vote against both items, Peters continued. However, he said, a friend residing in the precinct informed him that he and others there had voted against the bonds, and Peters had pledges against the bonds from several residents of the precinct.

Citizen Says Vote Was Changed.

Peters asserted a voter in the twentieth precinct of the Twentieth Ward, who remembered the number of his ballot, told the citizens' committee that the ballot was handed him already marked in favor of both propositions, but that he erased the marks and made it read "no," only to see some one in the polling place change it back to a favorable vote before it was cast.

A comparison of the count of voters registered for the bond election, as shown on the Election Board's printed sheets obtained by Peters and as furnished from records to a Post-Dispatch reporter at the board office last week, showed larger figures in some precincts in the latter list than in the former. The Post-Dispatch was informed at the board office that the Fourth Ward had 10,628 voters registered, but Peters said he counted only 9636 on the printed sheets—a difference of 992. The vote in the ward was less than 4200.

"It looks very much as though the registration had been padded by 25,000 names," Peters asserted. "We intend to prove by affidavits that a large fraudulent vote was counted from hotel and rooming house sections, and that transients, tramps and floaters not entitled to vote were allowed to vote. I believe that padding of the poll lists in the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh wards, along the river, has been carried forward for several years.

Same Address for 134.

"At 410 North Wharf, in the second precinct of the Fifth Ward, an old stone building, 131 Negroes and three white men were registered. Only a fraction of that number of persons could find sleeping accommodations there. At 7 Market street, an old building at the corner of Commercial alley, on an 18 or 20 foot lot, 52 Negroes and four whites are registered. The place would not accommodate nearly that many."

Examination by the reporter of the official registration lists in Peters' possession showed that 164 persons were enrolled as voters from 518 Chestnut street, described by Peters as a small hotel, and 131 from the St. Francis Hotel, 604 Chestnut, including State Senator Michael Kinney, Fifth Ward Democratic committeeman. These establishments are in the first precinct, Fifth Ward. The list for the second precinct of the ward carried only surnames for 14 of the Negroes enrolled from 410 North Wharf.

Says Police Ejected Challengers.

Charles Hug and William Sturm, carrying authentic credentials as challengers and watchers for the citizens' committee in the Twelfth and Eighteenth precincts of the Fourteenth Ward, respectively, were summarily ejected from the polling places by police on election day, Peters declared. He pointed out that Mayor Dickmann resided in this ward, where Rudie Goerts, the Republican committeeman, actively opposed the memorial bonds.

In support of his assertion that ballot box stuffing occurred in some precincts, Peters had a tabulation of the vote in 57 precincts of the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first and Twenty-second wards. In these precincts the memorial bonds were credited with 22,954 votes, with only 760 votes against them.

A voter told Peters that officials of a Fifteenth Ward precinct at Grand boulevard and Shenandoah avenue wore buttons in favor of the bond issue at the polls. Peters asserted this was in violation of the law against electioneering by judges and clerks.

Appeal to Roosevelt.

In the letters to President Roosevelt and other Federal officials, dated Sept. 21, Peters said: "Investigations to date, based on incontestable evidence supported by affidavits, justify the charge of an organized attempt to obtain money from the Federal Government by fraud. Indisputable proof of stuffing of ballot boxes, voting of deceased persons and stealing of thousands of votes is clearly indicated by evidence compiled to date." The letters added that the citizens' committee was non-partisan and non-political and had no hostile feelings towards any political organization or individual.

The Citizens' Nonpartisan League, of which William L. Bohenkamp, a lawyer, is chairman, has about 8000 members, Bohenkamp has said.

The Grand Boulevard Taxpayers' Association, meeting Friday night at Carpenter Library, unanimously indorsed the committee's demand for a Federal investigation. This was the eighth improvement or taxpayers' organization to adopt such a resolution, Peters announced.

PARENT EDUCATION MEETING

Sessions to Be Held Two Days, Oct. 21 and 22.

Parent education will be discussed at a two-day conference, Oct. 21 and 22, under joint auspices of University College of Washington University and the St. Louis Council of Parent Education. Sessions will be held at Hotel Statler and Soldan High School.

Speakers will include Dr. Mandel Sherman of the University of Chicago, Dr. Henry Gerling, superintendent of instruction of the public schools; Dean Frank M. Debatin of Washington University, Miss Jennie Wahlert of the Council of Parent Education, Mrs. Alexander S. Langsdorf and Dean F. M. Crowley of St. Louis University.

Golden Wedding Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ellison of Nuroad, St. Louis County, are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today. He was employed by the Union Electric Light & Power Co. for 40 years until his retirement five years ago. Recently he opened a confectionary adjoining his home. Mr. Ellison is 76 years old, his wife 74. He is one of the founders of the old Missouri District Telegraph and Messenger Service. They have one daughter, Mrs. A. W. Meyer.

PART THREE

TINTAGEL
COLDSTRE

HOLLYROOD IS SECOND WITH JEAN BART THIRD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—He carried the label of a quitter as he went to the post today, but a few minutes later when 18 of the country's ranking two-year-olds pounded in front of the judges' stand, it was Tintagel in front, carrying the silks of Marshall Field to victory in the forty-sixth running of the Futurity at Belmont Park.

The bay son of Sir Gallahad III had won five of his eight previous starts, largely because of his early speed, but when the real test confronted him he had folded up in the stretch. Today, however, before a crowd of 30,000, he refused to quit and coupling the new-found stamina with his famous speed, finished the six and one-half furlongs a length in front of Hal Price Headley's Hollyrood to earn $67,620 — the winner's share of the turf's second richest prize, amounting to $84,420.

Coucci Rides the Winner.

With Silvio Coucci in the saddle, Tintagel, yet to meet defeat on the Widener course, shot out of the pack in the first furlong and staved off the closing challenge of his rivals. Hollyrood, a 20 to 1 shot, just managed to take the place by a head from Walter M. Jeffords' Jean Bart, seeking to duplicate the 1919 performance of his famous sire, Man o'War.

There were those in the crowd who packed the track for the final day of the meeting, who had faith in the field colt, with the result he was quoted at 7 to 1 in a wide open betting race. The victory boosted his total earnings for the year to $76,270 and to the top of the money winning list in his division. Jean Bart, an easy winner of his previous race, was held at 8 to 1.

Favorite Out of Money.

The disappointments of the race were Elmer Dale Shaffers' Coldstream and C. V. Whitney's Red Rain, which figured to settle an argument that sent them into the race with one victory each and a dead heat. They went to the post the split favorites at 7 to 2 but neither figured seriously in the running. Coldstream did manage to stay close for the first quarter mile, but found the pace too swift and dropped back to eighth. Red Rain was never even that close, starting near the tail-end and finishing not much better—tenth.

The Wheatley Stable's Snark, coupled with his stablemate, Teufel, and William Woodward's Granville as the third choice at 18 to 5, made the best showing of the highly regarded colts. He forced the pace to the last furlong and then dropped back to fourth, only a head out of the money picture as Tintagel was clocked in 1:17 2-5 in giving his owner his second Futurity winner, High Strung having won in 1924. The time was one-fifth of a second faster than the mark made by Chance Sun last year.

Firethorn Wins Cup Race.

Although beaten out in the Futurity, Walter M. Jeffords had better luck in the two miles of the Jockey Club Gold Cup, sending out Firethorn and Judy O'Grady to run one, two at the prohibitive odds of 1 to 15. In winning the purse of $6050, Firethorn, second to Omaha in the Preakness earlier in the season, beat his stablemate by five lengths and was timed in 3:24 1-5.

Missouri Uses Passes and Tricky Running Plays to Defeat Colorado, 20 to 6

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 12.—The University of Missouri cleared the first big hurdle in its path back to football glory by defeating a stubbornly-battling University of Colorado eleven, 20-6, today.

Approximately 8500 fans gazed in delight as Coach Don Faurot's team uncovered a choice assortment of double and triple laterals, forward passes, befuddling running attacks and smart blocking that accounted for a touchdown in each of the first three quarters, and showed a defense which, after a brilliant Colorado scoring thrust at the start of the game, stopped the Buffaloes cold.

Faurot sent squad after squad of stalwarts onto the field, and stars rose to shine from each group. Frye, Londe, Mahley, Lochiner, Murray, all had their moments of glory in the backfield. Gray, Grenda—in fact, the entire line did what was asked of it, and more.

Against this assortment of capable young men Colorado presented a one-man offense. Bill Lam carried the ball on nearly every play. Rolled out like a pie crust time and again, wilting in the heat which took its toll in pounds, the indominatable Lam arose time and again to plunge back for more. He was a standout all afternoon.

Fans hardly were settled in their seats before they were gripped by a breathless apprehension. Colorado received the kickoff and, with Lam shoveling the coal, marched down the field to the Tiger six-yard line, from where Anderson scooted around end for a touchdown. Biggs blocked Wagner's placekick.

Then it was Missouri's turn, and the Tigers never let up. The Tigers, the blockers blocking with machine-like precision; the ball car-

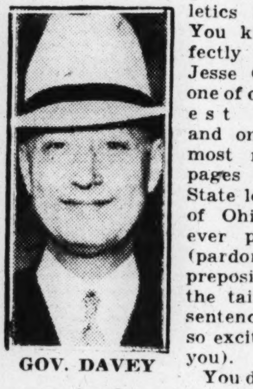
WRAY'S COLUMN

Oh I Say, Governor!

GOVERNOR MARTIN L. DAVEY, of Ohio, rising on his hind-legs, lets the world know that "most of the members of the Ohio State University football team are on the commonwealth's payroll."

Pursuing the thought the Governor admits that "he recognized the fact that football has become the supreme purpose of higher education."

Why Governor! We are astonished! Why not give track athletics a break! You know perfectly well that Jesse Owens is one of our greatest sprinters and one of the most renowned pages that the State legislators of Ohio were ever paged by (pardon the preposition on the tail of that sentence—we're so excited about you).



GOV. DAVEY

You don't even recognize Owens' elevation to the payroll in your speech. But there he is. Does not that place track athletics on the same high plane with football as one of the supreme purposes of collegiate curricula (or is it curriculi or perhaps curriculae—it's been more than 40 years since we first declined mensa. N. B.—Imagine us declining anything today, especially an invitation to lunch).

* * *

They Earn Their Pay, Guv.

AND, furthermore Guv, you know perfectly well that the supreme purpose of putting the boys on the payroll is, besides getting a days' work out of them, to make them useful in paying off the bonds on the stadium—if any—and thus save John Thomas Taxpayer from the necessity of taking over. You wouldn't let a poor stadium bond holder suffer, would you?

And, besides, there's the matter of getting the boys a degree. One of the higher purposes of higher education is to provide the boy who can't pay for his schooling a chance to get it. You give him a job working for the state. He

Illinois' Amazing Offense Beats Southern California 19 to 0 Before 50,000 Fans

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—Illinois unleashed an amazing display of football pyrotechnics to defeat Southern California here today, 19 to 0, in the West's first big intersectional encounter of the season.

Fifty thousand persons watched the fighting Illini play almost letter-perfect football as they passed their more ponderous opponents dizzy.

In the second period a blocked punt paved the way for Coach Bob Zuppke's eleven to score its opening touchdown. The second came directly from a blocked punt and the final counter, in the third period, was indirectly the result of the "flying trapeze" play.

Blocked Kick Brings a Score.

Elvin Sayre, center for the Illini, crashed through to block Pappas' punt in the second period and the ball belonged to the invaders on the Trojan 40-yard line. Lowell Spurgeon drew in the secondary with a thrust at the line and then

MUSTANGS SCORE TWICE ON RUNS OF 85 AND 84 YARDS AFTER INTERCEPTING PASSES

By J. Roy Stockton.

A Mustang kicked a Bear squarely between the eyes at Francis Field yesterday afternoon. It was a tough Mustang and well trained. It knew more tricks than a high school horse. It was much too tough and much too well-trained for the Bear and after the prescribed 60 minutes of competition on Washington University's football field, the Bear was well scuffed and soundly thrashed, 35 to 6.

There were spectators among the 10,000 who thought that Jimmy Conzelman's football eleven did not show a full quota of fight, but the more sensible conclusion is that the Bear went out of his class when he tackled the Mustang, the Southern Methodists of Dallas, Tex.

Touchdown in Three Minutes.

Two minutes and 50 seconds after the battle started the Southern Methodists scored a touchdown and that fact and the ease with which Matty Bell's smoothly working eleven gained almost at will against Washington belied any tendency the statistics of the contest might have to indicate that the Bear was not outclassed.

According to the record keepers, the Bear made five first downs to the Mustang's eleven and gained 71 yards to the Methodists' 135. But the margin of superiority of the visitors was much greater than those figures would indicate.

Bears Score on 55-Yard Pass-Run.

Only once did the Washington team flash a scoring attack and that was in the second quarter when Bucking Joe Bukant, a sturdy mountain of a boy, who throws forward passes as a baseball catcher throws a baseball to second base, fired a pass across field to Bob Hudgens who ran the rest of the distance needed to give the Bears 55 yards and the only Washington touchdown of the afternoon.

Except for that aerial bomb, there was nothing productive about the Bear attack. Spinner plays were stopped before the back stopped spinning. Forward passes were the most profitable weapon, and even they proved boomerangs as the Mustang intercepted four of them and turned two of them into immediate touchdowns.

Two Long Runs by Mustangs.

On one of the intercepted passes, the Mustang galloped 85 yards to the Washington goal and on another the ball was carried from the Mustang 16-yard line to turn a Bear attack into oats for the Mustang.

During the second half the Bear made a more respectable showing, holding the Mustang to one touchdown, but there was little glory or consolation in that, as second and third string members of the vast Mustang horde were doing most of the galloping after the one-sided first half.

There were five Southern Methodist touchdowns, a goal from the field and two converted points after touchdowns. Bob Wilson scored two of the touchdowns, one of them on an intercepted pass by Jim Russell, who readily lateralled to Bob and ran interference for him as the fleet-footed star of the Dallas horde raced 85 yards down the side of the field.

Harry Shuford, one of the Mustang captains. Ray Acker and Henry Guynes scored one each and Maurice Orr place-kicked two points after touchdowns and kicked a goal from field.

Bears Show Plenty of Fight.

There was plenty of fight in the Beear teaem, but it was over-shadowed by Mustang superiority. The visitors excelled in every department of the game, it seemed to observers. When the Mustang received a kick, he had time to look around, pick his favorite route and then advance behind interference. The Bears were at their worst trying to stop runbacks. They waved at the Mustang, missing tackle after tackle. In contrast when the Bear found himself with the ball—and that was only when he received a punt or a kickoff—the Mustang tackled quickly and hard.

The same thing was true of the passing attack. The Mustang fell back and passed where he wished. Time and again the Bear would try a forward pass, only to be handcuffed and hobbled by the quick-charging Mustang.

There were occasional exceptions, Norman Tomlinson was down on one punt in the third quarter and tackled the Mustang before he could take a step. Tomlinson also broke through and nailed a would-be Mustang passer in the fourth quarter and it was a fine piece of work, even if it did happen to be nullified by a Bear being off-side.

Mustang Defense Too Stout.

It must have been that the Mustang defense was too stout for the Bear and that the same was true of the attack. Joe Bukant hit the line with all he had and Bob Hudgens, Chick Droke, Don Wimberly and the other Bear ball-carriers tried every trick in the bag. But except for the one touchdown forward pass, there was no definition to the Washington offense.

Conzelman's team was at its best in the third quarter and twice during that period, it seemed that the Washington attack was about to click profitably. But after making 14 yards on one series of downs, the attack crumpled and the Bear had to kick. And the next time Washington got the ball, two first downs—one for 12 and another for 14—were nullified when a pass was

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 12.—Nebraska's dream of a national football championship lay trampled in the sod of Memorial Stadium tonight. Minnesota, undefeated since 1932 and rated as the national champion of 1934, bowled the Cornhuskers over today, 12 to 7, in a bruising battle, witnessed by 36,000 spectators, the biggest crowd to see the Cornhuskers in action since 1925.

Seldom has such football drama been packed into 60 minutes of any game. Almost before the tense, howling fans had settled in their seats, Minnesota had scored. From then on until the finish it was a desperately waged conflict, with the Cornhuskers rallying magnificently in the fourth period and missing two chances to win the game by inches.

Roscoe Scores Again.

In the second period Roscoe again scored, scrambling over the goal line from Nebraska's four-yard line. Both of Minnesota's attempts to annex the extra points were blocked.

The Cornhuskers' single touchdown was registered on two plays after the start of the second period. With the ball on Minnesota's 32-yard line, Sam Francis, Nebraska fullback, made it a first down with a plunge of a yard.

The Gophers, who haven't lost a football game since Wisconsin beat them 20 to 13 three years ago, appeared to have the same power and drive that swept them to national honors last year. Tied four times in 1933, they ran their string of successive victories up to 10 today, winning eight of them last year.

They revealed tremendous power in a bruising, driving attack and stonewall resistance in defense. Roscoe, the Gophers' terror at left half, was a football team all by himself. He carried the ball 31 times, gaining 137 yards for an average of 4.45.

In contrast, Lloyd Cardwell, Nebraska's "Wild Horse" halfback and press agented as an early bidder for All-America honors, was smothered throughout the game, and fumbled away other chances for glory.

Even Fight in Second Half.

The Cornhuskers, outplayed the first two periods, fought the Gophers fairly even in the third and then came back with a magnificent rally in the fourth that gave them two opportunities to win. Seizing advantage of a break, when Douglass punted 72 yards from his own 25-yard line, the ball rolled to the Minnesota two-yard line, with Roscoe fumbling it and Shirey recovering for Nebraska.

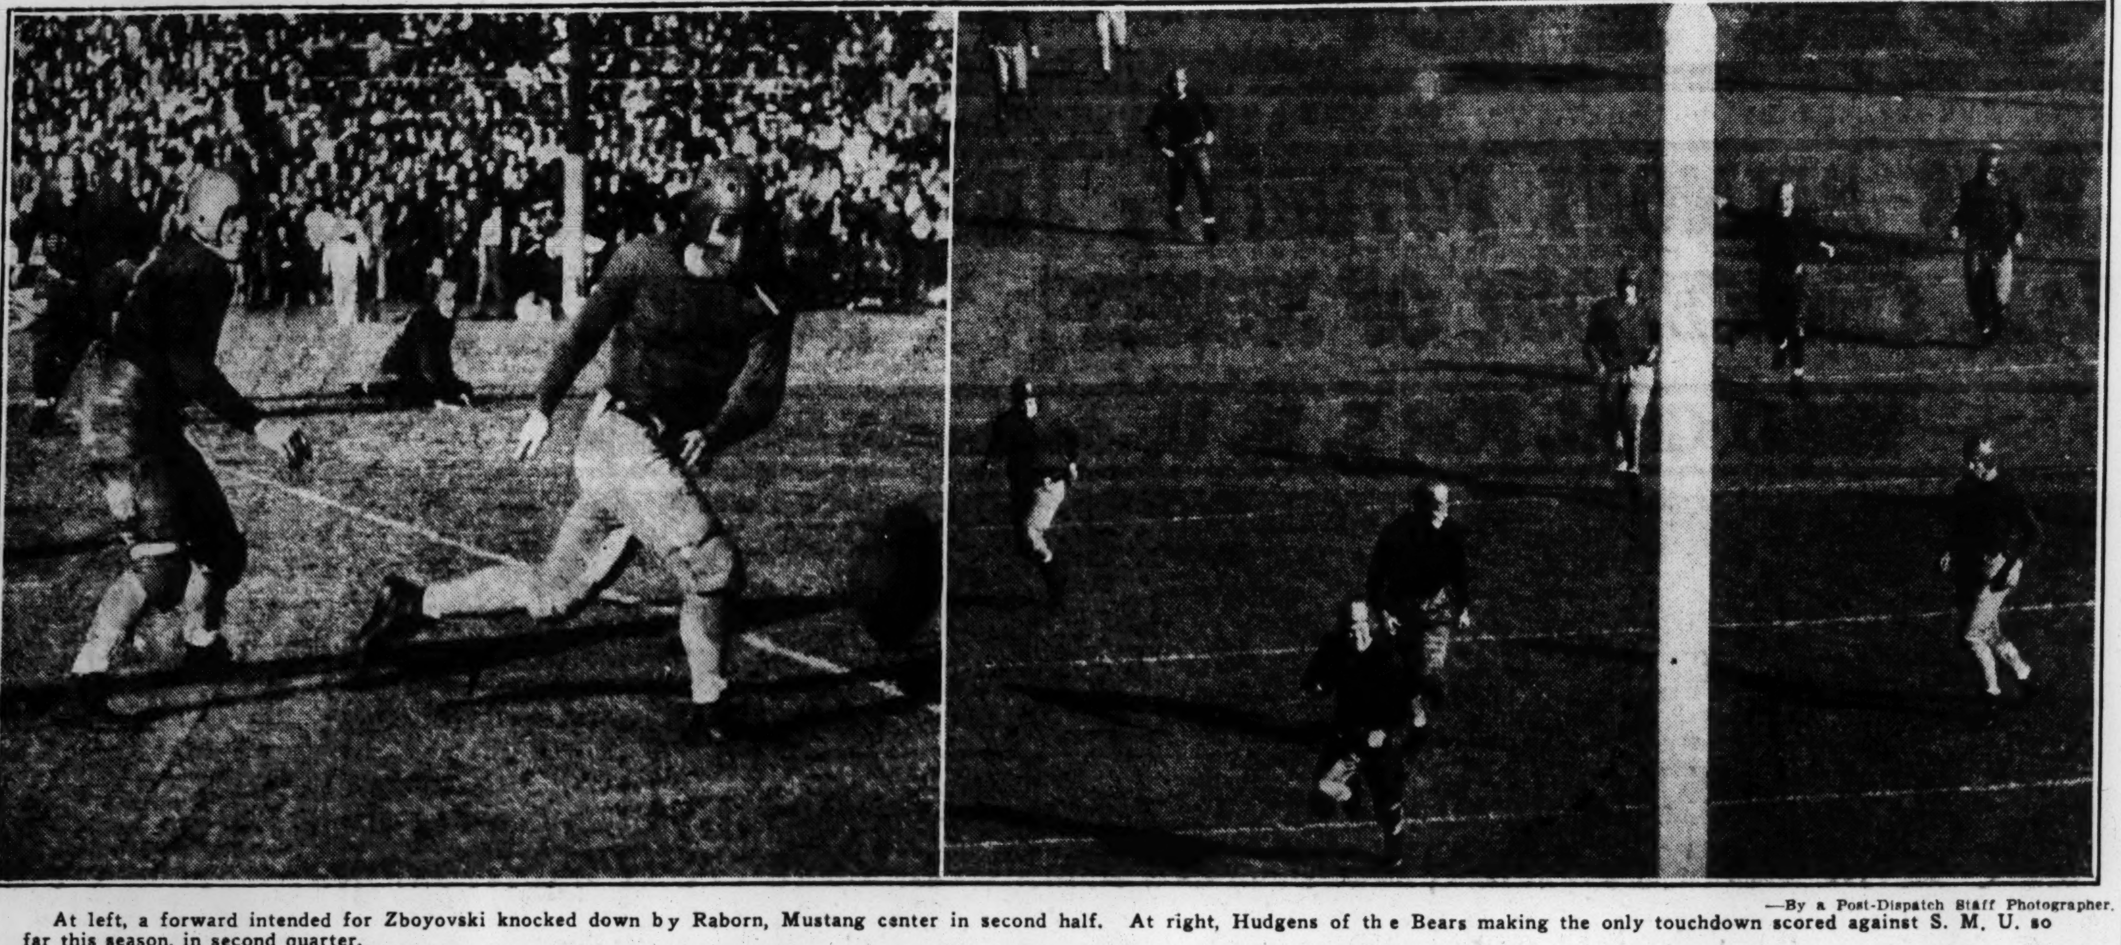
Lloyd Cardwell immediately began operations in an attempt to score, but found that the Minnesota line wouldn't budge. He and Lanoue bumped their head into it and were thrown back.

Then on the next attempt Cardwell fumbled, recovered, but was thrown for an eight-yard loss to Minnesota's 10-yard line. Douglas, in desperation to score and possibly win the game, tossed a long forward pass to Cardwell but it was batted down and their chance was lost.

With less than 5 minutes to go, the Cornhuskers opened up with another bristling attack, running the ends and throwing passes. Roscoe punted to Nebraska's 30-yard line, and Douglas tossed a 21-yard pass to Lanoue, taking the ball to midfield. Cardwell darted around left end, going to Minnesota's 36 and Lanoue shot around right end to the Gophers' 16-yard line.

Cardwell was run out of bounds on the Minnesota 11-yard line after a gain of five yards and again the Minnesota line refused to yield, with the Cornhuskers failing to gain a yard on four smashes. The Gophers recovered the ball on downs and the danger was over.

Washington on the Attack and the Only Score of Year Against S. M. U.



At left, a forward intended for Zboyovski knocked down by Raborn, Mustang center in second half. At right, Hudgens of the Bears making the only touchdown scored against S. M. U. so far this season, in second quarter.

intercepted to swell the Mustang point total.

Usually it was hit the line for a yard, skirt the wing for a yard, or a couple of incomplete passes, and then punt.

Bears' Kickers Rushed.

And as the Bear offense was unable to function in the face of the Mustang defense, so the Washington line seemed built of straw as the Mustang charged through. Time and again the Bear, trying to punt, found himself so rushed that he fumbled or kicked only to have the ball crash against a surging wall of wild Mustangs.

Bob Hudgens received the opening kick-off of the game and was stopped at his 24-yard line. Bob tried the line but gained only a yard. A spinner wouldn't spin and the Bears were penalized five yards for offside. Droke was stopped and when Zboyovski tried to kick, the ball was blocked by Spain and recovered by Tipton, on Washington's 22-yard line.

Burt passed to Wilson and the ball was on the Bear seven-yard line. Wilson, a dodging tricky Mustang, then skirted the Bears' right end for a touchdown that accurately told that the Mustang was in for a pleasant and easy afternoon.

Bear Fumble Leads to Field Goal.

A few minutes later the Bears received a kick deep in their territory and put the ball in play on the 19-yard line. Droke made six, but a gain by Bukant was nullified by an offside penalty. Droke made a bit around end, but Hudgens failed on an off-tackle thrust and when Bukant, back to kick, fumbled a pass from center, the Mustang took the ball 19 yards from home.

Washington dug in and held stoutly, after the visitors had advanced to the two-yard line, but Orr dropped back and booted a field goal between the posts and the score was Southern Methodist, 10; Washington, 0.

An entirely new S. M. U. team took the field for the second quarter, which added to the Washington gloom when another touchdown quickly followed. The period opened with the ball on the Bears' 12-yard line as the result of a varied attack. Meyers, sub for Wilson, made two yards. A penalty of 15 yards failed to stop the Mustangs, as Finley circled end for eight yards and then threw a pass to Acker for a touchdown.

First Touchdown Against S. M. U.

The Mustang kick-off that followed traveled only about 10 yards and it was Washington's ball on its 45-yard line. Bukant, on the first play, dropped back and hurled a pass across the field to Hudgens, who did an excellent bit of broken field running to cover the remaining 15 or 20 yards needed to produce the first touchdown of the year against the Southern Methodist Mustang.

Before the half ended, however, the touchdown seemed unimportant. Unable to do anything through the line or around the wings, the Bears' only hope seemed to be in the air. Pass after pass was attempted and when Russell intercepted one of them he flipped a lateral to Wilson, who ran 85 yards for a touchdown.

Interception or no, the air was still the only profitable medium for Conezlman's men and they stuck to their passes. And soon Shuford grabbed one and raced 84 yards for the fourth Mustang touchdown.

Washington held the visitors even in the third quarter, but in the fourth the Mustang put on another drive against the weary Bear and Guynes finally plunged over for touchdown No. 5.

Washington should not feel too badly about the defeat. There were high hopes that this 1935 team was going to cut a wide swath through the football firmament. But the hopes apparently were too high. And the Mustang was too tough.

HOOF PRINTS

Paul Locke had a clear field in the second quarter when he missed a long pass from Bukant. It would have been another touchdown.

Southern Methodist gave a great demonstration of blocking. When Wilson was running 85 yards for a touchdown he slowed up until Finley took care of Mike Zboyovski, the only Bear remaining in his way.

In the first quarter the Bears seemed to be terrified, especially after Southern Methodist romped to its first touchdown.

"We did all we could," Coach Conzelman said after the game. "The boys fought hard, but they were outclassed."

"Conzelman has a fine bunch of boys," was the way Coach Matty Bell of the Mustangs put it. "But they ran into a fine bunch of men. The Washington team was no match for mine. We were bigger, harder, faster and better. The big men on the Bear team are just heavy. They carry excess fat. My big men are big in bone and muscle. There was a distinct difference in manpower between the two teams and it was reflected in the result."

In the first quarter the Bears had the ball four times and gained a total of 12 yards. The fourth time they held the ball they lost five yards, these figures including penalties and being based on the position of the ball when they started scrimmage and where it was when they were forced to kick.

Even in defeat the Bears looked very pretty in their gold pants. Every minute you expected them to break into a musical comedy number and do a "shuffle off to Buffalo." There was really no comparison between the Mustang and Bear uniforms, but the crowd would have swapped all the gold panties for a few more touchdowns.

WHOPPER TAKES $10,000 AGAWAM HANDICAP

By the Associated Press.

AGAWAM, Mass., Oct. 12.—Whopper, Hal Price Headley's giant bay colt, won the $10,000 added Agawam Handicap at Agawam Park today before a crowd of 25,000.

Flamenco, English colt expected to make his American debut in the mile race, was scratched this morning by his trainer, Will Irvine, who announced that, in his opinion, the colt will not be ready for the American wars for another week.

ILLINOIS SURPRISES SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA WINNING BY 19-0 SCORE

started the pass throwing. He tossed to Wilbur Henry for 15 yards and the quarterback went on to the 10. Then Henry threw the ball to Gene Dykstra, who was nailed on the six.

Spurgeon flung one with Henry catching the ball on the one-foot line. Henry promptly employed the quarterback sneak to cross the goal. Spurgeon missed the try for point.

Southern California, with Pappas doing most of the work, made a stirring comeback to carry the ball to Illinois' 34 but a pass over the goal line failed to click and the Middle-Westerners drove their opponents back immediately with an exchange of kicks.

Once more Troy waited until fourth down to punt and Nelson broke through to block the kick on the Southern California 40. He followed the bounding ball back to the 30, where he picked it up and raced across the goal line. Spurgeon's kick from placement again was wide.

An exchange of punts again worked Troy back into its own territory as the third period opened. It took Illinois just two plays in which to score from Southern California's 46. It was the famous "flying trapeze" play that put the ball on the one-foot line.

Henry took the ball after a double reverse and regained possession again on a lateral from Bob Grieve or his own 45.

He threw a long looping pass to Spurgeon, who was standing unguarded on the Trojan 20-yard line. Immediately he whirled and dashed for the goal line but stepped out of bounds a foot short of scoring.

Zuppke Cleans the Bench.

Once more Henry employed the sneak play through center to score. This time Spurgeon booted the extra point.

Pappas took Southern California charging back into Illini territory again, only to have his teammate Cliff Propst fumble the ball on the 20-yard line, where Illinois' captain, Charles Galbreath, recovered.

Illinois threatened again late in the fourth on passes, but Coach Zuppke had cleaned his bench and the substitutes lacked the necessary deception to score.

The game marked Zuppke's fifth victory over Coach Jones. He held four decisions to two over Jones when the latter was coaching at Iowa.

SYRACUSE AERIAL ATTACK SPELLS THIRD DEFEAT FOR CORNELL

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 12. — Syracuse passed its way to a 21-14 victory over Cornell today in their first game on Syracuse soil since 1898. It was Cornell's third loss in a row and Syracuse's second win. The game was witnessed by 10,000.

Helen Stephens Easy Winner Over New Sprinting "Marvel"

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 12.—The brave attempt of Elizabeth Zay, 17-year-old Springfield (Mo.) high school girl, to cut a niche in the women's athletic hall of fame today ended in heart-breaking defeat.

The Springfield lass, who outran all competition in the Ozarks country and who came here to beat Helen Stephens, saw the flying figure of Miss Stephens of Fulton, Mo., fade into the distance in two exhibition races between halves of the Colorado-Missouri football game.

The tall, lithe, long-limbed girl from Fulton, who skyrocketed to game with a sensational victory over Stella Walsh, literally ran away from the plucky girl who found the competition of a champion too much for her sturdy legs.

Miss Stephens won the 50-yard dash in 5.9 seconds by 10 yards. She was away like a greyhound in the 100-yard event. Every long stride increased her lead.

At 75 yards Miss Zay, feet beating a staccato tattoo on the cinders as she pounded along in a futile effort to make a race of it in the 100-yard event, glanced toward the disappearing heels of the great Fulton runner. In a gesture of helplessness she threw up her hands and trotted from the track and back toward the starting line.

With the grace of an antelope Miss Stephens continued another 50 yards beyond the finish, then turned and walked slowly back. Another challenge had been met with the inevitable result. It was the triumph of sheer class over a game effort which just wasn't good enough.

INDIANA FUMBLE GIVES MICHIGAN VICTORY, 7 TO 0

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 12. — A fumbled punt behind the enemy goal line gave the University of Michigan a 7 to 0 victory over Indiana today. It was the Wolverines' first victory over a Big Ten foe in two seasons.

Vern Huffman, Hoosier quarterback, dropped a punt in the end zone, in the second period. Matt Patanelli, Michigan end, fell on the ball for the only touchdown of the game. Viergever place-kicked the extra point. Each team repulsed numerous scoring threats during the game.

13 Touchdowns For Ohio State Against Drake

By the Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12.

OHIO State tossed a 13-touchdown barrage at Drake today and upset the Bulldogs 85 to 7. The Ohioans had no trouble scoring by any method they chose, and ran up the largest score a Buckeye team has ever made in historic Ohio Stadium.

STAGG'S ELEVEN DEFEATED BY 33-0

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12. — A game, but outmanned College of the Pacific eleven from Stockton, Cal., bowed to St. Mary's here today, 33 to 0. A crowd of about 15,000 was electrified in the last few minutes of play when the visitors, coached by A. A. Stagg, drove from their own 25 to St. Mary's 25 as the game ended.

ALABAMA LOSES TO MISS. STATE, FIRST DEFEAT SINCE OCT. '33

By the Associated Press.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 12. — Quick, accurate aerial thrusts, coming as a surprise attack, brought success today to a scrappy Mississippi State football team as it defeated Alabama 20 to 7.

The maroon-clad warriors of Major Ralph Sasse, pilot of Mississippi State, rolled relentlessly over the Crimson Tide, leaving stunned a horde of Alabama spectators who clamored for victory.

It was the first defeat for Alabama since October in 1933 at New York when the Fordham Rams rang up a 2 to 0 triumph.

One exchange of punts and the Maroon march began. Armstrong and Pickle carried the ball into Crimson territory and the former tossed the pass to Galatka for 12 yards, catching the Crimson secondary flat-footed.

Then the Maroons, on a triple pass, Thames to Armstrong to Pickle scored. Armstrong converted.

State gambled for victory, and four plays after the kickoff scored another touchdown. Stapp fumbled on his own 35, and State recovered. Two plays later, a backward pass, Steadman to Armstrong, was completed and Armstrong dashed across the goal line. Armstrong's placement was low.

Later, Pickle punted 64 yards dead to the Alabama one-yard line. Riley Smith punted out and Hight, signalled for a fair catch on Alabama's 34.

Two passes put the ball on the Crimson six, and Pickle went over for a touchdown. Pickle converted.

Later, as Pickle dropped back to kick from his eight-yard line, Big Jim Whatley, Alabama tackle, broke through to block the kick. Walker picked up the ball and ran across the goal line.

The scoring was over as State nursed its lead. Alabama tried desperately to overcome the advantage.

State registered nine first down to Alabama's seven and made a total yardage gain of 321 to 198, including punt and kickoff returns.

State's running plays from scrimmage totalled 213, to 118 for Alabama with 98 yards from passes and only 80 for Alabama.

TOUCHDOWNS OF HAWKEYES ARE MADE BY NEGRO STAR, SIMMONS

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 12.—Ozzie Simmons, Negro star, led the University of Iowa football team to a spectacular 12 to 6 victory over Colgate here today in an intersectional contest played before 25,000 persons.

Simmons, his flying feet a constant threat to the Red Raiders, twice crossed the Easterner's goal to pace the Hawkeyes in their sensational overthrow of one of the East's first ranking elevens.

After Andy Kerr's Raiders stunned the Iowans with a brilliant touchdown pass on the third play of the game, the Big Hawkeyes took complete charge. It was the last serious threat by the sleight-of hand boys from the East.

On the offensive, the Iowa team piled up 273 yards from scrimmage as Simmons, Capt. Dick Crayne and Dick Bowlin crashed through and around the heavy Red Raider line.

Colgate's Attack Is Smothered.

Although Colgate went through all its motions to carry out a deceptive lateral passing attack, the hard charging Iowa linesmen smashed through to corral the raiders before they were well under way.

Iowa kicked off to Donald Irwin, Colgate fullback, and he raced to the 25-yard line. On the first play from scrimmage Eugene Kern, halfback, faded back and whipped a long toss to Richard Offenhamer, the other Red Raider halfback, who was downed on the 49-yard line. Before the Hawkeyes could set their defense, Kern dropped back for another forward which the shifty Offenhamer snared on the Iowa 15-yard line and charged over the goal line unmolested.

Iowa's tying touchdown came at a most unexpected moment. The Hawkeyes got possession of the ball on their own 30-yard line when a Colgate pass touched an ineligible man. Bushnell Lamb, substitute quarterback, skirted around his own right end for 19 yards, then passed laterally to Simmons along the sidelines. The Negro ace, stepped through a swarm of Colgate tacklers and was off on his touchdown sprint.

Simmons Scores Again.

After completely bottling up the Colgate team early in the third quarter, the Hawkeyes got off their second and winning touchdown march late in the period. Iowa got the ball in mid-field after a Colgate punt. Bowlin, smacked his way to the 23-yard line. Simmons produced another of his elusive ball carrying trips and raced to the 13 yard line.

After making only a yard, Bowline ploughed within six inches of the goal. He lost a half yard on another smash, but Simmons went over for the touchdown on the next play.

Except for the two successful passes that were good for a touchdown, the Colgate aerial attack was stopped cold by the alert Iowans.

MARTIN

REDBIRDS WILL MAKE CHANGE IF THEY GET GOOD THIRD BASEMAN

By J. Roy Stockton.

Pepper Martin will be in right field for the Cardinals next year if Frankie Frisch can find a man to take over the Wild Horse's infield job and one of the major objectives during the winter will be to find a capable third baseman, President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis National League club, has indicated to the Post-Dispatch.

It is possible that Charley Gelbert, who frequently replaced Martin during the 1935 pennant race, will be a regular when the next campaign starts, but while there is no question about Charley's defensive skill as a third sacker, there is some doubt as to his ability to play day in and day out through a schedule of 154 games. For that reason the Cardinals would like to obtain a youn Pie Traynor, leaving Gelbert as a reserve.

"I believe right field is Martin's position," Breadon said during a discussion of the 1935 season and plans for 1936. "He has the speed and the arm and it won't take long for him to regain his outfield sights. It is my opinion also that he will be a more consistent batter as an outfielder than he was as a third baseman. He plays so hard that he wears himself out in the infield, where he is constantly on the jump.

Rothrock May Come Back.

"What an outfield that would be, with Medwick in left, Terry Moore in center and Martin in right. I think we had the best outfield in baseball last year and with Moore aided by a year's big league experience our 1936 combination should rank with the best the game has ever seen."

Breadon thinks that Jack Rothrock is likely to come back next season and approximate his skill and batting power of 1934. Rothrock, as the Cardinal president pointed out, suffered an attack of influenza in the spring and never seemed to regain his full strength. He slumped more in his batting than in his defensive work, but in the late weeks even his fly chasing was not up to his 1934 standard. However, he is an excellent team man and Frisch always has regarded him highly. With Medwick, Moore, Martin, Rothrock and Lynn King available for outfield duty the Cardinals will not have to look for reinforcements in that department.

Officials of the Cardinal club, naturally, will not name any of the players likely to be disposed of during the winter, but it is easy to infer from their casual conversation that there is no intention to part with any of the team's important cogs. For instance the Deans will remain in Cardinal uniform and Medwick, Moore, Collins, Frisch and Durocher will not be traded. Martin has been mentioned as being on the market, but that is unlikely. The Wild Horse of the Osage is a red hot favorite with Breadon, probably his most beloved ball player during all his years as president of the Cardinals.

Hallahan Proved Valuable.

All the team needs for the 1936 race is a third baseman—figuring the shift of Martin to the outfield—and added strength in the pitching department. Bill Hallahan has been mentioned frequently as likely to be traded. It should be remembered that the Cardinals would not have been in the pennant race as long as they were if it had not been for a brilliant pitching streak by Hallahan in mid-season. It was while he was winning six straight that the Redbirds overcame the Giant lead, which on July 2 was one and a half games.

That doesn't mean that Hallahan won't be traded. It means that Hallahan was a valuable member of the 1935 staff. Add Van Lingle Mungo and Curt Davis to the St. Louis staff, without subtracting the Deans or Hallahan and Frankie Frisch would go to the post next April with the standout team in the league.

High-Geared Michigan State Team Steam-Rollers Kansas Jayhawkers by 42-0 Score

By the Associated Press.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 12.—Michigan State's high-geared grid machine, powered with a speedy running and deceptive aerial attack, steam-rollered the Jayhawks of the University of Kansas 42-0 before 10,000 fans here today, pushing over four touchdowns in a furious, last period offensive.

The crimson-sweatered Kansans fought stubbornly in the first three periods, State backs repeatedly being tossed for losses by hard-charging Jayhawk linemen. State's offense would not be denied, however, and the decisiveness with which the undefeated Spartans clinched the intersectional honors for the day indicated State again will make a determined bid for national football recognition.

16 First Downs.

Michigan State made 16 first downs to four for the Jayhawks. By rushing, the Spartans piled up 344 yards, to 95 for the visitors. State completed seven of 19 passes tried, two good for touchdowns, while Kansas completed but one in 17 attempts.

After the scoreless first, State scored in the second period on Sebo's pass to Warmbein from eight yards out, climaxing a 49-yard drive. Kansas stubbornly tossed State backs for several losses in the third period, but State hammered away, Al Agett, flashy sub half back, finally passing to Allman for the second touchdown.

In the fourth, Allman intercepted Hapgood's pass on the Kansas 24, racing to the five, where he scored on an end-around play. Then the Spartan offensive, backs and linemen playing as though the score were tied, crossed the Jayhawk goal line three times in rapid succession.

Agett scored from the four-yard line after a pass and three line plays had put the ball in the Kansas goal post's shadows. Frank Gaines, sophomore reserve end, furnished one of the most spectacular plays of the game by plucking the ball out of the loosened fingers of a Jayhawk back and racing 55 yards to score. The final touchdown was by Agett, who electrified the spectators with a sensational 60-yard run around his right end.

Best Kansas Bid.

Just before he scored Kansas had made its best bid. Hayes picked up a nice gain on an end-around try, and a pass, Decker to Seigle, plus a 15-yard penalty on State, put the ball on State's 12. But Wiseman intercepted Decker's aerial and a moment later Agett sped down the field to end the afternoon's scoring.

State converted on every touchdown, Sebo kicking four and Wiseman two.

Regaining Conciousness Slowly

HARVARD UNIVERSITY appears to be regaining football consciousness slowly. Dick Harlow is showing an improved team, but at the opening game the Crimson undergraduates amused themselves by tossing out paper gliders that coasted long distances across the field and by kidding the efforts of the cheer leaders to evoke a spark of enthusiasm.

An editorial in "Crimson" describes the situation as follows: "They (the cheer leaders) might just as well have slapped the back of Emily Post. Their violent actions were watched with grins of amused condescension.

"A slight interest was taken in the aerial performances, not of the pigskin but of the paper airplanes. A flimsy glider would set a new record for distance flown and thunderous applause would echo from the stands. The befuddled gladiators would turn quizzical faces to the crowd, wondering what they had done to win such praise.

"The cynical observer might be tempted to remark that as far as the undergraduate is concerned it matters little what kind of a machine Coach Harlow has built."

Which makes it clear that Harlow's job of arousing enthusiasm in the student body at Cambridge will be as easy as trying to induce former President Hoover to become cheer leader for the New Deal.

They're At It, Already.

THE "white hope' campaign is on, even before Joe Louis has won the title. This must be a trifle discouraging for James J. Braddock, present champion. It assumes that he will be brushed aside by Joe when the time comes. It's a perfectly good assumption at that.

What is not so good is the campaign that some former notables of the ring are backing, with the idea of producing a white hope. Two former champions already are interested in this type of movement and both by the same system.

One is James J. Jeffries and the other is Jess Willard. Jeffries, at Burbank, Cal., is conducting amateur shows with the avowed purpose of finding a heavyweight championship factor.

Probably the real purpose in both cases is to add interest to their amateur promotions. For the chance of discovering in amateur ranks, a fighter who can duplicate Joe Louis' record, is apparently one you can write your own ticket against.

* * *

"Freshman" Ring Stars Rare.

A BOY who can jump from the amateurs to international fame in a year naturally doesn't repeat himself every year, or every decade and perhaps not in a couple of decades.

Still, the promotions are not without some merit. They will advance the cause of boxing and certainly help more young husky boys to turn out and try to get somewhere. If they are placed in the hands of good men and not allowed to grow up like Topsy, it may mean a widespread interest in boxing affairs.

Jeffries has a really well-grounded system in California and it would not be surprising if in the course of two or three years, he found a boy or two in some class, perhaps not heavyweight, really worthy of exploitation.

The more activity in the boxing game, the more chance of bringing to light a fighter of unusual merit.

About the "TKO."

A CORRESPONDENT, a stakeholder, wants to know how to pay off a wager in which one party bet on a knockout. His fighter won by a technical kayo. "Is that paid off as a regular kayo?" he asks.

Yes. When a fighter is unable to continue, in the opinion of the referee, wagers are paid as if there had been a knockout.

That question has arisen many times and the decision is established. It happened in the case of Jess Willard, when the bell saved him in the third round of his fight with Dempsey.

Willard was not out, even when knocked down, but he was in terrible shape. Between rounds his seconds tossed in the towel. The referee, Ollie Pecord, when asked the next day about the payoff, replied—"It goes as a knockout in the third round."

GUNNERS MEET CHICAGO TEAM AT WALSH STADIUM

The St. Louis Gunners will inaugurate their Sunday schedule of professional football at Edward Walsh Memorial Stadium this afternoon, as they take on the Chicago Gophers, an independent aggregation. The opening kickoff is scheduled for 2:30.

In tackling the light but shifty Chicagoans, the Gunners, who played the early part of the season as the Blues, will be out to regain the winning stride which they dropped unexpectedly Wednesday night when the Louisville Bourbons put over a 7-0 defeat.

In that game the St. Louis squad outplayed the Kentuckians in all departments of the game, but lost out through inability to co-ordinate their attack when near the goal line. Coach Frosty Peters has given over the last three days to ironing out wrinkles in his team's attack and is confident they will make up for the loss this afternoon.

The Gophers will present an entirely different type of squad and of attack from that which the Gunners met in the Bourbons. In place of the giant line and almost as large backfield and the powerhouse attack which they were up against Wednesday, Peters' boys will be confronted with a group of speedy, wiry linemen, the largest of whom—the two tackles—just get by the 200-pound mark, and a backfield composed of three pony backs weighing 175 pounds and a fullback who tips the scales at 212.

There were other chances. Hahley dropped a pass that plopped into his arms on the Colorado goal, but it came in the waning minutes of the game when the weary players couldn't hold their breaths. Other spirited dashes brought nothing but the exercise as a sturdy Colorado defense dug in stubbornly, then launched its amazing one-man counter attacks.

KRUEGER'S 137 LEADS FIELD IN LOUISVILLE GOLF

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—Alvin "Butch" Krueger, Beloit (Wis.) semi-pro baseball player, blasted three strokes from par on the second nine today to score 33, turning in an 18-hole total of 69 for the day to nose out Paul Runyan, National P. G. A. champion, for the lead in the $50000 Lousville open golf tournament.

Krueger's 36-hole score was 136, five under par. Runyan came in with a 70. This figure, plus his 67 of Thursday, gave him a 36-hole total of 137.

Making the turn in 36, one over par, Krueger settled down to business on the second half, "canning" birdies on the twelfth, fifteenth and seventeenth. He played the other holes in par.

Krueger had almost an identical shot as Runyan on the eighteenth when his second came to rest in the tall grass of his bunker. He chipped up within four inches of the cup for his certain par four.

A gallery of about 2000 followed the diminutive Runyan during his sparkling tour of the course and later picked up Krueger when he began his sensational drive.

Next in line came Ed Dudley, Philadelphia; Frank Walsh, Chicago, and Jimmy Hines, Garden City, N. Y., with 141. Horton Smith, defending champion, and Johnny Farrell, Springfield, N. J., were deadlocked at 143.

Those carding 150 or better qualified to play the final 36 holes tomorrow. Five of the British Ryder Cup team members made the grade. They are Ernest Whitcombe, William Cox, Richard Burton, C. Whitcombe and Reginald White.

Broken Leg Puts Blanke Of McKinley Out For Season

JULIUS BLANKE, McKileny High School's stellar fullback, suffered a fracture of his right leg in the first quarter of the Goldbugs' game with St. Louis University High at Walsh Stadium last night and was taken to St. John's Hospital, where it was announced he had a compound fracture. The injury ended Blanke's high school career for he is a senior and is due to graduate next June.

Blanke was honored by receiving "All-Star" honors on the City High School team last year and was all set to retain his laurels, for he starred in McKinley's victory over Central in the only league game the Goldbugs have played.

It was announced at St. John's that Blanke had suffered a very bad break. The leg will be set and put in a cast today.

Albany, (Ore.) College has tied the record of Knox and Hobart for 27 straight losses and her string is still intact.

Albany, Albany, twenty-seven straight!
Rah, rah! Rah, rah! make it twenty-eight!

A Moth Ball Fan Speaks.

UPON the moth ball pin a rose;
They've done their work so well,
That we can't wear our winter clothes
Because of too much smell.

WHERE we abide the moths are dead.
They starved to death, and how!
Because the clothes on which they fed
Are with our "Uncle" now.

That's So.

See where the New York Boxing Commission won't recognize the winner of the Olin-Lewis fight which takes place in St. Louis Oct. 31. Maybe they won't recognize the loser after the winner gets through polishing him off.

However, why worry about the approval of any boxing commission as long as all the boxing and wrestling championships are split three or four ways according to the locality in which the contest takes place?

Max Baer had a premonition that he was licked when he broke a shoe lace in his dressing room before the fight. He knew that Louis would give him a good lacing.

In discussing a return match with Joe Louis, Carnera's manager, Louis Soresi said, "It'll be a different story next time." He is probably right. It would be shorter than the other story and have more punch to it. But the ending wouldn't be any happier for Prime Beef.

Yale Rallies in Last Half And Conquers Penn, 31-20

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—A bruised, man-handled Yale team suddenly found wings on its feet and bull's-eyes at the end of its pitching arm today to thrill a huge crowd of 62,000 in sun-drenched Franklin Field with a fantastic 31-to-20 victory over Pennsylvania—most spectacular Eli offensive display since the great little Albie Booth was taking Yale's football enemies apart single-handed.

Whipped 20 to 12 at the end of the first half of the first game Yale has played here in 46 years, the courageous youngsters from New Haven shredded the huge Quakers, outweighing them 14 pounds to a man, in the second half, scoring three eouchdowns, stirring rival students to such a pitch that for half an hour after it was over, fist fights raged up and down the field for possession of the goal posts.

Penn Swamped in Second Half.

Two brilliant individual plays, perfectly executed, kept the Elis in the ball game through a terrible first half when the burly Penn backs were tearing the Yale tackles apart, firing passes at will, looking as great as only a winning team can look. And three more, each more spectacular than the one that preceded it, swamped the Quakers in the second half, when the Elis solving the heavy Penn attack, went to town with their first major victory of the season, and Penn's second straight defeat.

Al Hessberg, a 19-year-old 164-pounder from Albany, N. Y., who might have been Booth today, ran 57 yards for one touchdown in the second quarter after Clint Frank, from Evanston, Ill., sprinted 49 yards for the first Yale score, then came back in the third quarter to dash 62 yards for the touchdown that put Yale back in the ball game.

Each of these three runs was a glittering thing to see, all breaking from a cut back play, heaving the runner into the open through the left side of the Pennsylvania line, dropping him into the Quaker secondary defense strictly on his own. Each time Hessberg got there he dodged man after man. Then out-sprinted everyone on the field to the goal line.

Kelley Scores Twice on Passes.

Still trailing 18 to 20 after these magnificent bursts because of inability to kick points after touchdowns, Yale called on ever reliable Larry Kelley, the big end, and to close out the spectacular show the Irishman from Williamsport, Pa., caught two passes that looked like mirages to the thrill saturated throng.

First he raced across the Penn secondary in the third period to snatch a flat heave over his head from Charley Ewart and tear off some 35 yards to the Quaker goal, completing a 58-yard touchdown play. Then in the last quarter, when demoralized Penn was passing every time it touched the ball, a Yale interception gave him a chance to gallop into the coffin corner and gracefully pick Ewart's pass from seven yards out right off his insteps while on a read run.

MAPLEWOOD IS "ROUGH RIDER" IN 54-0 WIN OVER ROOSEVELT

By Reno Hahn

A whirlwind struck yesterday. You may not have felt its force, but a hapless Roosevelt football team did. That whirlwind was the Maplewood High School football team that struck as haphazardly and damagingly as the worst twister ever did. When the storm had subsided, Maplewood had trounced Roosevelt, 54-0.

The focal point of the twister was "Duse" Christman, who directed its attack and fired the forward passes that were turned into double and triple laterals to the dismay and confusion of Roosevelt, not to mention the touchdowns for Maplewood.

It ceratinly was the most amazing display of lateral passing that any high school eleven has ever shown in this district. Most of the laterals started with a forward pass by Christman to one of the blond Orf twins at the ends. The Orf who received would in turn lateral to Norman Ficke, who usually would be clear for a touchdown, or if not, he would lateral to Jim Cole. If the play did not score, it always gained 20 or more yards.

Maplewood had a battle in the first quarter, but after it received two points for a safety, Christman intercepted a Roosevelt pass on his 15-yard line and raced 85 yards for a touchdown.

That seemed to upset Roosevelt and before they could recover, Maplewood had smashed through Roosevelt's line for 40 yards and a touchdown. Then, before the Rough Riders could rally, those amazing ball handlers of Maplewood had used that combination, Christman to Orf to Ficke to Cole for two touchdowns.

The game was expected to be a battle, but Roosevelt's offense never succeeded in penetrating Maplewood's line and throughout the entire game, Roosevelt made only one first down.

Maplewood now has scored 147 points in four games while preventing its opponents from scoring.

The next opposition of the Maple Leafs whirlwind will be slightly out of this class, but they are expected to make a good showing when they play the St. Louis University Freshmen eleven next Saturday night at Maplewood. The choice of the Frosh team is not due to a belief that Maplewood is too good for high school competition, but because Armin A. Wahlbrink, athletic director, was unable to schedule any games for the next two weeks.

THISTLE JOCK IS VICTOR OVER IRENE'S BOB IN FEATURE EVENT

By Dent McSkimming

Most of the 12,000 fans who filled Fairmount Park yesterday afternoon will be talking about the $124.40 refund on Kelley's Pride, winner of the fifth race, a long time after they have forgotten that Thistle Jock won the best event of the day from Irene's Bob, Sora and four others in an exciting sprint race. That was the longest price of the meeting on a winner and it might have been twice that much, for the spectators found no logical reason for wagering on Mr. Kelley's eight-year-old mare that hadn't won a race in two years.

But Thistle Jock's victory was nothing of a form upset. He was in at light weight and he was coming right back off a smashing race of a week ago when he all but caught the winner, Irene's Bob, in the last few jumps.

Judge Leer Disappoints.

Except for a disappointing effort on the part of Judge Leer, the favorite at 11 to 5, the race was run strictly as past performance promised. Irene's Bob set a dizzy pace for half a mile with Thistle Jock reaching out for him every step of the way. Judge Leer broke slowly and McGonigle was left at the post. At the head of the stretch, Irene's Bob faltered ever so little but Thistle Jock, with only 93 pounds of expert rider, Frank Chojnacki, on his back, came right on, strong as ever. He took the lead a sixteenth of a mile from home and was drawing away at the finish. Sora passed Fayette Prince, Captain Joy and Judge Leer in the stretch to finish third. The Judge, out in the open in the last quarter, apparently didn't have enough speed to make up a single length of ground.

Thistle Jock's time for the six furlongs 1:13, was four-fifths of a second slower than Irene's Bob's time a week ago.

Kelley's Pride Overruns Field.

Last away from the starting gate in front of the grandstand, Kelley's Pride picked up a couple of horses as the field went around the clubhouse turn and as they approached the half-mile ground he was seventh, with still a long way to go and lots of horses to pass. Meanwhile, Julia Irene and Muffler, the favorites, were fighting a long drawn-out duel for the lead, running as a team. Neither Dyer nor Donoho, on these front runners, would pull up and the result was that in the last eighth of a mile both were worn out while Kelley's Pride, with Bill Lowe giving every ounce he had, came on with long, untiring strides. The crowd gasped as the favorite, all out, was beaten a half length at the wire.

The Ed Drillon Stable started off with a winner in the first race when they put over Yule Star, a big grey gelding, making the second start of his career.

After being kept away from the races throughout his two-year-old career, the horse was started for the first time at Detroit late last month and finished tenth in a field of 12 in the $1000 claiming class. Yesterday, he was dropped in with $500 maidens and he not only won, but he made the others look as though they had broken legs. Neither Miss Princess, second, nor Dick Daring, third at the finish, was close enough at any stage to worry Jockey W. Jackson. Yule Star may win a lot of races.

Golden Sun Wins by 4 Lengths.

When the field of 12 paraded to the post for the second race, the fine big brown Golden Sun, his wet coat shining in the sun, attracted a lot of admiring oh's and ah's. Of course, the hard-boiled male race fans quickly informed their lady companions that good looks don't win horse races but the ladies or somebody in large numbers certainly thought he could win for he was bet heavily at odds of 5 to 2. Golden Sun hadn't started a race since October, 1934, but he certainly was a sound, fit and fast horse when Trainer Drillon saddled him yesterday. He lost the lead to the speedy Servant Pride at the half mile ground but, like a champion, he came on again in the home stretch as Servant Pride weakened, and he won by four lengths. Mobile was a badly beaten second and Thistle Dust third. Golden Sun will bear a bit of watching.

Ought To did it. And in winning the third race he looked as though he ought to do it again and again. Elegant Miss and Johnny O., second and third at the finish, were far enough back to be sixth and seventh in an ordinary finish. Nothing else in the field of 12 showed a worth-while effort.

It's a long time between finishes such as the one in which the filly Dorothy Alice outlasted the determined, hard charging Butch in taking the fourth race. Breaking from the outside post position in a field of 11, the filly had much the longest route to travel, but Jockey Chojnacki hustled her into a challenging spot before they reached the turn. There she had to run around the leader, Mint Drift, a tough task, but she did it and took the lead at the head of the stretch. Then it was the ground-eating Butch that came up to dispute the question and the two engaged in a stretch drive that had the crowd yelling wildly. It was a case of little inches between Dorothy Alice's nose and that of Butch at the finish and Mint Drift was only a few yards back.

WHICH IMAGE PAYS $114 WINNING FIRST RACE AT CHICAGO TRACK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Which Image, a two-year-old bay daughter of Whichone, won the opening race at Sportsman's Park this afternoon, a five-furlong sprint for two-year-old maidens, and paid $114.60 for $2.

The filly, owned by Mrs. W. E. Schmidt, and ridden by Jockey Fermin, had gone to the post 16 times before and had never finished better than seventh. The time was 1:05 2-5.

SPEED TO SPARE WINS FUTURITY IN MARYLAND

By the Associated Press.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 12.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Speed to Spare won the Maryland Futurity today over a fleet field of Maryland bred two-year-olds. The victory was worth $5000.

J. D. Cohn's Mad Mahdi, "dark horse" of the race, and making its first start in Maryland this fall, was second in the six-furlong test. The Hare was third.

The Vanderbilt horse sprinted away to a commanding lead at the start and still had plenty of speed left when he finished.

Mad Mahdi was slow to settle down into his stride, but was pressing strongly at the end. The Hare moved closer to the rail in the home stretch, but it was too late, as Speed to Spare already had the race in the bag.

GARDEN

PROMOTERS HERE ADMIT CONTRACT BUT CONTEND IT WON'T STAND UP

By W. J. McGoogan

Madison Square Garden of New York doesn't intend to let the Bob Olin-John Henry Lewis light heavyweight championship boxing contest get away from it without a fight. The former boxing capital of the world asserts it has Olin signed to a contract and intends to see that he lives up to it.

"Olin under contract to Madison Square Garden Corporation. Have instructed our attorneys to take all legal steps to protect our rights."

Olin is signed to box John Henry Lewis of Phoenix, Ariz., at The Arena, Oct. 31, in a 15-round bout in defense of his 175 pound title. The bout is to be held under the auspices of the Jackson Johnson Post of the American Legion with Eddie Byrnes as matchmaker but Lew Raymond and Benny Greenberg are the moving spirits behind the show.

Raymond laughed when questioned about Kilpatrick's telegram and said:

Failed to Sign Opponent

"We grant that Madison Square Garden had the foresight to sign Olin to a contract, after Bob won the championship from Maxie Rosenbloom. But there they stopped and failed to sign an opponent for Olin.

"He was ordered to defend his title within six months but he had nobody to fight under the Garden's contract; so we signed Lewis as his opponent and that's the way the match was made.

"Now they may apply for an injunction, but I think they will find their contract is only for New York; and, furthermore, they have not provided an opponent, as we have, so we are not afraid of a court test."

The California commission removed one legal obstacle from title recognition for the match when Don J. Shields, Chief Inspector, wired that the suspension against Lewis for failing to go through with a bout against Eddie Simms, Cleveland, last June, had been lifted Friday with the stipulation that Lewis make the fight in San Francisco as soon as possible after the Olin contest no matter what the outcome.

New York Status Altered.

John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York Commission, has said that he would give Lewis no consideration until advised to by California; so in the light of California's action, it is likely that the New York body will recognize the bout for the title as has the Missouri Commission from the first. It is understood the New York Commission will meet this week to take up the matter.

Meanwhile Raymond and his associates have gone ahead completing the card and yesterday announced that Holman Williams and Andy Kid Bundy, Negro lightweights, would meet in a 10-round contest for the Negro 135-pound title, in the match which Joe Louis, Detroit Negro heavyweight, is to referee.

Bundy has lost to Cecil Payne and Freddy Miller, world's featherweight champion, according to the record books.

It also has been announced that Olin and Lewis would arrive here Wednesday to complete their training at the Business Men's Gymnasium, Sixth and Pine streets. Olin has been in New York for his preliminary work while Lewis has been in Hot Springs, Ark.

The scale of ticket prices has been announced as $1.21, $2.45 and $3.65, including Federal, State, city and States sales taxes.

Jimmy Webb to Meet George Daw

Solly Kessler yesterday signed George Daw, veteran Pine Lawn middleweight, to oppose Jimmy Webb, North Side boxer, in one of the feature matches on the professional boxing card Oct. 22 at the Coliseum.

After closing the match Kessler departed for Chicago where he will try to find a suitable opponent for Allen Matthews, local Negro boxer, who will be a principal in the main 10-rounder, and Irwin Striebel, South Sider, who has been signed to fight in an eight-round bout.

In Daw, Webb will be fighting a battler who has had five years' experience in the pro ranks. He was a local champion during his amateur days. Several years ago when Jack Tippett was the promoter here Daw was used in several main go attractions.

Webb will be fighting his third professional match, having stopped Kayo Brown, Cardinal bat boy and beaten Lou Grobe since leaving the simon-pure ranks six weeks ago.

GARDEN THREATENS LEGAL ACTION TO PREVENT OLIN FIGHT

PROMOTERS HERE ADMIT CONTRACT BUT CONTEND IT WON'T STAND UP

By W. J. McGoogan

Madison Square Garden of New York doesn't intend to let the Bob Olin-John Henry Lewis light heavyweight championship boxing contest get away from it without a fight. The former boxing capital of the world asserts it has Olin signed to a contract and intends to see that he lives up to it.

"Olin under contract to Madison Square Garden Corporation. Have instructed our attorneys to take all legal steps to protect our rights."

Olin is signed to box John Henry Lewis of Phoenix, Ariz., at The Arena, Oct. 31, in a 15-round bout in defense of his 175 pound title. The bout is to be held under the auspices of the Jackson Johnson Post of the American Legion with Eddie Byrnes as matchmaker but Lew Raymond and Benny Greenberg are the moving spirits behind the show.

Raymond laughed when questioned about Kilpatrick's telegram and said:

Failed to Sign Opponent

"We grant that Madison Square Garden had the foresight to sign Olin to a contract, after Bob won the championship from Maxie Rosenbloom. But there they stopped and failed to sign an opponent for Olin.

"He was ordered to defend his title within six months but he had nobody to fight under the Garden's contract; so we signed Lewis as his opponent and that's the way the match was made.

"Now they may apply for an injunction, but I think they will find their contract is only for New York; and, furthermore, they have not provided an opponent, as we have, so we are not afraid of a court test."

The California commission removed one legal obstacle from title recognition for the match when Don J. Shields, Chief Inspector, wired that the suspension against Lewis for failing to go through with a bout against Eddie Simms, Cleveland, last June, had been lifted Friday with the stipulation that Lewis make the fight in San Francisco as soon as possible after the Olin contest no matter what the outcome.

New York Status Altered.

John J. Phelan, chairman of the New York Commission, has said that he would give Lewis no consideration until advised to by California; so in the light of California's action, it is likely that the New York body will recognize the bout for the title as has the Missouri Commission from the first. It is understood the New York Commission will meet this week to take up the matter.

Meanwhile Raymond and his associates have gone ahead completing the card and yesterday announced that Holman Williams and Andy Kid Bundy, Negro lightweights, would meet in a 10-round contest for the Negro 135-pound title, in the match which Joe Louis, Detroit Negro heavyweight, is to referee.

Bundy has lost to Cecil Payne and Freddy Miller, world's featherweight champion, according to the record books.

It also has been announced that Olin and Lewis would arrive here Wednesday to complete their training at the Business Men's Gymnasium, Sixth and Pine streets. Olin has been in New York for his preliminary work while Lewis has been in Hot Springs, Ark.

The scale of ticket prices has been announced as $1.21, $2.45 and $3.65, including Federal, State, city and State sales taxes.

Jimmy Webb to Meet George Daw

Solly Kessler yesterday signed George Daw, veteran Pine Lawn middleweight, to oppose Jimmy Webb, North Side boxer, in one of the feature matches on the professional boxing card Oct. 22 at the Coliseum.

After closing the match Kessler departed for Chicago where he will try to find a suitable opponent for Allen Matthews, local Negro boxer, who will be a principal in the main 10-rounder, and Irwin Striebel, South Sider, who has been signed to fight in an eight-round bout.

In Daw, Webb will be fighting a battler who has had five years' experience in the pro ranks. He was a local champion during his amateur days. Several years ago when Jack Tippett was the promoter here Daw was used in several main go attractions.

Post-Dispatch to Conduct Football Knowledge Test With $300 in Prizes

Fans Have Chance to Win Cash Awards — Entries Must Be In by Thursday.

The Post-Dispatch will conduct a Football Knowledge Test this week, in which $300 will be awarded successful contestants. The test will be conducted on the outcome of 15 games, herewith listed, to be played this coming week-end.

How many winners did you pick yesterday, just for fun? No matter. This week, in the Football Knowledge Test, you will have the opportunity to pick 'em for money.

$100 First Prize.

One hundred dollars will be awarded as first prize to the participant whose entries are the most nearly accurate and whose explanations are the most logical and convincing.

Second prize will be $50, third $25, fourth $15 and fifth $10. Then follow 10 prizes of $5 each, 10 of $2.50 each and 25 of $1 each.

In order to stand a good chance of winning one of these 50 prizes you will have to be on your toes, for you will be competing against a great body of football-minded fans. Everybody is eligible except Post-Dispatch employes and their families.

Regardless of the stiffness of the competition, however, the lightning may strike in YOUR direction, providing you get right down to the serious business of doping the probable outcome of the 15 listed games.

The letter which must accompany your selections need not be long. In fact brevity is desired. But it must show that you have a general knowledge of the teams. The test is one of knowledge, in truth as well as in name.

Must Be In Thursday.

In this Football Knowledge Test, procrastination will be fatal. You've got to act before Thursday. Your selections must be in the mail before midnight of that day to be eligible for a prize. Strike while the iron is hot!

A force of clerks will be on hand to start checking the teams just as soon as the last score is in next Saturday night. Winners will be announced the following Wednesday. Will YOUR name be among the list of winners? Will you pocket part of that $300? Somebody will. Look over the list of games, make your selections and briefly state your reasons for so doing, and mail them in.

As a way of finding a starting point for the friendly arguments over the probable outcome of the listed games, the Football Scores Editor showed the list to a fan who, the week before, collected in a downtown office pool, from as hard-eyed a bunch of football fans as you could find on any one floor of any one office building.

One Fan's Selection.

Here is the way this sage picked 'em for the coming week-end (before yesterday's games): Washington 13, Duquesne 7; Marquette 32, St. Louis U. 0; Temple 7, Carnegie Tech 3; Duke 21, Georgia Tech 0; Louisiana State U. 20, Arkansas 7; Minnesota 13, Tulane 7; Pittsburgh 4, Notre Dame 0; Ohio State 13, Northwestern 0; Oregon State 12, Southern California 7; Rice 14, Southern Methodist 7; Army 14, Harvard 0; Michigan 6, Wisconsin 0; Yale 0, Navy 0; Fordham 13, Vanderbilt 7; Alabama 21, Tennessee 0.

You are at liberty to use these guesses as the starting point for your own conclusions or toss them out the window. They merely indicate one man's idea of the comparative strength of the teams.

Now, you test YOUR knowledge of football, with money as the prize!

$300.00 in Cash Prizes Offered in Post-Dispatch Football Knowledge Test

Listed below are fifteen major football games scheduled for Oct. 18 and 19. To enter the Post-Dispatch Football Knowledge Test, fill in your estimates of the scores of the games and send your entry to the Football Scores Editor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, accompanied by a brief explanation of your selections. Entries will close at midnight, Thursday, Oct. 17.

The following cash prizes will be awarded:

First Prize	$100.00
Second Prize	50.00
Third Prize	25.00
Fourth Prize	15.00
Fifth Prize	10.00
Ten Prizes, each	5.00
Ten Prizes, each	2.50
25 Prizes, each	1.00
50 Prizes, totaling	$300.00

Here Are the Simple Rules:

Prizes will be awarded to participants whose entries are most accurate and whose explanations, in the opinion of the Football Scores Editor, are most logical and convincing.

A brief explanatory letter must accompany each entry.

The games on which the competition is based will be listed daily in the Post-Dispatch sports section up to and including Thursday, October 17. The competition will close at midnight, October 17 and entries must be postmarked before that time.

It is not necessary to use the entry form in the Post-Dispatch. Any piece of paper of approximately the same size will do.

You do not have to buy the Post-Dispatch to enter. Copies may be examined at public libraries or in the business office of the Post-Dispatch.

Only one entry may be submitted by each participant.

In the event of a tie for any award, the full amount of the award tied for will be paid to each participant.

Names of successful participants will be published in the Post-Dispatch Wednesday October 23.

The Football Scores Editor will be the sole judge of entries submitted and his decision must be accepted as final.

Cleveland Loses at Paducah, 7-0

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PADUCAH, Ky., Oct. 12.—A touchdown for Tilghman High in the first few minutes of play tonight was enough to give the Paducah eleven a 7-0 victory over Cleveland High of St. Louis.

Taking the opening kick-off, Ogden of Tilghman ran the ball back 31 yards and then alternated with Kerth in driving to the one-yard line, from where Kerth plunged over. Lillard place-kicked the extra point.

Cleveland got its offensive to working in the second quarter, but was stopped by the whistle at the one-yard line.

In the fourth quarter, on a Statue of Liberty play, Uffman got in the clear and ran 63 yards, but was downed on Tilghman's 28-yard line.

MARYLAND HEIGHTS PLAYS HELLRUNG NINE

The Maryland Heights baseball team of St. Louis County League plays the Hellrung-Grimm nine, University City League champions and runner-ups in the United States Amateur Baseball tournament, this afternoon at the Maryland Heights field. The grounds are located on the Fee Fee road between Page boulevard and St. Charles Rock road.

Among the players who will be in the Maryland lineup today are: George Silver, who played at Huntington, W. Va.; Allen Hunt, Ft. Worth (Tex.) team member; Scheffing of Columbus of the American Association and Vic Oehlers, Albany, Ga.

BRIDGES AND ROWE ON THE LOSING SIDE

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Tommy Bridges and Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, star righthanders of the world champion Detroit Tigers, gave only three hits between them in four innings today, but their team, the Chicago Mills, took a 3 to 0 beating from the American Giants, Negro club.

The Giants did their scoring off Jim Vaughn, one-time Chicago Cub southpaw, after Bridges and Rowe had departed. Bridges gave one hit in two innings and struck out two batsmen. Rowe yielded two hits in the next two frames and fanned one. Charlie Gehringer, the Tigers' second baseman, played seven innings and made one hit in three times at bat.

QUADS CRIPPLED FOR GAME WITH WEBERS IN MUNY FOOTBALL PLAY

The Quadrangle Club will seek its third straight victory when it opposes the Weber-Deibels in the second half of the third-round Municipal Football Association doubleheader on the Drill Grounds, located at the Jefferson Memorial tennis courts in Forest Park, this afternoon. The first game, between the White Lines and the F. R. O.—Lennemanns, will begin at 1:30 o'clock.

In an effort to upset the Quads, Manager Les Haney of the Weber-Deibels has added five players to his roster. Two of these are 215-pound tackles, Ray Bennere and Joe Mullen of McKendree College. Two others are guards. One is Bernard Keating, 195-pound regular of St. Louis University in 1932; the other is Ed Muzivich of Cleveland High School, who weighs only 155 pounds, but is recognized as one of the scrappiest players in independent football for the last five years. The fifth addition is Ed Schaaf, a 175-pound end of Cleveland High.

Benny LaPresta, former St. Louis U. star, managing the Quads, will be without the services of three stars, who are still suffering from injuries received in last Sunday's 24-0 victory over the Mordie Wolfs. Quarterback Jack Moral will be out for at least three weeks with an injured knee and Bill Hundhausen and Howard Brimmer, halfbacks, are still limping with leg injuries.

Pitt Smothers West Virginia's Passing Attack

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12.—A nonchalant Pitt team easily solved West Virginia's passing attack today to win, 24 to 6, before a crowd of 20,000.

The Mountaineers' only score came on a pass by their ace heaver, Kelly Moan. Pitt depended mostly on power plays to defeat West Virginia.

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH LOSES TO McKINLEY

Kirkwood Loses To Hannibal 7-6

HANNIBAL, Mo., Oct. 12.—Hannibal outgained Kirkwood High School's football team here this afternoon but was held to a 7-6 victory. Playing in summer temperature with frequent substitutions both teams scored in the first half and battled through the last two quarters without counting.

Kirkwood's aerial attack to which the visitors resorted through the last half of the game failed to click, only one of Wasson's long aerials being completed. This one to Meder in the final period gave Kirkwood a chance on Hannibal's 21-yard line, but the drive failed.

Hannibal had a total of 10 first downs to Kirkwood's four.

Kirkwood went ahead in the final minute of the first quarter when a punt was fumbled by a Hannibal player on his own 14-yard line and recovered by the visitors. They lost no time in taking advantage of the break. Three line plays put the ball on the six, and Levitt plunged through for the touchdown. Wasson's place kick went wide.

Hannibal staged a drive in the second quarter from Kirkwood's 341qard marker, where Hanlin, Hannibal halfback, had intercepted Wasson's pass. A drive of line plays put the ball on thme 13, and Hanlin crashed through left tackle for a touchdown, which Conley added the extra point by a line plunge.

Hunting Season at Hand.

WHILE the angler is still with us, the end of major fishing activities in this State is approaching. November 1, the official closing of trout fishing in this State, usually finds the temperature too chill for angling. Most of the fish have gone down stream or into deep holes and deep water anglers are the only ones who will be active.

As a compensation for the passing of fishing, the hunting season is at hand. Beginning with the opening of migratory bird shooting one week from tomorrow, there will follow the three-day deer season the same week, quail shooting on Nov. 10 and turkey Dec. 1.

What with all this, plus squirrel, rabbit and small game, the hunter need not worry about his future until Jan. 1.

Quail Reported Numerous.

Early returns from a game survey now being conducted by the State Game and Fish Department indicate quail are coming back in Missouri, after three bad seasons. North Missouri counties generally report a 10 to 25 per cent increase. The outlook for deer is about 5 per cent better than last year, with wild turkey normal.

Generally, game fish have had a most favorable spawning season, due to the abundance of water area.

Ducks are beginning to come into the State, after a most favorable breeding season up north. With plenty of landing fields available and a bumper crop of natural feed, hunters should fare well. The larger species are still up north, apparently waiting colder weather to start their journey southward.

5,000 Deer Tags Available.

Deer tags are available now, which is a reminder that one of the approaching features of the State's outdoor program is the three-day deer-hunting season, Oct. 24 to 26, inclusive.

More than 5000 of the special deer tags are being mailed by Montie Glover, chief clerk of the Missouri Game and Fish Department, to county clerks over the State. The tags also are available through the State offices at Jefferson City.

First requisite of an applicant for the deer tag is a resident State hunting license, which costs $2.50. The deer tag costs only $1.50 to residents and $50 to non-residents, who must pay an additional $10 for a non-resident hunting permit.

Although the season on deer has been open for several years, no non-resident has yet paid out $60 for the privilege of hunting for Missouri's deer.

The annual kill of deer in Missouri has not been large, and the number of hunters in the field usually is about 2000. Last year 2626 persons, including several women, bought deer tags. The kill amounted to only a few score.

Deer hunting in Missouri is confined largely to the Ozark highlands with scatterings of small herds over some of the Ozark border lands.

One of the counties furnishing best deer hunting is Ripley while unofficial reports place Wayne County well toward the top in deer population. Biggest kills have come from Osage and Gasconade Counties. Deer also have been seen along the Maries River only a few miles from Jefferson City.

Count the Points, Then Fire!

Only bucks having at least four points on one antler may be legally shot. Killing a doe or young buck is a felony and makes the deer slayer liable to a penitentiary sentence.

Game wardens, however, each year find many illegally killed animals. When the carcasses of the animals are discovered within a few minutes of the slayings they are carted to cold storage for later distribution to charitable institutions.

The State's deer population has been variously estimated at between a few hundred to 15,000. Game experts calculate a population of about 10,000 deer over the Ozarks. They are considered easier to find and to kill than wild turkeys which also are found in limited numbers in the Ozarks.

The turkey and deer range is generally much the same with a greater concentration of the birds in areas where they have received some special care and protection by game officials.

Ducks Next on Hunting Calender.

The duck shooting season opens Oct. 21 in the Missouri region and the season will last only until Nov. 20. Game and fish department officials do not anticipate much of a license sales increase because of the duck seaon's opening.

Nimrods expecting to spend time in a blind during the 30-day legal season are reminded that in addition to their State hunting licenses they must also have a Federal duck stamp.

The Golden Valley 'Coon Hunters' Association's annual racoon hound field trials were run near Platte City, last week-end—the Audubon Society of Missouri will hold its annual fall meeting with the Academy of Science at Kansas City Oct. 25—The Amateur Field Trial Clubs of America will hold their 1936 meeting at Holly Springs, Miss., early in February.

East St. Louis and Collinsville Elevens Triumph

Collinsville and East St. Louis were victors yesterday afternoon in Madison-St. Clair Conference football games. Collinsville defeated Granite City, 19 to 0, at Collinsville, and East St. Louis downed Wood River, 13 to 7, at Wood River.

Collinsville made its first touchdown in the second quarter, a 12-yard pass, Ward Boyd to Malcolm Moore, being completed for the score. Ralph Bridges made good the extra point from placement. Collinsville continued its scoring by making two touchdowns in the final quarter on plunges by Bridges.

East St. Louis opened its league schedule with a hard fought victory, and in winning gave the Oilers their second setback. Both the victor's touchdowns came from passes. Eddie Coker scored for one in the second quarter and another in the third on passes from Bobbie Stephans. Wood River scored in the final quarter when Yates intercepted an East Side pass and ran 70 yards. The point after touchdown was good from placement.

In a non-conference game Madison ran over Carlyle for a 31 to 0 victory.

CLANG BREAKS U. S. SIX-FURLONG MARK

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 12.—John F. Clark's Clang bettered the American track record for six furlongs today, beating the former record-holder, Myrtlewood of Brownell Comb's string, in a match race at Coney Island here. Clang finished in 1:09 1-5, clipping a fifth of a second off the mark Myrtlewood set at Arlington last July, with the two nip and tuck through the final eighth.

It was a return match. Myrtlewood beat Clang by a nose at Hawthorne two weeks ago.

SOCCER ELEVENS CHANGE LINEUPS FOR 2D ROUND IN PRO LEAGUE

Although the winners of last Sunday's opening games are likely to add to their laurels, the competition in the four games offered by the St. Louis Soccer League at two parks this afternoon is likely to be much stouter than it was a week ago. The defeated club in each case had taken steps to strengthen and in at least two cases the attempts to bolster the lineup looks like they may get results. The German Club will present a much stronger lineup against the Ben Millers than it did last Sunday against the Marres, and the Hermanns have a 50 per cent stronger halfback line to throw against the Democrats (formerly the Centrals) than they had a week ago against the Spaniards.

Among the interesting changes in lineup is the introduction of Bill Rettinger at center halfback for Ed Hermann's club. Although he is St. Louis born, this 26-year-old lad has spend 23 years in Brazil. Like most South American boys, Rettinger played football all through his school days and he has informed the Hermann club manager Ed Delaney, that he played for Brazilian clubs against Uruguayan teams. English is strange to his tongue but he speaks Portuguese, up, down and all around. Delaney says he will give Rettinger all the opportunity he wants to make good.

Germans Change Lineups.

In addition to the Brazilian, the Hermanns have signed John Kane, who was with the Centrals last season and Kenny Sullivan, a forward.

The German club will start Joe Dumas in goal and Berne Hennessey at center forward as the principal changes under the new manager, Joe Hennessey, successor to Nick Jost. Joe O'Mara, a first-class wing man, will be at outside right as another change, and Ortman, a rugged halfback, will help the defense.

Bill Lehman is scheduled to break into the Democrats' lineup, either at fullback or at left halfback. If he is at halfback there is not likely to be much work for the Democrats' fullbacks and goaltender, for the ball should rarely find its way into their field of operations. Nilsen, Watson and Lehman, supporting McNab, Gonsalves, Patenaude, Roe and McLean are a combination of eight football players that surpass anything in the country.

Marre Will Stand Pat.

Pleased with a winning combination, Johnny Marre is not disturbing his team for the game with the Hellrungs and Phil Kavanaugh has hopes of getting a much better effort out of the eleven that he started a week ago. The Spaniards, too, will stand pat although there is room for improvement. George McGann has a team of willing youngsters wearing the Schumacher colors and the thing it lacks is practice and coaching rather than changes of personnel.

Double headers will be played at Sportsman's Park and National Softball Park (Kingshighway and Arsenal street), each starting at 2 p. m.

WEBSTER SCORES TWICE IN FINAL QUARTER TO DEFEAT CENTRAL, 14-0

Webster pushed across two touchdowns in the final quarter to defeat Central High School's football team, 14-0 yesterday afternoon at Webster.

Jimmy Heitert tossed a 20-yard pass to Seth Robins for the first touchdown in the fourth quarter. Robins converted the extra point on a line plunge. The second score came when Central was trying a desperate last-minute passing attack to tie the score, Hackert intercepting a pass on Central's 10-yard line and running for a touchdown. Summa converted on a place kick.

U. C. L. A. WINS OVER STANFORD ON EXTRA POINT KICKED BY KEY

By the Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Oct. 12.—Stanford's two-year reign as Pacific Coast Conference champion ended abruptly today as the mighty pigskin warriors coached by "Tiny" Thornhill went down to a 7—6 defeat before an alert band of Bruins of the University of California at Los Angeles.

The victory, climaxing the 10-year coaching regime of Bill Spaulding, came as a stunning upset to Stanford rooters while 25,000 fans gave the Bruins a rousing ovation.

Twice conference champions and beaten by a coast eleven for the first time since Washington turned in a 6 to 0 win, Oct. 28, 1933, the defeat of the favored eleven was written around the old theme of "lions in midfield and lambs at the goal line."

The red-clad men who flashed through the last two football seasons brilliantly. Then failed in miserable fashion in the national tests at Pasadena's rose bowl on New Year's day of 1934 and 1935, made the bulk of the yardage and first downs but the Stanford place-kick was wide and the Bruins' was not.

Stanford scored midway of the first period with Bobby Grayson, 1934 all-America fullback, going over the last yard. Moscrip's place kick on the try for point was wide.

A few plays later the Bruins rushed over their touchdown with Ted Key, fullback, ripping through for the last two yards. Then Key toed the oval through the uprights, adding the lone point that brought victory.

Several times after the first scores Stanford had opportunities to increase the point total. Each attempt blew up as the Bruin squad fought back with desperate fury.

Stanford's touchdown followed an intercepted pass by Right Half Alustiza, who ran 25 yards to UCLA'S 20-yard line. Grayson went around left end for 19 yards and over on the next play.

Charles Cheshire, Bruin left half and star of the Southern attack, recovered a Stanford fumble by Left Half Hamilton on the Red team's 40. A five-yard penalty against Stanford was followed by Cheshire's 28-yard run. Key bumped the line for five yards, then two for the touchdown. His successful kick was the turning point of the game.

If Stanford followers could salcage any consolation from the statistics, their team made 205 yards from scrimmage, against 75 for the Bruins and a total of 16 first downs against two for the visitors.

Layden Uses 44 Players As Fighting Irish Humble Wisconsin Badgers, 27-0

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 12.—Notre Dame survived a first-minute scare today and then rushed back to rout Wisconsin's ailing football team, 27 to 0, under an avalanche of scoring plays made by 44 members of its squad.

Wisconsin received the kickoff and immediately sent Notre Dame back on its heels with a surprising lateral pass attack that carried to Notre Dame's 15-yard line. Neubauer and Tommerson did most of the ground gaining. A juggled pass broke up the threat, Notre Dame recovering on its own 25-yard line.

Milner's block of Tommerson's kick quickly changed the game's complexion. The ball went out of bounds on Wisconsin's 32-yard line. Wojcipovski on four tries plunged to Wisconsin's 19-yard line and then arched a high pass from the 28-yard line to Shakespeare for an easy touchdown.

Touchdown on Nine Plays.

In the second period, the Irish got the ball on Wisconsin's 46 and rushed it to a touchdown on nine plays. Pilney tossed a pass to O'Neill, substitute end, for the final four yards.

After the Notre Dame second stringers halted the Badgers cold on another attack, spilling their linesmen with ease but fury, Coach Elmer Layden sent in his third string. They held Wisconsin without difficulty. The period ended as Elser intercepted Jordan's pass and returned it to the Wisconsin 38-yard line.

In the third period, after two intercepted passes, one by Shakespeare and another by Tommerson, Notre Dame gained the ball on the Badger 44 and rushed over for a third touchdown on eight plays. Carideo carried it over on a center smash from the one-yard line.

Substitutes Threaten Frequently.

Layden sent in his second string again and the rout was on as Pilney raced around his right end for 40 yards and another touchdown behind some spectacular blocking by Frank Caul. It proved to be the final touchdown of the afternoon, though Notre Dame's substitutes threatened several times before the final whistle sounded.

Powerful Rice Eleven Defeats Creighton, 14-0

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 12. — The Rice Owls, one of the most feared gridiron units in the South, ended their pre-conference schedule today with a 14 to 0 victory over Creighton, co-leader of the Missouri Valley Conference.

John McCauley, 1934 all-conference back, and Buck Friedman drove 44 yards for a touchdown in the first period. Halfback Ray Smith went over from the one-yard line in the third quarter for the second.

An intercepted pass paved the way for the first touchdown. Nicholls, Rice center, intercepted it, then fumbled when tackled and Sylvester recovered on the Creighton 44. Friedman carried the ball twice for 24 yards and McCauley took it three times for the other 20 The touchdown run was from the 15-yard stripe. McCauley drove over his own right guard, then cut to the left and crossed the goal line standing up.

In the third quarter a long pass from Smith to Sylvester was good for 38 yards and laced the ball on the Creighton 10. Neece raced around end to the one-yard line, and Smith plunged for the touchdown.

Rice made only 11 first downs to eight for the Jays, who still were fighting hard in the final period despite the heat.

COUNTRY DAY LOSES TO MILWAUKEE TEAM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 12.—St. Louis Country Day School traveled to Milwaukee to receive its first defeat since 1933, Milwaukee Country Day winning, 13 to 7.

Late in the first quarter Lindeman of Milwaukee broke off tackle for 60 yards and the first score. The place kick conversion was good.

In the second half a brilliant passing attack netted a St. Louis touchdown. A pass, Woolsey to Rombauer, netted the extra point. Two fumbles gave Milwaukee an opening deep in St. Louis territory in the third quarter, and a scoring play developed from a forward lateral. The Milwaukee try for point was wide.

St. Louis fought a stubborn game against a 10-pound weight disadvantage. Rombauer was the outstanding St. Louis player.

VASHON AND SUMNER WIN DOUBLEHEADER

The local Negro high schools were victorious in the doubleheader played at the Public Schools Stadium yesterday afternoon, Vashon defeating Central High of Louisville, 12 to 6, in the first game, and Sumner winning from Sumner of Kansas City, Kan., 6 to 0, in the second contest.

Vashon counted in the first period, Tom Henry going over for the score and Austin also scored for Vashon in the second period. C. Boykins tallied the touchdown for St. Louis Sumner in the third quarter.

BEAUMONT TEAM LOW IN HIGH SCHOOL GOLF

Beaumont High School's golf team made the low medal score of 375 in the first round of play, yesterday afternoon, in the Public High School League golf tournament. Trycharz of Beaumont was individual medalist, with a score of 86.

The competition, which will continue each Saturday for four weeks, was conducted on the 18-hole course in Forest Park.

Team medal scores: Beaumont 375; Central 394; Soldan 395; Blewett 424; McKinley 428; Cleveland 433; Roosevelt 451.

AIR MAIL REACHES NEW HIGH RECORD

Passenger and Express Increase —National Celebration This Week.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—America leads the world in aviation. More people are using planes for travel and more air mail and express is moving over commercial air networks in the United States than at any previous time.

In the seven months, including August, the last for which statistics have been compiled, air mail has exceeded previous marks, and in August 1,224,623 pounds was carried—a new record for a month.

In the same period the number of passengers using airways rose from 34,998 to 89,177, and express matter shipped by air rose from 171,818 pounds in February to 364,442 pounds in August.

A study by the Postoffice Department to determine the reason for the increase in the use of air mail showed that many banks were saving hundreds of thousands of dollars annually through quick check deposits by using air mail. From 858,299 pounds of air mail carried in February, the volume passed the 1,000,000-pound mark the following month and has shown a steady advance since then, setting a new high record each month, 1,169,737 pounds in July, compared with only 602,520 pounds in the corresponding month a year ago.

Number of passengers carried monthly: February, 34,998; March, 55,198; April, 61,499; May. 64,971; June, 73,896; July, 85,193 and August, 89,177.

President Roosevelt has proclaimed next week air navigation week. Nearly 300 Federal air navigation stations, operated by the Department of Commerce for guidance of transcontinental air liners, will be open for inspection throughout the week.

Latin-American visitors are being flown to the United States by Pan-American Airways, Inc. Arriving here tomorrow they will remain at the capital until Wednesday, when they will be taken to Langley Field to witness a demonstration flight by the army air force. The following day they will embark upon an aerial tour of Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Roosevelt Field and Long Island to inspect plane and communications factories. Saturday night they will fly to Chicago and will go on the following day by plane to Miami, Fla., where they will embark for home.

COMMUNISM AND CATHOLICITY SUBJECT OF JESUIT'S LECTURE

"What Have Communism and Catholicity in Common?" will be the subject of an address by the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., editor of The Queen's Work, a Jesuit publication, at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at St. Louis University Auditorium, 3642 Lindell boulevard.

The talk will be the first of a series of 10 on successive Monday evenings, sponsored by the publication and on the general subject, "Problems That Rock the World." Several of the discussions will be in the form of debates between members of the Order.

Lectures and debates to be given later are as follows: Oct 21—"Good People Are to Blame for Bad Government," a debate between Father Lord and the Rev. Edward Dowling; Oct. 28—"Is Modern Marriage a Failure:" by the Rev. J. Roger Lyons; Nov. 4—"Is Democracy Doomed?" by Father Dowling; Nov. 11—"The High Cost of Business Selfishness," by the Rev. G. A. McDonald; Nov. 18—"Votes the Bosses Fear," by Father Dowling; Nov. 25—"Is the Family Out-of-Date?" by Father Lyons; Dec. 2 — "Books Are the Makers of Nations," by the Rev. Herbert O. H. Walker; Dec. 9—"Dictatorship Would Benefit the United States," debate between Fathers Lord and Dowling; Dec. 16—"Can Civilization Be Saved From Ruin?" by Father Lord.

BOMB EXPLOSION WRECKS PORCH OF SALESMAN'S HOME

Blast at 4324 Wallace St. Hurls His Two Daughters From Bed and Breaks All Windows.

A bomb, exploded early yesterday on the front porch of the home of Adolph J. Heckwolf, at 4324 Wallace street, threw his daughters, 10 and 12 years old, from their beds, wrecked the porch and smashed every window pane in the two-story brick building.

Heckwolf, a coal salesman, told policemen that he could not explain the attack, which he estimated caused damage of $750 to $1000. He expressed the opinion the bomb was intended for someone else and was placed on his porch by mistake.

The explosion, at 4:25 a. m., shattered 38 windows in neighboring houses, including 16 in the home of Heckwolf's next door neighbor, Herman Berendes, 4326 Wallace street, member of an inhalator crew of the Laclede Gas Light Co. and an employe of the company for 22 years. The Berendes and Heckwolf homes are identical in outside appearance.

Last May Berendes reported to the police that a bottle containing stench fluid had been thrown through the pane of a front window of his home at 1:10 a. m. At the time, gas house workers of the Laclede Gas Light Co. were on a strike which Berendes did not join. On Aug. 28, more than a month after the strike had ended, two men entered the gas company branch at 2655 Adams street, where Berendes is stationed, and severely beat him.

Policemen expressed the opinion that dynamite was used for the bomb which was set off on Heckwolf's porch. The blast tore a hole about 18 inches in diameter in the concrete porch floor, tore away brick from the front wall of the house, shattered the front door and knocked down porch roof supports.

Heckwolf said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he and Mrs. Heckwolf had guests Friday night and retired after the last had left, about 3 a. m. yesterday. The children, Lorraine, 10, and Dodis Mae, 12, retired early.

None of the family was injured by the explosion, which did no damage to the second floor beyond smashing bathroom glassware.

Heckwolf, salesman for the Capitol Coal & Coke Co., owns the bungalow and has lived there with his family for 10 years.

Zinc Ore Price Up $1 a Ton.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 12. — Zinc ore prices advanced $1 a ton to a basis price of $31 and $32 a ton in the Joplin market this week, while lead held unchanged at $47. Sale of zinc for the week was reported at 6900 tons, all the ore available even at the higher price. Production exceeded 9000 tons, with 58 mills operating. Most of the mining companies posted a 25-cent increase in daily wages, to take effect the coming week, as a result of better ore prices.

ATTACK ON DANIEL BOONE CAUSES CLASH AT UNVEILING

Kentucky Editor Replies to Dr. Henderson; Pioneer's Descendant Leaves Platform in Tears.

By the Associated Press.

BOONSBORO, Ky., Oct. 12.—An attack on the historical importance of Daniel Boone called out a vigorour reply today at the unveiling of a pioneer memorial to the Transylvanians.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, of the University of North Carolina, referred to the "Boone Myth," and the "arrogant claims," he said Boone made. Dr. Henderson, president of the Transylvanians, emphasized the achievements of the Transylvania company. Two women, Mrs. Guy Ravin, Corvallis, Ore., a descendant of Boone, and her companion, left the platform in tears after Dr. Henderson's speech.

Tom Wallace, editor of the Louisville Times, said that as a great-great-grandson of Nathaniel Hart, one of the original Transylvanians, he wished to expreess condemnation of, and to deplore with all the force he could command, everything Dr. Henderson had said which constituted "an attempt to build up the fame of members of the Transylvania company at the expense of Daniel Boone. Any effort "to take the shirt from Daniel Boone would only leave Dr. Henderson hanging on the coat tails of the great pathfinder who always will be the romantic figure in pioneer history of Kentucky. Dr. Henderson's speech throughout seems to be an effort to represent Boone as a mere hireling. When capitalists hire brains they ought to be congratulated."

BODY OF FATHER DAMIEN TO BE BURIED IN BELGIUM

At King's Request It Will Be Taken From Molokai, Where Priest Died in Leper Colony.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Oct. 12.—By request if King Leopold, the body of Father Damien, who died in the service of the leper colony on the island of Molokai, will be taken from a lonely grave at Kalawao to his native Belgium, where a movement to canonize him is under way.

Residents of the modern leper settlement at Kalaupapa regularly trudge the three miles to Kalawao, site of Father Damien's work half a century ago, to honor the "Saint of Molokai." They requested that his body be undisturbed, but ecclesiastical officials decided to comply with the King's request.

The Right Rev. Stephen Alencastre, Bishop of Arabissus and head of the Catholic Church in Hawaii, said in announcing the decision: "Father Damien's name in Europe is a household word; here in Hawaii he is forgotten. His grave on Molokai, inaccessible, is abandoned and neglected."

King Leopold's request was made 46 years after Father Damien's death. A vituperative attack on the priest after he died of leprosy was made by a Honolulu clergyman. Robert Louis Stevenson defended the dead priest in his "Damien letter," written in Sydney, Australia. The novelist visited the leper settlement in 1888 and was a strong admirer of the priest and his work.

Pastor to Address Traffic Club.

The Rev. C. Oscar Johnson, pastor of the Third Baptist Church, will be the principal speaker at a luncheon of the Traffic Club at Hotel Jefferson tomorrow. The Traffic Club and the Women's Traffic Club of St. Louis will send delegations to the fourteenth annual convention of the Associated Taffic Clubs of America at Indianapolis Tuesday and Wednesday.

JOHNSON DEFENDS WORK DONE BY WPA

General Rebukes 'Tory' Papers for 'Attempt to Obstruct Relief of Suffering.'

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, quitting directorship of the New York City division of the Federal Work Progress Administration, tonight said farewell to "old bright eyes on the Hudson," and will leave his job Tuesday for a speaking tour.

Citing 220,000 jobs as the WPA achievement here, Johnson in a radio address, tongue-lashed "a small but powerful group" of critics, rebuked "Tory and Communist" newspapers, praised Mayor La Guardia and the WPA staff, and wound up with a defense of New Deal.

Johnson said his "holy show" had made more jobs than WPA made in all the rest of the country. He said New York's "shame" is "a small but powerful group who . . . trim the hide off the rest of the country and vaguely imagine that everything west of Rahway, N. J., is just a sort of silver fox farm for the growing of specimens for them to skin."

"I think some of the things that we are doing in YPA are fantastical, but, between saving a life or a catastrophic situation fantastically, and not saving it at all, there is, to my mind, no choice to make," he said.

"Tory" Newspapers "Unfair."

Johnson said that "Tory" newspapers had been unfair in "an attempt to obstruct the relief of suffering" and that, in criticising WPA they had gone "right down the Communist alley." He said some liberal newspapers had shown "unfailing fairness over many difficult months."

"Some of the professors and starry-eyed socialicians of the New Deal may be impractical, as I think they are. But every aim and every act of theirs was at least intended to relieve suffering and not to add to it—intended to lift up the vast areas of extreme depression among our people and not to ignore them."

New pitfalls of the New Deal "cannot be averted on any plan that seeks to frustrate the very objects the New Deal was invented to obtain—a more even distribution of the blessings of this country—a firmer security against destitution for great areas of the underprivileged—and an end to the black despair which for six years has hung like a cloud over from one-third to one-half of the population of the United States.

What New Deal Needs.

"The New Deal needs realignment, but it doesn't need new aims. Minimizing the President and attempts to frustrate rather than to improve his plans won't do any good. Recent trial balloons of the discarded old—and the aspiring new—leaders for the old order didn't raise a cheer, for the obvious reason that, upon the slightest examination, all they proposed was to condemn and cease all present effort for a better deal and let nature take its course.

"Now that is a national tragedy —no less. The New Deal sadly needs an intelligent and an active minority opposition . . . Let's pray for the sake of the New Deal that Nw Deal opposition gets some sense."

Terming Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins "the outstanding man of the whole Roosevelt administration," Johnson said he believed that Hopkins would now be "dead . . . standing on his feet fighting" had not President Roosevelt "shanghied" him for a restful sea trip.

Victor F. Ridder is Johnson's successor.

FRENCH GIVE UP EFFORTS TO INTEREST AMERICA IN WINE

Exporter Says People in United States Fail to Appreciate "Finer Things of Life."

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The Association of Bordeaux Wine Exporters, concluding that America lacks interest in fine wines, has abandoned its campaign for promoting their sale there.

"The American people have been ruined by silk stockings, movies and automobiles," Roger Descas, president of the association, said. "They have no time for the fine things of life, such as wine. The finer the wine, the finer the intellect necessary to appreciate it. We believed for three years that Americans had this quality more highly developed than most people. It is with the greatest regret that we are forced by irrefutable proofs to realize such is not the case."

Asked if he meant that Americans were culturally inferior to the French, Descas said: "No, indeed. But Americans are creatures of their environment. We know its effects in France. It is the atmosphere of silk stockings, movies and automobiles. They are the enemies of culture. They take up too much time and require too much money to leave scope for the refinement and culture which is essential for the appreciation of the finer things of life. Among these is wine."

24 in Hotel Drug Store Held Up.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Three nervous robbers today took $700 in cash aand several thousand dollars worth of jewelry in two rapid raids in the Windemere East Hotel. In the drug store of the hotel, the robbers forced 18 women and six men to toss their purses and wallets containing $300 on tables. They then got $400 from the hotel vault.

HIGH CLASS CITY, COUNTY HOMES TAKEN LAST WEEK

Residences of the more or less pretentious order have met with renewed demand, with purchases in additions in St. Louis County predominating. Transactions are on a cash basis, or involving substantial payments, with no elements of exchange disclosed.

A residence at 114 Lake Forest constructed by Fred W. Ahlemeier Jr., builder, has been purchased by C. E. Lazia. Negotiations were handled by the John P. Dolan Realty Co., in conjunction with the Lake Forest Development Corporation, represented by W. L. Gourley. The reported purchase price was $35,000.

The house has nine rooms and two baths. It occupies a lot 100 by 150 feet. It is one of the most attractive in this addition.

Negotiations virtually have been closed for another house recently completed in Lake Forest, which has led the real estate market in the residential field. The purchaser-elect is an executive in a downtown bank, whose name is withheld.

Novelist Acquires New Residence.

Frederick Hazlitt Brennan, novelist and magazine writer, has purchased a two-story residence, in English design, at the northeast corner of Clayton and Kent roads.

The house has ten rooms, with five bedrooms on the second floor. There are four baths. The first floor contains living room, sun room, library, dining room and kitchen, and maid's room with bath.

The house, one of the most imposing in Ellenwood, has ten rooms and three baths. There is a two car connected garage. The site, 100 by 220 feet, is embellished with large trees and shrubbery. The seller was G. C. Naumann. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will take possession of their new home about October 20.

Polo Drive Home is Sold.

Mrs. Helen M. Tooker, wife of Dr. C. W. Tooker, has purchased a brick Colonial structure at 509 West Polo Drive in Country Club Place, lying on the west of Hanley road, and west of Wydown boulevard. Edward L. Bakewell negotiated the sale, representing the Lindberg Boulevard Land Company. The house has 12 rooms. The first floor contains reception hall, large living room, with open fireplace, dining room, sun porch, kitchen and lavatory. The second floor has four master bedrooms, two master baths, and large sleeping porch. Two maids' rooms with bath are on the third floor. There are hardwood floors throughout and the basement is finished in granitoid.

The premises includes a children's playhouse which is an attractive feature. There is a two-car separate frame garage. The grounds, with a frontage of 115 feet by a depth of 356 feet, are adorned with forest trees.

A residence, Colonial in design, recently completed at 41 Willow Hill subdivision, a new development on Ladue, at McKnight road, has been bought by Arthur D. Lynch of the Sanitary Milk Producers Association, through Houts-Grossman-Hocker, realtors. It has seven rooms and bath.

Another residence in Willow Hill was sold from the plans by Houts-Grossman-Hocker, to Miss Virginia Wissmath. Both houses were built by the Berkley Construction Co., which has erected seven houses in the addition, placed on the market last spring. Houts-Grossman-Hocker, has also sold two lots on Donne avenue in University City, one on Bemiston avenue in Clayton, and

Residences of the more or less pretentious order have met with renewed demand, with purchases in additions in St. Louis County predominating. Transactions are on a cash basis, or involving substantial payments, with no elements of exchange disclosed.

A residence at 114 Lake Forest constructed by Fred W. Ahlemeier Jr., builder, has been purchased by C. E. Lazia. Negotiations were handled by the John P. Dolan Realty Co., in conjunction with the Lake Forest Development Corporation, represented by W. L. Gourley. The reported purchase price was $35,000.

The house has nine rooms and two baths. It occupies a lot 100 by 150 feet. It is one of the most attractive in this addition.

Negotiations virtually have been closed for another house recently completed in Lake Forest, which has led the real estate market in the residential field. The purchaser-elect is an executive in a downtown bank, whose name is withheld.

Novelist Acquires New Residence.

Frederick Hazlitt Brennan, novelist and magazine writer, has purchased a two-story residence, in English design, at the northeast corner of Clayton and Kent roads. The house has ten rooms, with five bedrooms on the second floor. There are four baths. The first floor contains living room, sun room, library, dining room and kitchen, and maid's room with bath.

Standing on a two-acre tract, the house is one of the most striking recently completed in the Clayton road district. It was erected by Howard Godwin, builder, and sold through the Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Company. Brennan now resides at 33 Hillvale drive in the Moorlands, Clayton.

The house, one of the most imposing in Ellenwood, has ten rooms and three baths. There is a two car connected garage. The site, 100 by 220 feet, is embellished with large trees and shrubbery. The seller was G. C. Naumann. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will take possession of their new home about October 20.

Polo Drive Home is Sold.

Mrs. Helen M. Tooker, wife of Dr. C. W. Tooker, has purchased a brick Colonial structure at 509 West Polo Drive in Country Club Place, lying on the west of Hanley road, and west of Wydown boulevard. Edward L. Bakewell negotiated the sale, representing the Lindberg Boulevard Land Company. The house has 12 rooms. The first floor contains reception hall, large living room, with open fireplace, dining room, sun porch, kitchen and lavatory. The second floor has four master bedrooms, two master baths, and large sleeping porch. Two maids' rooms with bath are on the third floor. There are hardwood floors throughout and the basement is finished in granitoid.

The premises includes a children's playhouse which is an attractive feature. There is a two-car separate frame garage. The grounds, with a frontage of 115 feet by a depth of 356 feet, are adorned with forest trees.

A residence, Colonial in design, recently completed at 41 Willow Hill subdivision, a new development on Ladue, at McKnight road, has been bought by Arthur D. Lynch of the Sanitary Milk Products Association, through Houts-Grossman-Hocker, realtors. It has seven rooms and bath.

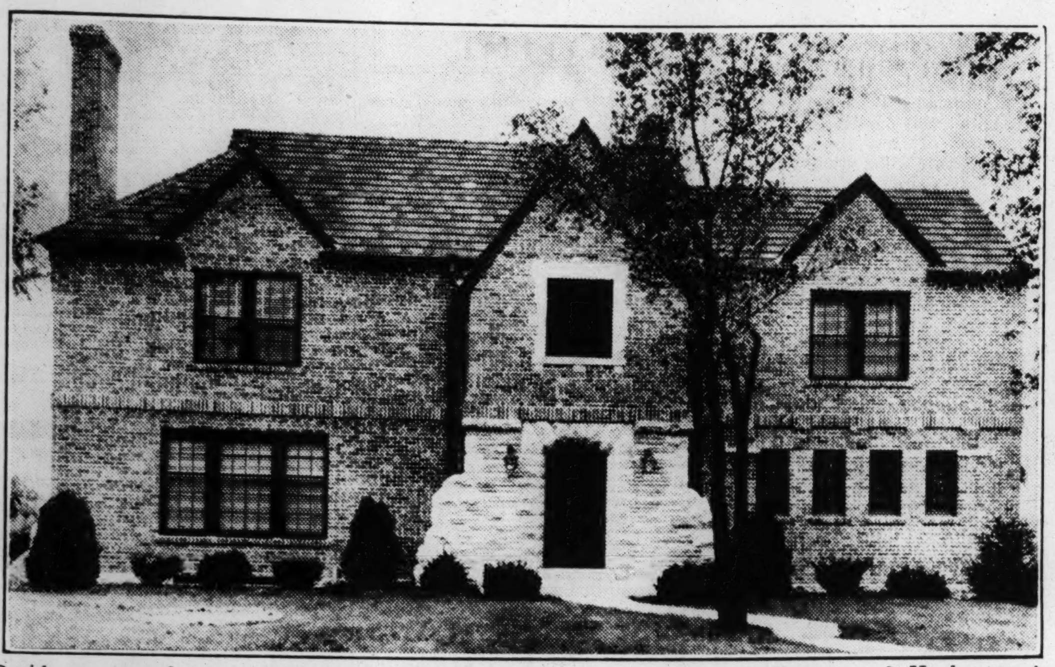
Another residence in Willow Hill was sold from the plans by Houts-Grossman-Hocker, to Miss Virginia Wissmath. Both houses were built by the Berkley Construction Co., which has erected seven houses in the addition, placed on the market last spring. Houts-Grossman-Hocker has also sold two lots on Donne avenue in University City, one on Bemiston avenue in Clayton, and one on West Point Court in Altadena, to prospective home builders.

Purchase Contracts Are Drawn.

No. 23 Ridgemoor drive, the residence of Abe Block, is under purchase contract, with deeds scheduled to be executed this week. The purchaser is an undisclosed client of the Dougherty Real Estate Co., which handled the negotiations in conjunction with Dimmitt-Rickhoff-Bayer Real Estate Co. The house is one of the most attractive in the Moorlands, which lies on the south of Wydown boulevard, with Clayton road as its south boundary.

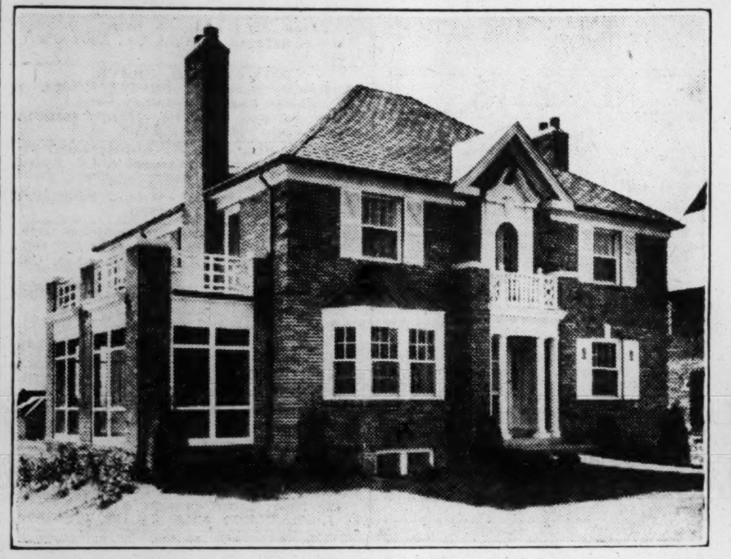
Tentative purchase contracts were drawn yesterday for a house under construction in Countryside, an estate development on the west side of Geyer road, approximately a mile south of the Clayton road. W. B. Shelp & Co. have the transaction in hand. The house is in keeping with those already erected in this addition, the restrictions of which contemplate its upbuilding on a pretentious scale. Offers were also reported for tracts at different points on Geyer road, between Clayton and Manchester roads, on behalf of persons with ambitious building plans.

Residential Buyers in the Market Last Week

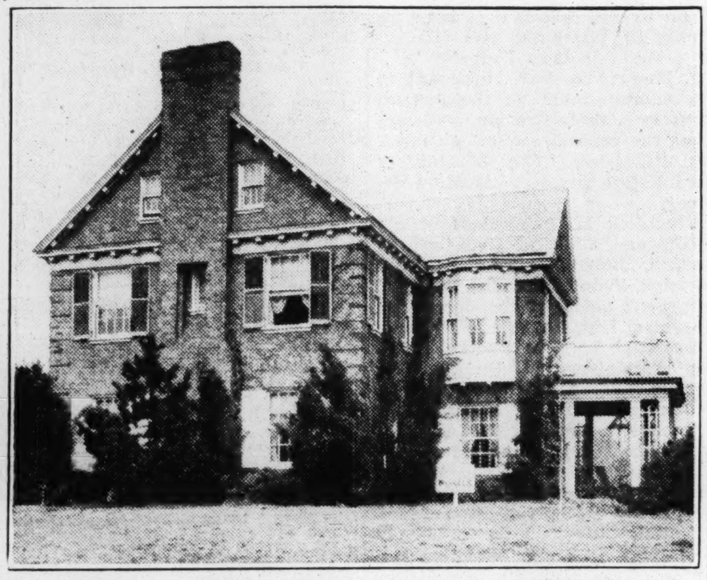


Residence recently completed at 114 Lake Forest, southeast corner of Clayton and Hanley roads, bought by C. E. Lazier. The John P. Dolan Realty Company handled negotiations in connection with the Lake Forest Development Corporation. Fred Ahlemeier, builder.

Residence at 509 West Polo drive in the old St. Louis Country Club grounds, lying on the west side of Hanley road, purchased by Mrs. Helen M. Tooker, wife of Dr. C. W. Tooker, through Edward L. Bakewell, Realtor. Albert T. Terry Son & Co. represented the purchaser.



Recently completed residence at 7736 Davis drive in Davis place, Clayton, acquired by Carl F. Setz Jr. Shaw & Francis, Inc., handled the transaction.



Residence at 6349 Ellenwood avenue, purchased by Edward D. Jones from G. C. Naumann. Negotiations were handled by the Henry R. Weisels Company.

The residence at the northeast corner of Clayton and Kent roads, built by Howard Godwin, has been purchased by Frederick Hazlett Brennan, novelist and magazine writer. The house, in English design, is on a 2-acre site. The transaction was handled by Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Company.

RESIDENCES AND FLATS FIGURING IN RECENT DEALS

5186 Rosa av., bungalow, for George Sauter to Eva E. and Gertrude L. Heid; Atlanta av., Webster Groves, bungalow to be built for A. Paul Davis; 3806 Arsenal st., residence, for Viola M. Longmire (represented by Chauncey P. Heath R. E. Co.), to Mrs. Kate Russell; 2746 Meramec st., resident, for J. Siska, to client; 4206 Cleveland av., flat, for R. R. Vaughan; southwest corner Pernod and Tamm, 2 lots, for S. O. Kennedy to Mary Reader; 3827 North Market st., residence, for Louise W. Jenson, to Davis Bunn; 3630 Humphrey st., for client, to R. R. Vaughan.

PUBLISHING COMPANY BUYS BUILDING ON DELMAR

The Modern View Printing & Publishing Company has purchased the building 5156 Delmar boulevard, occupying a lot 36x150 feet, from Samuel J. Yawitz. A modern printing and publishing plant is to be installed as soon as alterations and improvements are completed.

The firm has published the Modern View, a weekly publication. Its present quarters are at 210 Olive street, in the riverfront district. Negotiations were conducted by the Edward Glik Company.

DRAGO COMPANY LEASES ENTIRE FLOOR IN BUILDING

The entire sixth floor of the six-story fireproof Shelton Building at the northwest corner of Sixteenth street and Lucas avenue, has been leased to the recently formed Drago Manufacturing Co. Cyrus Drago is president of the concern, which will manufacture artificial flowers and novelties. The building is owned by Walter J. Knight, structural engineer. The rental prescribed in the lease was not disclosed. The Henry R. Weisels Co. arranged the lease.

GREAT EASTERN SYSTEM REMOVES BUS TERMINAL

The Great Eastern System has removed its bus terminal from 600 North Broadway to Twelfth and Delmar boulevards, where, in conjunction with the Illinois Terminal Railroad, it has taken over the old Central bus facilities.

The new terminal, now being remodeled, offers superior facilities for bus passengers, with a commodious waiting room, rest rooms, ticket information booths and restaurant. Passengers now may board busses without leaving the terminal.

The new Great Eastern Terminal at Twelfth and Delmar boulevards, centrally located, is within walking distance of the principal hotel and is available in connection with all other city transportation lines.

With its affiliated carriers it offers transportation to practically every town in the United States and Canada. Ralph L. Bogan is president of the Great Eastern System.

DIRECTORS OF EXCHANGE SEEK AFFILIATED MEMBERS

The Board of Directors of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange has approved the campaign to enroll 1000 new affiliated members in the exchange by the end of 1935 through the co-operative efforts of the offices of the individual realtors.

H. A. O'Rourke, president, H. A. O'Rourke, Inc., realtors, and second vice-president of the exchange, is chairman of the committee on affiliated membership. He has selected Louis Maginn, David I. Zucker Jr., George B. Wanstrath, Arthur Schneider, James L. Barngrove, Bert Stampfer, Joseph A. Goeke, Daniel F. Sheehan, George S. Metcalfe and Arthur C. Hoehn as captains to head teams.

Although in the first month of the campaign little concerted effort was put forth to obtain new members because of the organization of campaign plans, 44 new affiliated members were obtained.

Federal Housing Assailed.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Members of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards today considered the charge of Walter S. Schmidt, Cincinnati, that Federal entry into the housing field is destructive to the more ownership ideal. Schmidt, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, addressed the annual convention of State Real Estate Operators at which Charles S. Wanless, Springfield, was re-elected president. Other officers named were Howard Haynie, Chicago, first vice-president; Raymond Walker, Rock Island, secretary; Arthur Kruggel, Chicago, treasurer. With the exception of Charles J. Schiele, East St. Louis, who was succeeded by W. H. Horner of the same city,

BUILDING SHOWS DECLINE FOR MONTH

Permit Values in 215 Cities, $47,288,974 in September, $55,536,546 in August.

THE building construction industry in September, as measured by the estimated value of permits issued for new work, alterations, additions and repairs, showed the first decline from the preceding month since last May. The decrease, though seasonal, was slightly more than usual, but comparison with the corresponding month of last year is still highly favorable.

Permit values for the 215 cities reporting regularly to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., totaled $47,288,974 for the month of September, compared with $55,536,546 during August. This represented a loss of 14.8 per cent, against a usual seasonal drop of about 10 per cent. Last month's figure compared with $26,567,925 in September, 1934, or an increase of 78.0 per cent.

The group totals of building permit values for the 215 cities for September, this year and last, together with percentage changes, are shown in the following table:

Groups:	September, 1935	September, 1934.
New England —	$ 2,545,453	$2,693,160
Middle Atlantic	14,050,765	8,714,157
South Atlantic —	6,875,120	3,017,281
East Central —	8,990,538	4,916,737
South Central —	3,926,415	1,872,724
West Central —	2,689,000	1,771,064
Mountain — —	2,090,928	367,918
Pacific — — —	6,120,755	3,214,284
Total U. S. —	$47,288,974	$26,567,925
New York City—	$ 9,227,037	$ 5,809,457
Outside N. Y. C.	$38,061,937	$20,758,468

Gains over a year ago were reported in every section of the country, except in the New England States. The Mountain group showed a particularly large increase, due to the sharp rise in the Denver permit total. Other groups registering marked improvement over a year ago were the South Atlantic and South Central States.

Dec. — — —	....	21,125,723
Total — —	....	$348,390,747

Only two groups, the Mountain and South Atlantic sections, reported higher building permit totals in September than in August. Declines were recorded by all other groups, ranging from 40.0 per cent in the south Central division to 3.7 per cent in the East Central.

Increase for Nine Months.

For the first nine months of 1935 building permits involved a total of $410,261,406, the largest amount recorded for any similar period since 1931, and comparing with $262,304,836 last year, or a gain of 56.4 per cent. All sections contributed to the rise, with the Mountain, South Central and Pacific groups reporting increases of over 100 per cent.

The record of permit values by groups for the first nine months of 1935 and 1934, for the 215 cities, follows:

Groups:	Nine Months 1935	1934
New England —	$26,203,541	$25,025,579

BUILDING PEAKS AND VALLEYS MAY BE LEVELED OUT

Movement Efforts to Be Directed Toward Elimination of Characteristics of Cycles Since War.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Acceleration of the upward trend in home construction is expected to be one of the main objectives of the newly-formed Central Housing Committee designed to co-ordinate acttivities of the Federal housing agencies.

The committee is scheduled to meet with representatives of private interests in the construction field next week for discussion of the real estate recovery program.

Treasury representatives who have been surveying real estate conditions as a basis for co-ordinating the work of the housing agencies say vacancies in many communities have dropped as low as 2 per cent of the total available facilities.

Normally, they point out, vacancies average from 5 to 7 per cent.

In the light of experience in previous cycles, they contend, the current trend of rents, demand for housing and business recovery should produce a building boom in two or three years.

They hold the Federal agencies could anticipate the boom and prevent it from reaching unhealthy proportions by encouraging expansion in building over the next year to carry forward this year's upturn in home construction.

In other words, they hope to level out the peaks and valleys which have been characteristic of building cycles, notably in the post-war years.

Housing Agencies Studied.

With no less than ten important Federal agencies concerned with housing or home finance, the administration is pursuing actively its study of ways to make them pull together better and prevent overlapping.

A Treasury group headed by Peter Grimm, New York real estate man, has been holding meetings with local representatives of the Government agencies for a close-up study of the problems of co-ordination.

After he is finished, he is expected to make recommendations to the President.

Next week he is slated to hold a meeting in Atlanta for the Georgia District on the order of meetings already held for New Jersey, Massachusetts, Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Rumors of impending consolidation of some of the agencies were set at rest, at least for the time being, by announcement of the Central Housing Committee that no such action was contemplated.

Low-Cost Capital Subsidy.

New proposals for promoting low-cost housing may be put before the next session of Congress.

Some officials make no secret of their disappointment over the progress in getting low-cost housing under way.

Sentiment in Federal housing quarters is said to be veering away from direct expenditure of Government funds for low-cost housing to facilitate the flow of private capital into the field, either by direct subsidy or otherwise.

Some experts hold construction could be speeded up with less expense by the Government through a capital subsidy.

The proposal is for the Government to make up the difference, say, between 5 and 3 per cent in order that builders of low-cost housing could obtain capital cheaply. That plan, it was said, has worked successfully in some parts of Europe.

At any rate, with the talk of reducing Government expenditures, indications have multiplied that Federal housing experts are doing some deep thinking on the problem of promoting low-cost housing by means other than direct expenditures of Government money on a large scale.

Banks May Need Funds.

With their loans to member institutions climbing, Federal Home Loan banks are looking forward to the need for additional capital.

They can obtain more capital mainly by two means—sale of debentures or by advances from the $300,000,000 fund authorized in the past session of Congress for investment in the building field.

The Home Loan Banks now have $150,000,000 capital, the bulk subscribed by the Government. Their loans have risen to about $90,000,000 from $72,000,000 last April. At the recent rate of gain, officials say they would need more capital in six months.

They are authorized to sell debentures up to five times their capital. But some officials say such debentures would have to be guaranteed by the Government, just as HOLC bonds are, to find a favorable market.

In the event capital is not forthcoming from other sources in sufficient amount, Congress may be asked to authorize the Treasury to guarantee Home Loan bank debentures.

It was conceded such a proposal probably would encounter opposition from legislators who are against further increase in the Government's contingent liabilities.

The upturn in Home Loan Bank credit was cited as an indication of increased mortgage lending by member institutions.

To Report on Zionist Congress.

Isaac Hemlin, national secretary of the Gwerkshaften campaign, will report on the recent Zionist Congress held in Lucerne, Switzerland, at a Zionist meeting Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Y. M. H. A., Union boulevard and Enright avenue.

MODEL HOME ON DISPLAY ON MERAMEC DRIVE, DAVIS PL.

The modern home recently constructed at 901 Meramec drive, in Davis place, Clayton, for Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hays, will be used as a model home, displaying the scientific Delco conditionair cooling and heating unit and other electric appliances. It was designed by William Warren Sabin.

In this connection Sabin said: "A lot of consideration should be given to the selection of a cooling, heating and ventilating equipment since many so-called air conditioning plants are nothing more than the old style hot air furnace with a blower attached."

Modern homes have progressed beyond "heating plants," C. E. Wilson, president of C. E. Wilson, Inc., 317 South Seventh street, local Delco-Heat distributor, declared. Plants now are installed for winter air conditioning and summer cooling.

It is winter air conditioned with a Delco-Heat Conditionair, a product of General Motors Corporation, with euipment attached for summer cooling.

The air is drawn through especially treated filters where dirt, dust, pollen and bacteria are removed. It then is passed over cascade-type humidifiers and around the stream-lined heat-tranfer unit.

Purified, humidified and automatically heated air is circulated to every corner of the home, with a complete change every 10 to 15 minutes.

There are various sizes and models for gas or oil burning.

PROGRAM COMPLETE FOR CONVENTION

Walter S. Smith, President of National Body, to Speak at Opening Session.

The program for the twenty-eighth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards to be held in Atlantic City, Oct. 23-25, is complete.

DELCO-HEAT CONDITIONAIR

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

Delco-Heat Conditionair is constructed as a unit with each part designed and built to operate with every other part. From the especially treated filters, the powerful circulators and cascade humidifiers, a stream of purified, healthful air flows across the streamlined heat transfer unit. Here it absorbs the greatest practical amount of heat for automatically heating every room of the home.

Unit construction means efficient operation. Efficiency assures fuel economy. Models are available for natural, artificial or mixed gas or for burning the cheapest grade of domestic fuel oil. Installations made in either new homes or as replacements of your present plant. Install winter air conditioning now. Call us for free heating survey and estimate.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN A REAL HOME AT A LOW PRICE
IF SO
INSPECT THIS ONE WITH YOUR BUILDER OR ARCHITECT

Designed by Wm. Warren Sabin, Designer of Fine Homes
Planned for Economy, Comfort, Convenience and Durability
Mr. Sabin has designed many fine homes in Lake Forest, Hampton Park, Davis Place, etc.

Mr. Sabin says: "No modern home is complete without proper scientific heating and cooling systems, and the Delco system installed in this model home was selected because of its outstanding advantages over the lower priced equipment and has been tested and perfected by the largest company in the world of its kind, the makers of the Frigidaire, and backed by the General Motors Corporation."

The Delco conditionair should not be confused with the product of small hot air furnace builders.

Mr. Sabin says: "There is no home strictly modern where all bedrooms do not connect with bathrooms," and he adds, "the bathrooms in many new homes are given secondary consideration, but people no longer want to leave the bedroom, go through a hallway to find a bath—requiring partial dressing and many other unnecessary inconveniences and discomforts."

LAKE FOREST

The desire for freedom and personal privacy, for trees and the open sky, sent these prominent St. Louis families, who now make up our social register, to LAKE FOREST. They were won immediately by the unparalleled natural beauty of the community—to the abundance of mature trees and shrubbery—to the artistry of the landscaping. The distinctive and individual architecture of the homes gave free rein to their personal tastes and desires. Expert inspection revealed the homes to be of flawless construction—they were permanent, fireproof, and built to be lived in. The location on Clayton and Hanley Roads was found to be excellent—convenient to schools, churches, stores and transportation. Highly restricted as to style of homes and requirements of ownership, LAKE FOREST insured them a permanent, fine environment. And as to investment value, they now feel themselves very fortunate, for prices are definitely on the increase. Several exceptional homes have been recently completed in LAKE FOREST and offer the home seeker a splendid opportunity to join this distinguished community while prices are still low.

Drive out to LAKE FOREST this afternoon and inspect these beautiful homes—No. 29, 30, 38, 39, 72, 96, 112, 115 and 108 (pictured above). We welcome visitors.

We picture here one of the most beautiful homes in Lake Forest. It is No. 108, of Colonial architecture, and is ideally situated on a smartly landscaped plot 100x145. It has Living Room, Dining Room, Sunroom with open porch. Kitchen and Lavatory on first floor—Rathskeller with knotty pine walls in basement —5 bedrooms and 3 baths on second floor. Two-car garage attached and many other details that make No. 108 outstanding. See it today!

A CORRECTION!

We want to correct the impression that many people got from our large advertisement of 5012 Miami. They took it to be a large 8 or 9-room residence. This is only a 5-room on one floor bungalow with a rathskeller in the basement—the most beautiful home on the market today. See it before it is too late—open for your inspection—just west of Kingshighway, block north of Pernod.

This victory gave Japan the provinces of Hopei and Chahar, which represented an area of some 400,000 square kilometers and over 30,000,000 inhabitants. Chance, the Providence of journalists, guided my steps toward that cafe on the day in question. The host gaily invited me to join the other guests, and thus there were seven pairs of ears opened wide to all the confidences that the reserve officer promised us. He could express himself without restraint, for, though the walls may also have ears, they do not understand Japanese.

Whisky is a requisite at this kind of party—whisky, the only product, the embittered British say, for which the Japanese industrialists have not yet found a substitute. For in Japan they shamelessly fabricate authentic Bordeaux wine and no less authentic, though national, Burgundy wine. They even make champagne. (On the day when the Japanese distill Scotch whisky "made in Japan" the world will see British commerce come to an end).

"Unforeseen Reduced to Zero."

So the whisky flowed freely, and this is what Commander Erokitchigai said:

"A toast, gentlemen, in honor of the Japanese Kwangtung Army, in honor of its leaders and its Intelligence Service. They have just added 400,000 square kilometers and more than 30,000,000 inhabitants to our colonial empire, which is the youngest and most vigorous of all empires. And they are preparing to extend it over an additional 600,000 kilometers and 50,000,000 Chinese.

"The first part of the Japanese imperial expansion program could not have been better executed. Moreover, the special services of the Kwangtung Army studied the plan minutely. The unforeseen was reduced to zero.

Some one had tried to blow up the railroad track. It was 10 o'clock. The Manchurian troops and certain Korean regiments entered into action almost immediately in the entire zone of the South Manchurian Railway from Changchun to Port Arthur—that is to say, over a distance of more than 755 kilometers. Did they go into action even before this blessed explosion? Some claim they did, and their arguments are not altogether baseless. But to maintain the honor of Japan we affirm that the Japanese troops started their offensive drive exactly 32 seconds after the explosion, and Manchuria was conquered in seven days, much to the surprise of those naive Chinese, who pretended that we had violated the rights of man, the Kellogg-Briand Pact, the Washington Treaty, and the Covenant of the League of Nations. Face to face with this ridiculous protest against the eternal law of nature that the tiger should devour the inferior animals, we left Geneva and its hypocrisies.

How Japanese Secret Service, Boring From Within, Aided Nation's Conquests in China

Spread Propaganda in Paris and London and Paved Way for Advance of Troops, Writer in French Magazine Says.

By JAPONICUS

Reprinted from The Living Age—A Translation from Candide, Paris Topical Weekly.

IN a quiet cafe on the Boulevard Saint-Michel where a certain number of distinguished Japanese like to congregate after dining in a neighboring Chinese restaurant, Commander Erokitchigai,—both the title and the name are fictitious,—former officer in the Imperial Navy, recently invited some of his friends to celebrate the great victory of June, 1935, won without bloodshed in Northern China.

This victory gave Japan the provinces of Hopei and Chahar, which represented an area of some 400,000 square kilometers and over 30,000,000 inhabitants. Chance, the Providence of journalists, guided my steps toward that cafe on the day in question. "The first part of the Japanese imperial expansion program could not have been better executed. Moreover, the special services of the Kwangtung Army studied the plan minutely. The unforeseen was reduced to zero.

Timed to the Second.

"Do you remember the night of Sept. 18, 1931? Lieut. Kawamoto, accompanied by six men, was making the rounds a few kilometers north of Mukden when he heard a violent explosion. Some one had tried to blow up the railroad track. It was 10 o'clock. Face to face with this ridiculous protest against the eternal law of nature that the tiger should devour the inferior animals, we left Geneva and its hypocrisies.

"Distinct Honor Bestowed."

"Let us continue. Since Jehol Province was geographically connected with Manchuria, we could not leave it to the Chinese. During the early months of 1933, therefore, we took a 'constitutional' through that picturesque region of Inner Mongolia, and, finding it ready to accept the benefits of Japanese civilization, we immediately decided to include it in our glorious empire. This was a distinct honor that we bestowed upon it. Thus was the Manchukuoan protectorate created.

"Then we had to prepare the second phase of the Japanese expansion program. This preparation was to have taken two long years. It was a question of approaching, always pacifically, the Chinese provinces of Hopei, Shantung, and Shansi as well as the Mongolian provinces of Chahar and Suiyuan. In order to dodge complaints that would be as out of place as they were ineffective and useless and to avoid invocations of the rights of man and of all rights past, present and future that emasculated countries proclaim in various tones, the Intelligence Service of the Kwangtung Army decided to try a new method.

Chloroforming Public Opinion.

"The gods smiled upon us, their direct descendants. It was enough for us to be somewhat assured of sympathy in London and Paris. In both those cities we had at our disposal a propaganda service, the richly paid agents of which owed it to themselves to display special zeal. We ordered our London propagandists to persuade the British that they could make a lot of money in Manchuria—we omitted to say for whom—and we commanded the Japanese propagandists in Paris to convince the French (those everlasting sentimentalists) that we were the constant victims of the Anglo-Saxons, who harassed us with injustice and deprived us of petroleum. This underground work began last October. Since we did not need to fear the reaction of European public opinion, which was so thoroughly chloroformed, we started the second act, with which you are well acquainted, in June, 1935.

"People constantly speak of the British Intelligence Service and praise it unreservedly. Unquestionably, it has done much toward raising the British Empire to the zenith of its power and its glory, from which we hope some day to make it descend. But it is to the Japanese Intelligence Service, with its energetic chief, Major-General Doihara, that our country owes its Manchurian colonial empire. And some day it will have to thank this service for extending the Japanese Empire to the Yellow River, thus almost doubling its territory and quadrupling its population.

Tentacles of Secret Service.

'The Kwangtung Intelligence Service, which is autonomous, although it often co-operates with the information service of the mother country, includes all China as its field of activity. In the Tibet its agents come in contact with the agents of the British Intelligence Service, and in Outer Mongolia they meet with the members of the terrible GPU. It does not behoove me to give you more precise details or to speak about myself. But you must not be surprised if you learn one day that among the Communist bandit chiefs who operate in South China and who are fighting with such energy against Gen. Chiang Kai-shek there are a few of our agents. It is a good game. For Chiang Kai-shek, although apparently pro-Japanese, is really anti-Japanese. But probably no one will ever know this, for the officers and the civilians who have the supreme honor of serving in

$1,400,000,000 a Year for 770,128 On Mounting Federal Payroll

This Is For Executive Forces Alone, Not Including Army, Navy, Judiciary or Congress—New Deal Bureaus Have Added 206,641 in Two Years—Payroll Sure to Be Campaign Issue.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

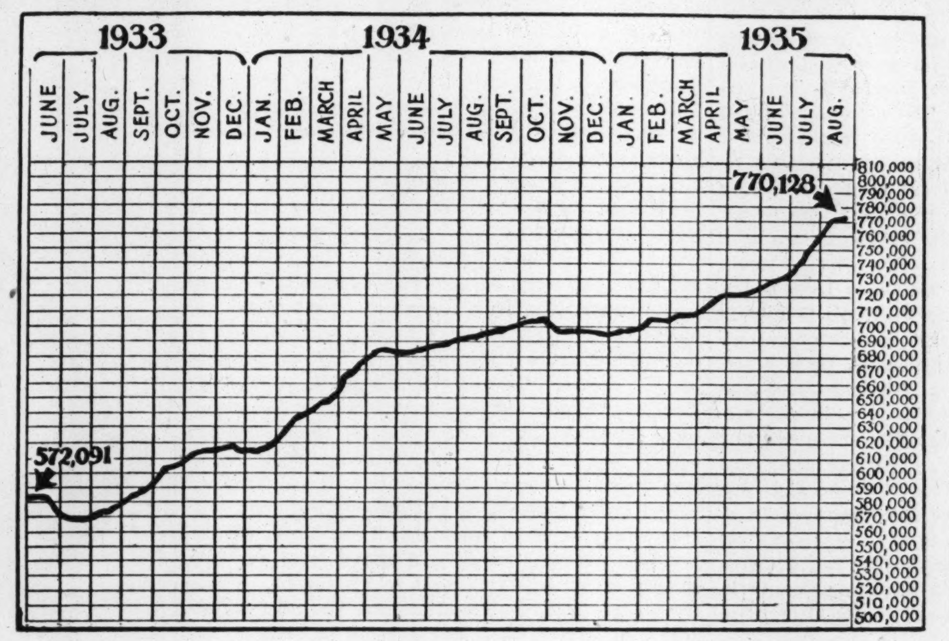
WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.

THE Federal payroll is today $115,789,800 a month, which is at the rate of nearly $1,400,000,000 a year.

That huge sum is being paid out to 770,128 employes in the executive branch of the Government, from President Roosevelt on down. It does not include the army, the navy, the judiciary or Congress.

The New Deal has added 206,641 of these employes in the two years of its existence. That is to say that on Feb. 28, 1933, there were 563,487 workers comprising the executive arm of the Government and on last Sept. 1, this total had grown to 770,128. And this does not take in nearly 50,000 Department of Agriculture workers hired on part time under letters of authorization to fight forest fires and do other conservation work. Neither does it include the part time employes—well over 100,000—most of them farmers, who police the AAA, nor the 504,484 CCC campers and the 19,772 workers who supervise the CCC.

Graph Shows Rise in Number of Government Jobs



Most of New Deal Workers Directly Appointed.

The figure, 770,128, represents then officialdom, sub-officialdom, clerks, secretaries and other retainers who participate in the manifold activities of the Government. It must not be confused with the list of relief workers taken from the relief rolls, although it is true that a certain number of the 770,128 are engaged in supervising the public works projects on which relief workers are employed.

Most of the 206,641 new employes are in the New Deal agencies, the AAA, NRA, WPA, etc. Most of them have been appointed without benefit of civil service and political opponents of the administration charge that they constitute the greatest patronage machine in history.

While there are day to day fluctuations in the size of the payroll, and the fate of certain agencies is just now in question, it is doubtful that there will be any substantial decline in either the payroll or the total number of salaried employes for some time to come. In fact, there are many indications that, unless President Roosevelt takes alarm at the political consequences of this huge army of workers, their number may increase during the next 12 months.

Congressman to Investigate Big Payroll, He Says.

Certainly the size of the Federal payroll will be a campaign issue. Already the chairman of one important congressional committee has stated, although he is not yet ready to make his plans public, that he will investigate the payrolls of the executive departments and particularly the New Deal agencies. While he is a Democrat, he has declared that he is indifferent to the political results of this investigation. From other members of Congress have come strenuous protests and it is certain that much will be heard when the next session convenes of the bureaucracy which this administration has created.

Nearly 40,000 out of the 206,641 employes added in the two years of the New Deal are in Washington. It is small wonder that this city is in the midst of a boom like the war-time boom. In the District of Columbia there are today 105,679 Federal employes exclusive of Congress, the judicial and military branches. An acute housing shortage has developed and rents have been pushed to an extortionate level.

At the peak of war-time employment on Nov. 11, 1918, there were 117,760 executive workers in Washington. The capital was so crowded that not only temporary office space but temporary shelter for individuals had to be constructed by the Government. Almost the same situation exists today.

Hotels and Apartments Used as Office Buildings.

C. J. Guthridge, chief of the division of Government space control, is engaged in a frantic search for new quarters to house a Government that is still expanding. He has already taken over several large apartment houses and at least three huge mansions. In the latter stenographers and secretaries work even in the bathrooms, kitchens and ballrooms. On less than two weeks' notice the Government took over the eight-story Arlington Hotel.

"We must still find other hotels or apartments to convert although that is very undesirable," Guthridge said. "The new Department of Interior building will be completed early in 1937 and that will relieve considerable Government-owned space. But in the meantime we will have to find emergency quarters."

The Government's Washington rent bill is about $2,250,000 a year, according to Guthridge. Several agencies, despairing of finding quarters in Washington, have gone to Baltimore, an hour away, to find sufficient space. A branch of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration has taken over the National Auditorium and stenographers and clerks occupy the stage and dressing rooms as well as the auditorium proper from which the seats have been removed. Desks are crowded so closely into the old "temporary buildings" put up during the war that there is scarcely elbow room.

By taking over apartments and hotels, the Government has, of course, contributed to the housing shortage. This has become so serious that a half dozen projects are being pushed now, both with and without Government aid, to provide housing at a moderate cost for governmental workers. It is literally true that there are no medium-sized apartments or houses to be had except at the most exaggerated rentals.

Civil Service Commission to Use First Night Shift.

For the first time in its history the Civil Service Commission is preparing to put on a night shift in the ratings and application section. The nearest approach to this was during the war when District of Columbia school teachers received temporary employment for a few hours a night to rate clerical test papers. Two hundred new employes are to be put to work on a night shift, necessitated by the new law limiting postal workers to a 40-hour week and by the executive order under which members of the CCC camps are to have an opportunity to qualify under civil service for administrative positions in the Conservation Corps.

The 40-hour week law will add about 8000 employes to the payroll of the Postoffice Department, carriers and clerks for the most part. More than 6000 of this number have already been added.

But this is an old line department. The real increase has been in the New Deal agencies. They expand and contract with an Arabian Nights abruptness. And while there is just now great confusion in the employment situation, a brief survey of certain of these agencies will show why the Federal payroll has mounted.

WPA Roll of Employes Skyrockets in Few Months.

The staff of the Works Progress Administration, as would be expected, has grown by leaps and bounds. From almost nothing it went in a few weeks time to a total of 24,648 for August in the field alone—that is outside the headquarters staff here in Washington. In September this increased to 26,287 and the total today is 34,353. These are state WPA workers who are on the Federal payroll. In Missouri, for example, they work for Matthew S. Murray, State Works Progress Administrator. These are classified as "temporary" workers but it seems fairly certain that they will remain attached to the payroll at least until next July.

The WPA headquarters staff is comparatively small and yet it is growing rapidly. It rose from 15 in August to 544 on Sept. 15, to 1101 on Sept. 30, and to 1392 on Oct. 1. Likewise the staff of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration is comparatively small and relatively static. On Aug. 15, the FERA staff here in Washington was 1159 while on Oct. 1, it was 1106. This does not include the large number of Emergency Relief Administration employes in the states who are paid out of a state fund to which in most instances the Federal Government contributes heavily.

But the whole story of WPA is not told. On the payroll of the Treasury are "about" 6000 new employes who are at work on administrative details of WPA—writing relief pay checks, verifying vouchers, etc. Most of these workers are in the field. They are divided between the three main divisions of the Treasury, Procurement, with 1981, Disbursement, with 1445, and Accounting with 2305. These workers receive $120 or $125 a month.

Resettlement Administration Has 13,332 on the Payroll.

Another New Deal agency which displays extraordinary elasticity is the Resettlement Administration, with two principal divisions, rural and suburban. On Aug. 15, the Resettlement Administration reached what officials describe as "the peak period" of employment. At that time there were—again "about"—18,500 employed in Washington and in the field. At present the payroll figure is 13,332. Persons on the inside of the Resettlement Administration complain that the 5000 who were discharged were trained social workers looking after the welfare of the 354,000 farm families transferred from the relief rolls to Resettlement.

The 13,332 still on the payroll are divided as follows: Rural Resettlement, 6697; Land Utilization, 2404; Management, 227; Suburban Resettlement, 313; Finance, 1992 and all other divisions 1699. At one time Rural Resettlement alone had 14,188 employes but officials explain this by saying that for a time, following a large number of transfers from FERA, there were duplicate staffs. Most of the field force has been chosen, according to the official spokesman for Resettlement, on the advice of county agricultural agents.

Old Mansions Taken Over to Provide Working Quarters.

Although the field force of Resettlement has declined in the past month and a half, the Washington staff has continued to grow. At headquarters there was an increase of "about" 300 to bring the total to 2473. Resettlement has taken over the Walsh mansion, a house of more than 50 rooms built in the "Diamond Jim" Brady era when walls were covered with rose-colored damask and chandeliers were bought by the ton. It is somewhat incongruous to see 100 stenographers at work in a drawing room decorated with cupids and rose petals. WPA has rented from Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean a second huge town house, built by her husband a generation later than the one built by her father and therefore of the Venetian palace style.

Thus far Resettlement has obtained out of works relief funds and from other sources, $241,000,000. The salary range is from $8000 a year—seven people get this amount, down through $7500 and $5400 to $890, the lowest salary. The average for the whole agency is $1800.

NRA Still a Very Vigorous "Skeleton."

The NRA, as has been pointed out, remains a very vigorous "skeleton," or rather a healthy ghost of its pre-Supreme Court self. The "active" payroll today bears "about" 2600 names and this does not include 200 who are employed "occasionally" on a per diem basis. Lawrence Martin, the present administrator, promises that "within the next 60 days or less," this will be reduced to 2000. And by Jan. 1, Martin says, NRA will be reduced to a force of 1500. The present payroll is between $576,000 and $600,000 a month. Of the total NRA staff about 900 are in the field, checking up on industry to determine the effects of the abandonment of the Recovery Administration.

The force of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration undergoes some fluctuation. In August the AAA gained 294 employes in the "permanent or emergency" category and lost 256 in the "temporary" classification. The total for August was 5777. PWA has shown recent gains as

Cutting Italian Communications With East Africa Only Effective Sanction, Lloyd George Declares

He Thinks Economic Penalties of Small Value While Mussolini Can Trade Through Austria and Germany.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,

Prime Minister of Great Britain During the World War.

(World Copyright, including South America, 1935.)

LONDON, Oct. 12.

WAR—"inexorable war"—to use the grim phrase of Gen. Emilio de Bono is raging in the land of Sheba. With bombs, shells, machine guns and tanks, the Italians are blazing a trail through the poor villages of Ethiopia. So far it has been pitiless slaughter of a practically unarmed people.

It had been evident for some time to every detached reader of news from Rome and Geneva that war between Italy and Abyssinia was inevitable.

When the blow fell the sole practical contributions made by friendly Powers ("friendly" to whom?) had been the imposing of an embargo on exportation of arms and a successful appeal to the Abyssinian Emperor to postpone mobilization.

Both these measures, separately and in conjunction, left Ethiopia at the mercy of her well armed, well prepared foe.

Geneva's Futile Hope.

First reports of fighting came to Geneva as an unpleasant surprise. In this Abyssinian business, it is characteristic of the atmosphere which has damned Geneva that almost up to the end dispatches from the League front palpitated with hope of solution or surrender—solution by good offices of the League or surrender through fear of its sanctions.

They ought to have known that Premier Mussolini was so committed by open and avowed declarations of purpose and policy that he could not retreat without success or suicide.

The League offered him nothing which he could have accepted without being laughed off the Italian stage—and as for talk of sanctions, Il Duce knew the exact weight of the brain and fist of every man with whom he was dealing. And having carefully scanned the figures on the balance, he decided it was a safe chance to defy them all.

Economic sanctions will take a long time to strangle Italian trade when there is a secure inlet and outlet to and from Italy through Austria, Switzerland and Germany. That's assured. I am told that Yugoslavia may also disregard economic sanctions. That is surprising in view of the Serbian attitude towards Italy. But the Serbs are doing a roaring trade with their neighbors in supplying their African armies with meat.

Only Effective Sanction.

There is only one sanction—short of war—which would be of avail and that is the complete cutting off of Italian communications with East Africa. Ultimately that would paralyze Italian enterprise.

As Mr. Winston Churchill pointed out it would close the door of a trap for the Italian army. Mussolini would realize that fact if such a sanction were applied, and he would be prepared to confer under conditions where he would have to depend upon reason and not upon force.

Now that the League, led by Britain, has failed to stop war, the main preoccupation of all nations will be to prevent its spread. Can this be done? It will not be an easy matter.

I am writing without any definite knowledge as to the character of the sanctions which the League intends to impose upon the transgressor. I am convinced that strong action by a practically united Europe would have averted war. But that, I think, may now be ruled out.

France will not join in any collective action which could be effective, and Britain will not go beyond the bounds of French cooperation—not even if all the rest of Europe was prepared to join in.

Sanctions Have Their Snares.

But economic sanctions have their snares and may provoke trouble with nations that remain neutral. There are still two great dangers ahead.

The first is that reports of the bombing and shelling of villages and the massacre of women and children which must inevitably follow, will excite such passions in Britain, France, Russia and other countries that Governments may be rushed into armed intervention.

The second peril comes from removal of the arms embargo against Ethiopia, which I assume must constitute an essential part of any proposed sanctions, however mild they may be. Withdrawal of the embargo before hostilities commenced would have involved no complications. But are the Italians likely to submit tamely to arrangements made for the rearmament and re-equipment of a nation with which they are at war?

A few cargoes of machine guns, rifles and ammunition might prolong the war for years. The Boers kept going for many months on ammunition captured from the British.

Length of War a Factor.

Incidents will undoubtedly occur if there are any attempts by the Italian Navy in the Indian Ocean or the Red Sea to search neutral vessels suspected of carrying war materials for the Ethiopians who are defending their mountains against invading armies.

Things may also occur on frontiers which have to be crossed by convoys of ammunitions. There may be disputes as to whether they happened on the British or Italian side of that frontier.

Much will depend upon whether the war will be short and sharp or whether it becomes a prolonged struggle, desperately and stubbornly maintained by tribesmen after the main armies of their country have been defeated.

In the latter event the Italian temper would be exasperated, and exasperation is fatal to discretion.

Every lunar month in which the conflict is protracted will be 28 days and nights of possibilities sinister for world peace.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Lenin on War.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AFTER much prediction on the part of the press, the public is informed that war has returned again. Colonial or otherwise, it must cause alarm and unrest among the Powers. And when one recalls the tiny spark that ignited the last conflagration, in 1914, Mussolini's war cannot be under-estimated. Its culmination is beyond the power of human imagination.

Such being the case, it is altogether fitting and proper to revive the words of the League's arch-enemy, Vladimir Ilyitch Lenin, the genius of revolution. He said: "War is not an accident, not a sin, as Christian people think, but an unavoidable stage of capitalism, just as normal a form of capitalist life as is peace. Refusal of military service, strikes against war and such things are mere stupidity, a pale and cowardly dream of unarmed struggle with the armed bourgeoisie. Imperialism will place at stake the fate of European culture, and other wars will soon follow; the tale of the last war is an empty, harmful tale."

Admirable words, even if spoken by a Communist. If capitalism means consistent warfare, then a substitute of a more tranquil nature should be considered. I am not a Communist and I am not excited over Communistic activity in this country. But if the dispensers of the real Communistic propaganda—the capitalists themselves—do not repair their fast decaying system, intelligent people will refuse to respect a setup that fosters militarism and imperialism. They will demand a peaceful and economically just system and eventually obtain it.

Call for an Inventor.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AFTER Oct. 1, St. Louisans cease to be normal breathers. Shallow, defensive breathing to allow the minimum intake of soot into the lungs becomes a habit.

Isn't there someone in our smoke-palled, gas-poisoned city skillful enough to invent and market a small, convenient nose mask, not too unsightly, that would strain the air?

Should there be any spare change left after St. Louis has been sufficiently beautified with parks and memorials, perhaps we could have the dirt cleaned up.

BLACK NATIVE.

Is the Depression Over?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR cartoon on the situation of the unemployed surely hits the nail on the head. Mr. Sloan of General Motors says the depression is now behind us. How in the name of common sense does he account for the 10,000,000 men who are idle? How could anyone make such a statement in the face of things as they really are? If Mr. Sloan will go into the highways and byways, he will obtain first-hand information as to the situation as it is; not as he would have us believe.

Don't think for a split second that business has any intention of absorbing the army of unemployed. The order of the day is: Cut the payroll. True, there has been a pickup, but instead of helping to maintain this, many employers have nipped it in the bud by laying off the few they had employed. Take the railroads. Nursed at the financial breast of the Government to the tune of millions, did they help? No. They work many of their employes seven days a week, and make them like it.

No, dear reader, don't kid yourself. There are in our midst people starving in the midst of plenty, regardless of Mr. Sloan's statement.

If We Had Joined the League.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AS a reader of your paper for some 40 years and one who takes a lively interest in current events, I am writing in reference to your recent editorial on the League of Nations.

If our country had gone into the League, the important position of the United States in world affairs would have given it such moral support that the League would not have been called upon to give military aid.

A criticism of the League's past record is a criticism of the United States.

It was only the envy and jealousy of a little politician from Massachusetts and the hatred of a former President for Wilson (who put him out of the limelight) that kept us out of the League.

Washington's reference to "entangling alliances" referred to "entangling alliances" in regard to war, not alliances to preserve peace, upon which principle the League was founded.

COVENANTER.

Roman Cruelty.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial entitled "In a Class by Himself" reminds me of a characteristic sentence from a Roman classic: "Romani immani quadam crudelitate crant." (The Romans were always inhumanly cruel.)

We should remember now the times when thousands died in the amphitheaters, Christians and gladiators very often facing wild animals to please a hysterical nation. And Mussolini wants to civilize the Ethiopians. Surely a fine specimen of Christianity.

THE PROCESSES OF JUSTICE.

After the first of the court trials growing out of the kidnaping of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, the Post-Dispatch commented that the proceedings threw a bright light on "certain of the faults inherent in the present system of criminal justice." We referred particularly to statements by the defense, in addresses to the jury, designed by innuendo to discredit Dr. Kelley before the jury and seeking to place the Post-Dispatch on trial for obtaining and publishing the news of an atrocious crime and its aftermath.

After the second of the trials, we commented in similar vein, with special reference to the disgraceful extreme to which the defense, without the shadow of evidential support, carried its attacks on Dr. Kelley. We said that this trial, like the first one, illustrated the need of bringing our Missouri criminal code into line with "the requirements of justice—and of common sense and common decency."

Certain features of the third of these kidnaping trials, recently held at Mexico, Mo., invite comment. It is beside the point that the defendant in this case was acquitted, just as it was beside the point that the defendants in the two preceding cases were convicted. We are concerned with the manner in which attorneys for the defense in the Mexico trial, employing the same tactics that marked the conduct of the defense in the first two cases, went beyond the bounds of the evidence in their unsworn statements to the jury. We surmise that the criminal code itself, and the rules and practice under the code, must be on trial in the minds of thoughtful persons who have followed the proceedings in the three cases in question.

The defense at Mexico told the jury in an opening speech that the evidence would prove the witness Fiedler, for the State, was a perjurer. That was the flat statement to the jury. The defense rang all the changes on the theme. It would be shown that the State's case rested wholly on lies "framed" by Fiedler; that he was "one of the most outstanding perjurers in this part of the country"; that by all the people who had known him he was known as a liar and a perjurer—and so on. Moreover, it would be shown "that he (Fiedler) claims to have had a finger in every major crime in St. Louis County in the last 10 years, as a counselor, adviser or participant." Fiedler had not testified when these assertions were made to the jury. Their purpose was clear—to fix in the minds of the jury, in advance, the impression that the witness was not under any circumstances to be believed. When Fiedler was on the stand, it was brought out that he had been accused of perjury but never had been convicted. The defense introduced no word of evidence to show that Fiedler was a perjurer or that he had played a part "in every major crime in St. Louis County in the last 10 years." The strategy of the defense in this instance—the getting of points before the jury in the form of unsworn statements by lawyers, followed by failure to produce supporting evidence under oath—is a characteristic device of defense attorneys in criminal trials. It was used, for further example, in the first of the three Kelley kidnaping trials, where the defense threw out the plain insinuation that the kidnaping had been faked but introduced no evidence whatsoever to back up that theory.

Parallels abound between the third trial and one or both of the others. Again there was an effort to make the prosecuting witness appear to be the defendant. Again the Post-Dispatch, through the mouth of a lawyer but not that of any witness, was accused of a sordid motive in getting and bringing to the notice of the authorities the facts on which the three kidnaping trials have been based. The Post-Dispatch, in effect, was again placed on trial. The Post-Dispatch was moved by "inordinate lust to create and offer sensationalism for the purpose of enriching its coffers." This in face of the fact, with which every defense lawyer should have been familiar, that the only item of news in the whole case that could possibly be classed as "sensational," the name of the woman defendant, was not published by the Post-Dispatch until she was indicted by the grand jury, a month after another St. Louis newspaper had printed it on the unsupported accusation of the witness Fiedler.

* * *

Not only the Post-Dispatch but the prosecuting officers of St. Louis County were placed on trial: they had been led by this "insidious" activity of the Post-Dispatch to "prostitute" their duties. Such statements as these about the prosecuting witness, the Post-Dispatch and the State's officers illustrate a type of "argument" with which pleas for the defense in criminal trials are frequently larded. To seek to introduce an extraneous issue, when the only issue before the jury is the guilt or innocence of the person on trial, is a familiar maneuver.

As for the insinuations against the prosecuting officers of St. Louis County, the record they have made in their arduous effort to hunt down and punish the kidnapers of Dr. Kelley speaks for itself. They deserve, and we believe they have, the gratitude of the community. Similarly, the record of the Post-Dispatch through the 57 years of its life speaks for itself. We repeat what we said after the first of the three trials:

> The Post-Dispatch paid Fiedler for certain information after it had satisfied itself of the substantial truth of that information. It turned the information and the witness Fiedler over to the proper authorities. It printed none of this material until assured by them that such publication would in no way interfere with the processes of justice. The Post-Dispatch, as the facts show, acted at all times in the public interest.

Joined with the charges against the Post-Dispatch and the prosecuting lawyers was an attempt to inflame the emotions of the jury of country men against the "city people" in the case. The attempt was disguised by none of the subtleties that might have been expected. The attorney who made this class appeal to the jury pointed out that he was a farm-bred lawyer; he lived in a section famous for its fine Missouri mules; he had come into Audrain County, whose "history, tradition and character" he extolled at length, to see that justice was done, whereas his "friends from the city," the prosecutors, were imbued with the desire to prosecute somebody and make a record. He emphasized that there were differences between "city people" and "country folks." Not only that, but some of the city people in the case were rich people. "These city folks," he knew them. They were given, at their birthday parties, to the drinking of cocktails and champagne. And so on, even to a cheap sneer at the way Dr. Kelley pronounced a word in his testimony. In the cross-examination of a woman witness for the State, the same defense attorney made play on the fact, which he adduced, that she employed white servants in her home. "That's the difference between you and me," said the lawyer. "I always had colored servants." (Again that "difference" for its effect on the country jury.) The Judge rebuked the defense counsel for this line of examination.

In Heaven's name, what bearing had all this talk about city and country people, about mules and household servants, about pronunciation, upon the sole issue before the jury—the defendant's guilt or innocence of the charge of kidnaping for ransom? The question answers itself.

In one of the closing addresses to the jury, the defense demanded to know why a Post-Dispatch reporter, "who must have known who every one of the kidnapers were," was not summoned as a witness. The answer is the reporter was at Mexico throughout the trial, summoned by a defense subpena but never called by the defense.

The point need not be labored. As we have stated, the tactics of the defense at Mexico were not unique but were typical of our criminal procedure. Because they were typical, we commend them to the consideration of all students of the problem of criminal-code reform.

WAR MEANS CENSORSHIP.

Americans did not hear Baron Aloisi's radio broadcast giving the Italian side of the Ethiopian and League issues, because the British Government refused to relay the address. An example thus is given of how control of communications continues to play a part in molding world opinion. Italy has denounced this suppression, but the protest loses much of its force in view of the drastic censorship that nation imposes on its own people. Americans have little sympathy for Italy's Fascist doctrines and ruthless imperialism, but nevertheless feel it would be only cricket, as the British would put it, to let the Italians state their case.

This instance is a continuation of what the British did so effectively in bottling up the enemy nations' views during the World War. By control of the cables, England was able to isolate the Central Powers by a complete blockade of expressions from them. News correspondents in enemy and neutral nations found that it was impossible to get dispatches through that were in any way unfavorable to the Allied cause. The more important aspect of the situation, one which America must guard against in the event of another European war, is thus described by C. Hartley Grattan in his book, "Why We Fought": "Control of the cables is now recognized to be the most important cause for the astounding success the British had in manipulating the American mind."

The latest instance of suppression was not fully successful, for news dispatches from Rome carried extended accounts of Aloisi's speech, and the censorship action added interest to his words. It is a truism that free speech and the give and take of open debate disappear when war appears or even threatens. Britain, of course, is not the only offender. It is a fact that American news readers should bear in mind when they find dispatches from Rome contradicting those from Geneva, Addis Ababa and London.

COMEBACK OF THE KINGS.

Perhaps we should have heeded the ancient lyric's injunction to "Say au revoir but not good-by." But what with that flight to Holland, the dreadful night at Ekaterinburg, the Austrian widow and her brood in impoverished exile in Belgium, old Ferdinand, gray "Fox of the Balkans," loping away from baying Bulgaria, Europe staggering in the ruins of Armageddon—it all looked like the twilight of the kings. The shadows deepened as the Bourbon boulevardier, Alfonso, surrendered the tarnished glory of Castile, to count the hopeless hours beyond the Pyrenees.

Is the clock turning back? The Republic of Greece passes into the shadow, seemingly, with the resignation of Premier Tsaldaris, the assumption of power by the monarchist Gen. Kondylis and the hurrying footsteps of King George.

From Vienna comes the word of the pretender, Archduke Otto, that only the deception of false leaders "prevented his return as Emperor three months ago."

In the distant thunderings of Ethiopia, Victor Emmanuel may conceivably be reading Il Duce's epitaph and the renaissance of the House of Savoy.

HIS VERY OWN WORDS.

Whatever else was said about Mr. Hoover in the White House days, and goodness knows they poured it on him copiously, nobody ever accused him of employing a "ghost writer." Laboriously and conscientiously, he ground out his own stuff. That has not been entirely true of all our Presidents.

Only a week or two ago, an epistle of Franklin D. Roosevelt's, when subjected to the deadly parallel column, fell under the ban. One paragraph of it had, on the evidence, been lifted from a communication of Gov. La Follette of Wisconsin. The expose, however, didn't occasion any violent reaction. Neither of the Chicago Colonels—Knox and McCormick—blew a rhetorical blast. The Liberty League passed no resolution. Former Gov. Ely of Massachusetts managed to keep his Puritanical indignation in hand.

The thing has happened before. When Theodore Roosevelt was President and engaged in his favorite target practice of shooting messages at Congress, he found precisely the ammunition he wanted in a state paper prepared by Gov. Folk of Missouri. There was a slight flurry among the excessively righteous Democrats, and here and there a Jeffersonian editor tried pretty hard to be shocked, but the episode died a gay, chuckling death. Some research fiend, with a sardonic sense of humor, reminded us that Jean Jacques Rousseau had unknowingly collaborated with Thomas Jefferson in composing the Declaration of Independence and—as if that wasn't enough!—went on to cackle that Alexander Hamilton had written Washington's Farewell Address.

Returning to Mr. Hoover, after this wide ramble, we follow attentively his after-dinner remarks to the alumni of Stanford University. Speaking of endowed institutions whose incomes are threatened, he fears, by the administration's fiscal policies and methods, he was quoted:

> It is from them that must spring the refreshing waters of freedom. It is in them that the nation holds that link of the past to the vision of the future which supports all civilization.

Right-o. Fine sentiments. But that's the kind of purple-patching which makes his admirers wish Mr. Hoover would give an unemployed ghost writer a job.

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

A Remarkable Student Volume

POEMS BY MISSOURI STUDENTS. Edited by Robert L. Ramsay. (Published by the University of Missouri.)

FIVE years ago, George A. Mahan of Hannibal, Mo., established the Mahan Fund, for the purpose of aiding in "the discovery and encouragement of superior and gifted students in the field of creative writing, by the promotion of a series of literary contests open to all resident students of the University of Missouri." In the poetry contest, which opens in September and closes in November of each year, a first prize of $100 and a second of $25 are awarded.

Last year, Dr. J. Breckenridge Ellis of Plattsburg, Mo., established the Ellis Fund, to provide for the publication of "worthy creative writing done by students of the university."

The volume here noted is the first of a series, "The Ellis Booklets of Student Creative Writing," which will provide an outlet for the best work, both in prose and verse, done at the university. Here we have the winning poems and others submitted in the five contests thus far held under the Mahan Fund—a total of 29 out of 1064 entries. The following young poets are represented: Roberta Mansbarger, James Freedman, Wilfred Huning Klick, William Albert Kleckner, Mary Paxton Keeley, Harold Vincent Boyle, Ursula Genung, Mary Wolf Beach, Mary Frances Owsley, Dorothy Hoskins, Mary Elizabeth Folse, Vernon Meyer, Peggy Carol Elsea, Jetta Carleton.

Twelve years ago, as Dr. Ramsay observes in his introduction, there was published at the university a thin volume entitled "Verse Written by Students of the University of Missouri." It contained prize-winning poems for the years 1905-15, 1917-18 and 1922-23.

"Together the two volumes," says Dr. Ramsay, "exhibit some of the fruits of the lively interest in poetic composition on the part of students at the University of Missouri for 30 years." And he adds what may well be the wisest possible comment on the present collection as a whole: "Whatever may be their measure of achievement, they offer evidence at least of a sustained and devoted effort by many young Missourians to make the most of their poetic gifts."

The important matter in this connection is not, of course, the encouragement of numerous little talents, transient youthful vanities and vain desires, but rather to reduce the odds against the always possible poet of genuine gifts by encouraging the many "to make the most" of their potentialities. The emergence of that always possible one is a very rare event, indeed—far rarer than is generally supposed in our day, else there would not be so many thousands of poetic aspirants; and, but for the curious misconception that is abroad, even some of our more celebrated versifiers could not have been taken seriously.

If in 30 years a great educational institution has produced one poet with some genuine vision of his very own to communicate to his fellow men, then the triumph is great; and if 30 more years be required, the triumph will not be diminished by the lapse of time nor by the efforts involved.

With this view of the matter as a background for judgment, the present collection must be regarded as remarkable. For if it be true that no single composition stands out as a poetic triumph, throughout the collection, in most of the poems, there are brief flashes of the indubitable blue fire that make one feel the author's momentary approach to the hidden and enduring reality.

There is no intellectual exercise less profitable than adverse criticism of either alleged or genuine poetry. If truly a revealing vision manages to break through the lines, then appreciation of the vision is all that really matters. If no such vision breaks through, then there is really nothing to consider. One might go through this little volume, pointing out the many brief flashes of genuine insight; but these should be obvious to anyone with genuine feeling for the poetic.

If this writer were to choose a single poem for appreciation, it would be the first in the collection, Roberta Mansbarger's "The Woman," which was awarded first prize in the 1930-31 contest. As an organic realization of a genuine vision, it strikes this writer as being worthy of special attention. The fundamental, everlasting wisdom of woman is there beautifully expressed, and it cannot be doubted that the poem grew out of some profound depth in the author's consciousness.

THE COLUMBIA ENCYCLOPEDIA. Edited by Clarke F. Ansley. (Columbia University Press, New York City.)

THIS is the first original one-volume encyclopedia to be prepared and published in America. A compendium of human knowledge, it required the work of a large staff for eight years to produce it, and each of the 52,000 articles was prepared by an expert on the subject under consideration. Although the 2000 pages comprise more than 5,000,000 words, the text is not difficult to read and the volume weighs only 11 pounds. Entries are arranged alphabetically, and a thumb index renders all the material readily accessible.

Although international in scope, matters of particular American interest are given special attention, and the volume is said to contain more biographies of living and dead Americans than any other one-volume work of universal reference. While all articles are written as concisely as possible, many contain as many as 6000 words.

JUNGLE WOMAN. By Frances Yeager and Eli Colter. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York City.)

THIS remarkable book of memories sets forth the experiences of a young Canadian woman in the jungles of Sumatra some 40 years ago. Mrs. Yeager's husband was an oil driller. Sent by his company to the then new oil fields in Sumatra, he induced his wife to join him with their infant son. Mrs. Yeager, then in her twenties, was the only white woman in the jungle where she lived for four years.

It is reasonable to assume that the intervening time may have served to color her memories, but after making generous allowance for perspective, more than enough remains to place the story well above the average in its field. It is a tale of cruelties, terrors and not a little strange beauty.

Tiger scares were a common occurrence. Once Mrs. Yeager hid with her baby in the family rice box while a pair of great cats padded about the flimsy house, and once she lay all night on the platform of an oil derrick just barely out of reach of one of the man-eating beasts that returned to the attack at intervals until dawn. Great snakes furnished their own variety of questionable entertainment, and once an elephant stampede swept through the village.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Yeager felt the spell of the jungle and grew to love its mystery and silence. There is plenty of humor in the book, and Miss Eli Colter, to whom Mrs. Yeager told her tale, has done an altogether creditable job of writing.

THE NEW DEAL AND FOREIGN TRADE. By Alonzo E. Taylor. (The Macmillan Co., New York City.)

IN HIS pamphlet entitled "America Must Choose," Secretary Wallace discussed three ways in which our agricultural problem might be solved. The first was concerned with the limitation of crops in keeping solely with our domestic needs; the second, with unrestricted agriculture and the adoption of free trade; the third, with "a planned middle course," involving the reduction of tilled land to, say, half of what exclusive domestic consumption would demand, and a corresponding increase in imports of manufactured goods.

In the present work, Dr. Taylor, who is director of the Food Research Institute at Stanford University, discusses Secretary Wallace's pamphlet with especial reference to the "middle-course" plan favored by Mr. Wallace. The following represents Dr. Taylor's view of the situation:

"Secretary Wallace is too ambitious; he would socialize simultaneously the agricultures of the United States and of the world. And this would be attempted by trial and error abroad before the method is proved at home. In every 'planned society' under modern conditions, it has been found necessary to 'plan' public opinion in support of the 'plan' by securing a 'planned' control of speech, press and communications. Shall this prove true of the New Deal?

"It is characteristic of this administration that when an experiment into an unexplored field fails to yield the results hoped for, it is changed into another form of attack. We predict that the 'planned middle course' of Secretary Wallace will turn out to be impracticable and will be replaced by a different policy. The baton will pass to the hand of the Secretary of State. Despite the new popular views of Sombart, Elliot, Wallace, et al., the world will turn from planned and managed foreign trade to simple rules, lower tariffs and most-favored-nation treatment. Here and abroad, imports and exports will again be determined by costs and qualities, by elasticities of supply and demand, not by selection of goods and services by political officials, elected or appointed."

Meeting of Rival Spies.

"Gentlemen, let us drink to honor of the noble deeds of the Kwangtung Army Intelligence Service. Perhaps it would be wise to end this long discussion by an anecdote, which will have the advantage of recalling an actual fact. In the only vaguely Europeanized hotel of a city in Western China, a member of the British Intelligence Service, a Russian spy from the Sovietized territories of Outer Mongolia, and a member of the Japanese Intelligence Service of Hsin-king met less than 24 months ago. The Japanese was selling aphrodisiacs, the Russian dealt in furs. As for the Englishman, he represented a photographic concern, and, under the pretext of demonstrating the excellence of his camera and his films, he went about taking pictures from morning to night. Though it is difficult for the uninitiated to distinguish a member of the Intelligence Service from an ordinary civilian, the various agents find each other out with more or less facility. They have a flair for one another, so to speak, and they have a family look about them that rarely deceives.

"Very quickly these three traveling salesmen identified each other. They smiled, understood each other, and, being good sports, each one invited the other two to have a drink of whisky. They all hoped to profit by the weakness of their colleagues to appropriate their information and documents. The Englishman said to himself, 'Six glasses of whisky, and the Japanese, who can't be used to alcohol, will be dead drunk. As for the Russian, will he hold out until the sixteenth glass, or will I have to stand 20 drinks?' And the Englishman made a grimace, for he well knew that by the time he had had his nineteenth drink his hearing would begin to fail him.

When the Drinks Came Fast.

"They sat down to the table and ordered three glasses of Black and White from the Chinese boy. While drinking, they carried on a gracious conversation, like the three worldly gentlemen that they were. One round of drinks followed another, and the Japanese gaily engulfed the sixth drink, much to the Britisher's amazement. The Russian drank whisky like water, and this observation made chills run up and down the European insular's back. But, suddenly, after the twelfth round, the three guests felt overwhelmed by a stupor against which they could not react. They dozed off and finally lapsed into the deepest slumber.

Everybody Lost Secrets.

"When they awoke, some 12 hours later, and returned to their rooms, the Englishman found an envelope containing a respectable number of pounds sterling, corresponding approximately to the value of his photographic works, but the photographs were gone. Always master of himself, he barely muttered a 'Damn' and added that he would know better the next time. The Russian lost some pieces of fur with rich linings, which served as pouches to hide precious material collected here and there. The Japanese noted the disappearance of five jars of aphrodisiac powders, among which he had slipped some notes taken during his trip. The Russian and the Japanese received a good indemnity, the first in rubles, and the second in yen. But the Russian couldn't get over his anger—for his life was at stake. The Japanese turned

Though it is difficult for the uninitiated to distinguish a member of the Intelligence Service from an ordinary civilian, the various agents find each other out with more or less facility. They have a flair for one another, so to speak, and they have a family look about them that rarely deceives.

"Very quickly these three traveling salesmen identified each other. They smiled, understood each other, and, being good sports, each one invited the other two to have a drink of whisky. They all hoped to profit by the weakness of their colleagues to appropriate their information and documents. The Englishman said to himself, 'Six glasses of whisky, and the Japanese, who can't be used to alcohol, will be dead drunk. As for the Russian, will he hold out until the sixteenth glass, or will I have to stand 20 drinks?' And the Englishman made a grimace, for he well knew that by the time he had had his nineteenth drink his hearing would begin to fail him.

When the Drinks Came Fast.

"They sat down to the table and ordered three glasses of Black and White from the Chinese boy. While drinking, they carried on a gracious conversation, like the three worldly gentlemen that they were. One round of drinks followed another, and the Japanese gaily engulfed the sixth drink, much to the Britisher's amazement. The Russian drank whisky like water, and this observation made chills run up and down the European insular's back. But, suddenly, after the twelfth round, the three guests felt overwhelmed by a stupor against which they could not react. They dozed off and finally lapsed into the deepest slumber.

Everybody Lost Secrets.

"When they awoke, some 12 hours later, and returned to their rooms, the Englishman found an envelope containing a respectable number of pounds sterling, corresponding approximately to the value of his photographic works, but the photographs were gone. Always master of himself, he barely muttered a 'Damn' and added that he would know better the next time. The Russian lost some pieces of fur with rich linings, which served as pouches to hide precious material collected here and there. The Japanese noted the disappearance of five jars of aphrodisiac powders, among which he had slipped some notes taken during his trip. The Russian and the Japanese received a good indemnity, the first in rubles, and the second in yen. But the Russian couldn't get over his anger—for his life was at stake. The Japanese turned slightly more yellow, and a faint circumstantial smile played about his lips. As for the Chinese boy who had served the whisky with such care, he left the hotel in the morning, for he had received a telegram saying that his father was gravely ill.

The Sequel in Manchuria.

"When, two months later, the salesman dealing in aphrodisiacs returned to Hsinking, where all the services of the Kwangtung Army were gathered, his chief greeted him with ironic condescension, which made a rather disagreeable impression on him. He wanted to deliver his first report orally, none the less. Then his superior officer opened a closet, took out the five jugs of aphrodisiacs, and handed them to the completely amazed agent, who finally understood. The Chinese boy, who poured the Black and White so delicately and who put a light narcotic in the twelfth glass when the drinkers were no longer able to discern the true taste of whisky, was simply a member of the Shinking household. And so, my friends, do you not think that our Intelligence Service is as good as the British?"

Agents Innumerable.

When M. Pierre Lyautey was received by Gen. Koiso, the latter was chief of the General Staff of the Kwangtung Army. In fact, he was its brains and brawn. Gen. Koiso said to his French guest, "Never did a regiment start out on the road unless it was preceded or accompanied by Intelligence Officers." This sentence tells the whole story of Japanese policies in China. The Japanese Manchurian army is held in reserve and is used only in emergency, for its presence is sufficient. For the passive conquest of China—it is now a question of North China—the Intelligence Service, directed by Major-General Doihara, is the chosen weapon.

The Intelligence Service of the Kwangtung Army plays an especially important role. It prepares the conquest of China methodically and minutely, for it would like to transform the country into a vast Manchukuo. Its agents are innumerable and may be found everywhere, not only in China but in all Asiatic countries where Chinese communities are important and powerful. Thus, the British colony of Hongkong, the most advanced bastion of Europe in the China seas, is the object of particular solicitude. And the Japanese Intelligence Service has not neglected to investigate the Philippine Islands. In the Dutch East Indies as well as in British India, the curiosity of the Kwangtung Intelligence Service is not hypothetical; it is there to be felt and seen. The Malacca Peninsula and Singapore are carefully watched every moment. In Asia, the British Intelligence Service is strongly handicapped by its Japanese competitor.

Disguise Easy for Japanese.

In the first place, there is the racial question. No matter how well disguised an Englishman may be, it is difficult for him to look exactly like a Chinese, whereas a great many Japanese look exactly like their Chinese brothers, though a certain number of course, are quite different. The Chinese and Japanese belong to the same race: that's a strong advantage.

There is also the question of language. And, though this problem constitutes a serious obstacle for the Japanese themselves, it raises an impassable barrier before the British. The recruiting of Hsinking Intelligence Service agents is complicated because so few Japanese living in Japan know how to write the Chinese language even when they use Chinese characters. For Chinese syntax is the exact opposite of the Japanese. Really educated Japanese know how to read Chinese but writing it is another matter. With regard to speech, the difficulty is even greater. The Chinese language is monosyllabic, the Japanese is not. Furthermore, the northern Chinese do not understand the Southern or even the Western Chinese, so that the Intelligence Service agents, especially those occupying subordinate positions, are recruited among the Japanese born in China of parents who have lived there for one generation. These young men have attended Japanese schools, in which the study of Chinese is required.

Buddhist Priests Employed.

Professional officers, however, constitute the cadres of this special organization. But—and this point should be stressed—a certain number of Buddhist priests have been gladly admitted. Buddhist priests in Japan are required to know Chinese, at least the written language, and generally speaking, they are well versed in Chinese culture. Their knowledge of Buddhist doctrine, moreover, has its use, for in many sections of China the Buddhist priests still exercise a powerful influence, from which their Japanese colleagues may draw benefit.

The superior agents of this service do more than go on study, information, and spying missions. The task of informing is often reserved for novices or subordinate agents. There are greater things to do in China. For instance, there are consciences to buy, which is a more delicate task, and sometimes —last February, for instance— Major-General Doihara himself travels for this type of operation.

Creating "Incidents."

There are also incidents to create, which is less simple than one may believe, for one must take into account the natural suspicion of the Chinese. We have heard it said that it was sometimes necessary to organize bandit raids in order to provoke a Japanese intervention that was prepared in advance. And who will ever be able to explain certain incursions of Communist bandits without taking Japanese interests into account? Finally, there are cases when the supreme chief of the Intelligence Service deliberately, but with what pangs, sends one of his officers to his death. The latter knows the fate that awaits him. He accepts it with joy, with joy equal to his chief's regret.

Agent Sent to His Death.

Read the following lines, for they tell a long story. They are taken from the famous Lytton report, the most remarkable recent work on the Far East:

"Capt. Shintaro Nakamura was a Japanese officer in active service, and, as the Japanese Government has since admitted, he was entrusted with a mission by the Japanese army. When he stopped at Harbin, where the Chinese authorities examined his passport, he declared he was an agricultural expert. He was then told that the region in which he planned to travel was infested with bandits, and a note to that effect was inscribed on his passport." (Report of the Study Commission, page 69).

On June 9, Capt. Nakamura left the railroad station; he was assassinated about June 27. The army that had sent Capt. Nakamura to his death made several declarations through the Japanese press, saying that the Nakamura affair would have to be settled by force since there was no other alternative. That was the conquest of Manchuria.

Japan's Goal in China.

The speech that Vice-Admiral Imamura made on May 21, 1932, in a secret gathering of Japanese residents in Sydney throws a clear light on the goal of the Japanese Intelligence Service in China. The speech was carefully prepared. When the author delivered it, he remarked that the text was strictly confidential:

"We have decided to launch a political campaign that will prevent the Chinese from acquiring sufficient knowledge to enable them to develop their national industries and that will, at the same time, gradually transform Japanese industry on the basis of the latest technical and scientific discoveries. In achieving this goal, we may call upon British experts, who will help us in this task of reconstructing Japanese national industries. Consequently, we ask you, our compatriots, to devote all your energy to your country's profit and to remain in close contact with your Consul, who will always be very grateful to you for any information that you may be able to give him."

Thus Japan aims to enslave China commercially by standing in the way of its industrialization. But, in order to impose its will and maintain it, Japan has to get a firm hold on China and forbid it to use those prerogatives that any independent state may justly invoke. But let no such small thing stand in the way! Chinese independence has little weight.

Taking Province by Province.

In order to reduce China to the desired status, Japan has at its disposal the method used by the Intelligence Service of the Kwangtung Army, which consists in gnawing away China, province by province. This method brings considerable profit. Japanese goods—in so far as Hopei is concerned—penetrate through the north without paying import duties and thus compete disloyally with European and American products, also cutting considerably the revenue from seaport duties, which are used to pay off foreign loans.

There is also the Saito method, which that astonishing Ambassador explained in the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin on Dec. 11, 1934: 'If we think that it is necessary for Far Eastern peace, we will swallow North China, no matter what attitude the other Powers may assume. Moreover, Japan will pursue the policy that it believes necessary for the organization of the Far East according to the Japanese plan, even if it means war with Great Britain and the United States, without taking into account the whims of these two nations."

That, we should say, is abundantly clear.

SOVIET'S PARACHUTE ARMY STIRS INTEREST

Foreign Observers Say Force Landing From Air Would Be Destroyed Ultimately.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 12. — Troops trained to drop from the sky and attack the enemy from the rear form a branch of the Soviet army which has attracted attention from foreign military experts.

At recent military maneuvers in the Ukraine the first large sky force to land and take part in actual battle practice performed under the observation of military missions representing major European Powers.

They dropped from squadrons of transport planes, each of which carried 30 soldiers with full fighting equipment. Landing, the soldiers freed themselves of their parachutes, formed ranks and "captured" an enemy airdrome in a surprise attack from the rear.

Military experts concluded, however, that the attackers from the skies, necessarily cut off from their own forces, were annihilated subsequently in a counter-attack by their theoretical enemies.

Perhaps, then, the problem resolves itself into a question of numbers. Thirty of the transport planes which the Red army possesses in numbers, can carry almost a full regiment. Soviet airplane factories now are turning out planes of the Maxim Gorky type, capable of carrying 60 men each.

The parachute army is trained to land in a given spot. Huge circular landing places are marked on the ground and the jumpers try to alight in these limits. The forces dropped during the maneuvers landed in so compact a group that they were able to form ranks in a few minutes.

Much of the training consists of night jumping. The jumpers are also required to study languages, with a view to service as propagandists and spies.

SALVATION ARMY TO OPEN DRIVE FOR FUNDS OCT. 21

Will Hold Dinner at Statler for Campaign Workers; Goal Is Set at $96,400.

The Salvation Army will open a drive for funds, in which it has set the goal at $96,400, with a dinner for all the campaign workers at Hotel Statler on Oct. 21. Former Mayor Henry W. Kiel is general chairman of the campaign.

Funds collected in the campaign will be used to support the 16 major activities of the Salvation Army here in the city. Among these are the Women's Home and Hospital, 3749 Marine avenue, where unmarried mothers are cared for; the Fresh Air Camp in Ferguson and the League of Mercy, an organization of women who make visits to jails, hospitals, poor farms and other public institutions.

TALK ON ENGLISH COURTS

The Bar Association of St. Louis will meet at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow at Hotel Chase. State Supreme Court Commissioner Laurence M. Hyde, who recently made a study of legal procedure in England, will speak on "Observations on the Operations of English Courts."

Boyle G. Clark, general chairman of the Circuit Bar Committees, will discuss the work of the groups under his supervision.

CHINESE REDS SAID TO BE DEMORALIZED

Have Been Hounded by Chiang Kai-Shek — Now Against Mountain Barrier.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12. — China's "red army"—a bedraggled, hungry and shrunken ghost of its former self—is near a final breakup in the mountain wilderness of West China, says W. H. Donald, unofficial adviser of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

Donald reports that the generalissimo is pounding the Communist force to pieces against the great natural barrier which separates West China from Tibet.

Donald, a jovial middle-aged Australian, spent most of the summer with Gen. Chiang in the campaign. For years he has been adviser to Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, ousted Manchurian war lord.

Promised Land Sought.

"This is the same red army," Donald said, "which started out from Central China 70,000 strong nearly a year ago in search of greener pastures. After abandoning the strongholds in Kiangsi, which they had held for seven years, they trekked westward, hoping to find a place where they could start a soviet regime.

"Chiang Kai-shek hounded them every mile of the way, through Hunan and Kweichow into the southwestern Province of Yunnan and finally northward into Szechwan.

"There the reds have run up against a mountain rampart ranging from 15,000 to 20,000 feet high which seems likely to be their journey's end.

Fleeing Army Dwindles.

"It was a heart-breaking 1500-mile journey and the reds lost more than two-thirds of their men, either by desertion or in battle. Today, there are probably not more than 20,000 in the main Communist force —and that includes reds from Northeastern Szechwan who succeeded in effecting a junction with their comrades from Kiangsi."

Donald said it was the aim of the red army to cross from Szechwan into Kansu and finally into Sinkiang, where Communists recently were reported to have gained control.

Donald ridiculed Japanese reports that parts of the main red army had broken into Kansu Province and were establishing a chain of soviets across Northwestern China.

LECTURES ON ARC WELDING

Series by Cleveland Engineer Begins Tomorrow.

A series of lectures on arc welding will be given by E. W. P. Smith, consulting engineer of Cleveland, O., in Sheldon Memorial auditorium starting tomorrow night and ending Friday. The series is sponsored by the School of Engineering and University College of Washington University.

Smith will be assisted by Robert E. Kinkead, also of Cleveland. Demonstrations will be given on the last four afternoons. More than 200 engineers, designers, production executives and supervisors of welding operations in local plants have enrolled for the lectures.

Old Folks' Home Festival.

The Old Folks' Home of St. Louis County in Kirkwood will celebrate Tuesday their twenty-fourth annual Harvest Home Festival, announced Mrs. Richard F. Ralph, president of the board of managers of the home. More than 200 guests are expected to visit the home.

FUND-RAISING COST GREATLY REDUCED BY JOINT DRIVES

Expense Last 13 Years in St. Louis Relief Campaigns 4.5 Pct., Analysis Shows.

15 TO 40 PCT. OF GIFTS PREVIOUSLY

Increase in Per Capita Donations of Employes From $2.77 in 1923 to $5.55 in 1934.

Joint fund raising campaigns for charitable agencies have effected a marked reduction in the cost of raising money, as compared with separate campaigns for individual agencies, Irving Weissman, research director for the Community Council, concluded on analysis of the results of Community Fund and United Charities campaigns during the last 13 years.

During those years, Weissman said yesterday, $24,915,842 was raised at a cost of 4.5 per cent for campaign expenses, and 3.2 per cent for administration throughout the year, including budgeting, collecting and auditing. Before the agencies joined their appeals, he said, campaign expenses often took from 15 to 40 per cent of the money contributed.

Comparing the results of campaigns in St. Louis with those of other cities, Weissman found that small gifts produced more, and large gifts less, in St. Louis than elsewhere. "Small" gifts, less than $100, accounted for 42.6 per cent of the total in St. Louis, while in other cities the average was 40 per cent.

75,000 Gave to Fund in 1923.

The first Community Fund drive, in 1923, resulted in pledges of $1,116,417 from about 75,000 individuals. Generally speaking, there was a steady increase each year, both in the number of contributors and amount contributed until last year when 179,873 individuals gave $2,282,499 to the United Relief Campaign, which included the Catholic Charities and Jewish Federation as well as the Community Fund.

Weissman's study showed that in last year's campaign 63 per cent of those who contributed gave less than $5, and 33 per cent gave from $5 to $24. At the other end of the scale, .14 per cent gave from $1000 to $5000 and .01 per cent gave from $5000 to $10,000.

Corporations contributed more than 25 per cent of last year's total, Weissman found, and employes of corporations contributed 32 per cent through the employe division. Of all gifts of $10,000 or more, 72 per cent, totaling $168,065, were made by corporations. Half of the gifts between $5000 and $10,000, totaling $64,250, were by corporations.

Employes' Gifts Increase.

The per capita gifts of employes, Weissman found, increased markedly during the years. In 1923 the average was $2.77, and last year, $5.55.

In pre-depression years, his study showed, 12.4 per cent of the population contributed an average to $13.15 to the annual campaigns, while in the years since 1930, 14.8 per cent of the population were contributors, individual gifts averaging $15.38. At the same time, the number of agencies participating more than doubled, so that the amount available for each was less.

Co-operation by the various agencies in fund raising, Weissman concluded, has tended to break down prejudice between groups, develop co-ordinated thinking and planning among agencies, promote the planning of social work programs in relation to needs of the whole community, and in other ways has served to improve the quality and quantity of service rendered.

United Charities, Inc., as United Relief is now known, will conduct its campaign for funds for the use of 91 agencies during 1936 beginning Nov. 11. The goal has not yet been fixed.

BRAZIL'S SILK OUTPUT GAINS

Production in Sao Paulo Worth $3,720,000 Last Year.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 13.—In Sao Paulo, where 90 per cent of Brazil's silk cocoons are spun, production has increased nearly 400 per cent since 1930. The worms gave 420,000 kilos of silk thread in that year, compared with 1,550,000 in 1934. A kilo is 2.204 pounds.

The rise in value was almost 500 per cent. The 1930 output was worth 12,600 contos, that of 1934 reached 62,000 contos (about $3,720,000). One conto is worth about $60. Last year Sao Paulo had 115 mills, compared with 20 in 1920. Their combined production in 1934 is given as 350,000 contos. As the conto was then worth about $80, that would mean a production worth $28,000,000.

Tiff Strike Leader to Speak.

The citation of Joe Morris, leader in the recent tiff miners' strike in Washington County, for criminal contempt of court will be discussed at a public meeting of the St. Louis chapter of the Interprofessional Association for Social Insurance at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Y. M. H. A., Union boulevard and Enright avenue. Morris and Victor Harris, secretary of the St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee, will speak.

$1,400,000,000 a Year For Mounting U. S. Payroll

the new Public Works program has gathered momentum. In August 228 employes were added in the "permanent or emergency" classification bringing the number of workers to 7474.

Political Manipulation by "Uncle Dan'l" Roper.

So far as political manipulation of patronage goes, none of the New Deal agencies can beat the Department of Commerce with "Uncle Dan'l" Roper of South Carolina at the head. Roper rivals Postmaster-General Farley as a shrewd, hard-boiled politician, able to get the greatest amount of per capita political return for each job dispensed.

It is said on excellent authority that not a single Republican remains in a worth-while position outside the Civil Service preserve in the Department of Commerce. This department had been built to overwhelming size under Herbert Hoover. On Feb. 28, 1933, there were 17,971 employes on the Commerce payroll. A year later this had dropped to 14,603. But by March 1, 1935, it stood at 15,180 despite the loss to the Bureau of Mines to the Department of the Interior, with a staff of 589, and the loss of 450 employes in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, the latter made inevitable by the slump in world trade.

It may be said, in passing, that the resignation of Farley as Postmaster-General—rumored for Jan. 1, so that he may give his entire time to his other job, chairman of the Democratic National Committee—will make little difference in his function as chief patronage dispenser of the administration.

Many of New Appointees on Non-Political Basis.

There are, it should be added, a great many workers who are entirely innocent of political connections. The New Deal has brought in not only brain trusters but sub-brain trusters and sub-sub-brain trusters. Intellectuals of every type, writers, representatives from the faculty of every first rank college, radicals who scarcely conceal their impatience with the "temporizing" of the present administration are here, in WPA, Rural Resettlement, NRA.

It would be impossible even to estimate the size of this non-political sector but it runs into the hundreds, perhaps even into the thousands.

Recently Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, sent out a general order that all employes must obtain political indorsements. Presumably this was to protect the non-political sector from raids by Farley. This order threw his sub-brain trusters into something of a panic. They had never heard of a political indorsement. Most of them hadn't the faintest idea how to obtain the required indorsement—a letter from a Representative or a Senator extolling the remarkable qualities of Joe Doak. These people have a way of bringiing their own kind into the Government. They are forever getting or making a job for a friend of a friend of a friend and the chain thus formed is endless.

One New Deal agency is entirely free of political interference and that is TVA Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, who fought for many years for the TVA power development, saw to it that a clause was inserted in the TVA act specifying that a political indorsement would disqualify any candidate for a position. Arthur E. Morgan, TVA chief, has had to explain this to many congressmen who in turn had to disappoint their constituents. This clause in the TVA act aroused the bitter hostility of such Tennesseans as Senator Kenneth McKellar.

Comparison of Present and Past Payrolls.

It is interesting to compare the present employment total with that of past years. From the war-time peak in the District of Columbia of 117,760 there was a fairly rapid drop so that in July of 1920 employment in Washington stood at 90,559. The war-time peak for Washington and the country at large was 917,760 and this dropped by July, 1920, to 619,116. By June of 1924 employment in the executive branch had leveled off at 554,986, with 64,120 in the District of Columbia and it remained at about this point down to the Hoover administration. The peak during Hoover's presidency was 588,206, total, and 71,693 in the District.

Although there have been momentary monthly declines under Roosevelt, the curve mounts steadily and rapidly. What is more, several new permanent agencies, which have nothing to do with the recovery measures of the administration, are now building up their staffs. The Federal Communications Commission is slowly adding to its force. The Social Security Board, created at the last session of Congress to administer the Federal end of the new social insurance, has taken on from 150 to 200 employes already. During the next six months the board expects to add 500 to 600 employes and by 1937 will have "up to several thousand" at work.

More Agencies to Add to Total of Employes.

Similarly, the board created under the Railroad Pension Act must begin to acquire its staff. The National Labor Relations Act will make it necessary to enlarge the National Labor Relations Board and likewise the new utility regulation law puts heavy duties on the Securities and Exchange Commission, which cannot be handled adequately with the present staff. The Social Security Board and the Railroad Pension Board were not granted any appropriation due to the failure of the third deficiency bill in the last-minute filibuster in Congress. But they are getting along temporarily with the aid of relief funds.

So the Washington gold rush promises to continue. Some solution for the housing problem must be found. No one would be surprised to see tents spring up in the public parks, after the best tradition of previous gold rushes. There are many other traditional manifestations of the old-time gold rush. Hotels and night clubs are crowded. Traffic is insufferably dense at rush hours. Prices of necessaries mount. Little observed beneath the rapid shift of larger affairs, this is one of the most significant phenomena of the times. But political orators are not likely to overlook this extraordinary expansion of the executive branch of the Government, particularly in a political year which promises to be excessively bitter.

Studios Farm New Crop of Romantic Men

Film Prophets Foresee Big Chance for Various Good-Looking Gentlemen.

BY H. H. NIEMEYER.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.

THE coming season, say the wise ones of the film industry, is going to be a man's year in the movies and the matinee idols, in the person of a bunch of comparative newcomers to the screen, are going to be on top again. Probably none of them will reach the point of fame which once was Valentino's. It is hardly likely, either, that any of the late arrivals will dislodge Clark Gable from the spot he now holds but, nevertheless, the studios are preparing to fire their biggest guns right in the direction of the girl fans of the country.

Whether it is a lack of woman star material or just an over-rush of promising young men is a question. With the possible exception of Eleanor Powell, Wini Shaw and Mme. Schumann-Heink, there are no startlingly new women prospects in sight, and the nimble-footed Miss Powell has deserted the screen, for the time being at least, for the plaudits of a revue audience on Broadway; Miss Shaw sings so well—after her own fashion—that she will be limited to warbling roles and good old Ernestine is—well, the Mme. is no chicken.

It just happens, too, that the new play material for the screens is made up largely of stories which call for male stars and so the studios are grooming their young men for the fat parts. And there are plenty of youngsters coming along for those parts. Some of them will click, no doubt, but, after all, it is the cash customers and not the movie manufacturers who make stars, and a lot of the boys, now being extensively publicized, will fall by the wayside.

Most of the candidates happen to be romantically handsome, which is going to make it more or less tough for the cycle of stars picked up from the ranks of the he-man, character actors. It means, too, that if the studio bosses are right, there will be a return to the leading-man type. In other words, as said before, the matinee idol is heading back.

* * *

LET'S check 'em over. Paramount has, as a start, Fred MacMurray and Ray Milland, who have already built up a popularity which would not have been possible a year ago. A year ago, in fact, both were knocking rather vainly at the studio gates. M-G-M is banking heavily on Robert Taylor, Allan Jones and Nelson Eddy; the new 20th-Century-Fox combination expects big things of Caesar Romero; Jesse Lasky and Mary Pickford plan to go places with Nino Martini; Paramount again hopes for the best with the somewhat eccentric Jan Kiepura, while John Boles, Gene Raymond and Freddie March, not newcomers in any sense of the word but romantic types, will get bigger chances than ever.

And then Warner's have thrown the hats of no less than six candidates into the ring. There is Errol Flynn who will be the swashbuckling but tender-hearted Capt. Peter Blood; Ian Hunter, an English up-and-comer; Warren Hull, who will be seen to best advantage in the coming "Miss Pacific Fleet;" Ross Alexander; Dick Foran, who is to be a new Western star; Phil Reagan, the singing policeman, and Barton MacLane, who is being graduated from gangster roles to sympathetic heroes.

Yes, it looks as though the matinee idols were heading back.

J. J. SHUBERT, who was crowded out of Forest Park—or who crowded himself out, according to which tale you believe—began his attack on Hollywood last Friday night with "Bitter Sweet" and a cast of former Municipal Opera favorites, Lecnard Ceeley, Barney Parker, Bartlett Simmons, Harry K. Morton and Zella Russell, Hope Emmerson, Dimples Reide and Jack Goode being among them.

Also a lot of the girls who danced in the Municipal's line came along. With Allen Jones, George Hassell and Carey Grant staring them in the face, most of the principals and the chorus members, too, came out here with the hope that they would be struck by movie lightning and with so many musicals going on in the cinemas maybe some of them will get the call.

Shubert, used to big stages like the one in Forest Park and portable affair in the Detroit baseball park last summer, tried to get the Hollywood Bowl for his Hollywood attack but, failing in that, he turned to the biggest indoor theater out here, the Shrine Auditorium. The place is big enough for anything and Watson Barratt, who used to make such wonderful productions for the Municipal Opera, was brought along to turn himself loose on the decorative schemes. He showed the cinema folk something, too, and is quite likely to wind up as designer of big movie sets.

Shubert, despite his former differences with Allen Joens, did his best to get that young tenor for his opening bill but M-G-M said no in firm tones. The Marx Brothers' new opus, "A Night at the Opera," was finished during the past week after many months of work and in it Jones gets his first real chance to show what he can do on, and for, the screen.

* * *

SINCE we have been talking about Municipal Opera, let us mention the fact that M-G-M is making the old Forest Park record-breaker, "Rose Marie," into a film with Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald as the stars and with a lot of cinema-minded innovations. There will be, for instance, an Indian snake dance on a big scale with real Indians and live snakes and everything.

Metro discovered, however, that the young Indian boys and girls they engaged knew nothing at all about the traditional folk dances of their fathers. They could do the Charleston and the black bottom and most of them could tap, too, but snake dancing and totem pole effects were out. They didn't want to handle any snakes, either, and had never heard any tom-tom music. Used to jazz orchestras, they just couldn't get the hang of Indian music and so modern dance instructors had to be called in to teach them the cinema idea of the big jamborees which are supposed to have gone on in the old days in the wide open spaces.

They learned, after a fashion. But the pale face Hollywood girls and boys do it a lot better.

FCA Players in "Animal Kingdom."

Philip Barry's comedy, "The Animal Kingdom," will be presented at the St. Louis University auditorium at 8:15 o'clock Friday evening by the FCA Players, a group consisting of employes of the Farm Credit Administration of St. Louis. In the cast are Mary Sarsfield, Arthur J. Lange, A. C. Abrams, John R. Halpin, Spurgeon J. Peterson, Pat Gibbons, Gladys Epps, Dolores Warmbrodt and Martha Luckie.

Webster Guild One-Act Plays.

Three original one-act plays selected by the Webster Groves Theater Guild in its contest last winter, will be presented at the Webster Groves High School auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week. The organization has just announced its fifth one-act play contest, closing next March 1.

Ted Shawn Dancers To Feature "Molpai" Next Saturday Night

TED SHAWN and his eight men dancers will present a program at the Municipal Auditorium at 8:15 o'clock Saturday evening, as the attraction for the twenty-ninth scholarship benefit of the St. Louis College Club.

Shawn's ensemble, which appeared at the Auditorium last February, will repeat some of the numbers presented then, introducing as the main feature, however, a "Kinetic Molpai," based on ancient Greek principles and defined as "utterance in the dance that for which no other language exists." Separate units of the Molpai depict Strife, Oppositions, Solvent, Dynamic Contrasts, Resilience, Successions, Unfolding and Folding, Dirge, Limbo, Surge and Apotheosis. The portrayal lasts 40 minutes.

The program will open with the group known as "Primitive Rhythms," including a Ponca Indian dance, Shawn's solo "Eagle" dance, a devil dance, Dyak spear dance and Maori war haka. After the Molpai and an intermission are a group of folk and art themes and a group of religious dances, with the final number three Negro spirituals.

More than half the dances on the program are to the music of Jess Meeker, composer-accompanist for the group. Members of the company are Barton Mumaw, Frank Overlees, Wilbur McCormack, Dennis Landers, Fred Hearn, Foster Fitz-Simmons, William Powell and Ned Copeland.

Proceeds of the College Club benefits are used to provide scholarships and loans for girls of high scholastic achievement and allround personality who otherwise could not go to college.

Little Theater Casts "Wunderkind."

"Wunderkind," the Little Theater's prize play which it will offer on Nov. 11, has been put into rehearsal with the following cast: Ted Hall, David Orthwein, Jules Biegelson, Mathilde Leimkuehler, Ruth M. Peltason, Paul G. Pohl, Herbert McCready, Gordon Sommers, Dolores Hartnett, Eula Morgan, Margaret Miserocchi and Mildred Carpenter. "Wunderkind" will run in repertory with "The School for Husbands."

Barrymore in Missouri Role.

Lionel Barrymore will take the role of the old Civil War veteran when "The Voice of Bugle Ann," story of a Missouri fox hound, is put on the screen. The novel was written by MacKinley Kantor and appeared originally in a magazine.

Werner Janssen, Fritz Reiner To Be Guest Conductors

WERNER JANSSEN, widely-acclaimed young American composer and conductor, and Fritz Reiner, noted Hungarian conductor, have been engaged for guest appearances with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra during the coming season.

They will be in charge of the orchestra during two absences of Vladimir Golschmann, regular conductor. Janssen will be in St. Louis for concerts on Nov. 22 and 23, while Golschmann is with the Philadelphia Symphony and Reiner will be here Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, when Golschmann is with the Detroit Symphony. Scipione Guidi, assistant conductor and concertmaster of the St. Louis Symphony, will take Golschmann's place on Dec. 6 and 7, when Golschmann conducts the Rochester Philharmonic.

Janssen, only 35 years old, is the first American-born conductor to receive wide recognition in Europe, where there has been a prevalent idea that Americans do not know how to conduct. A native of New York City, he was educated at Dartmouth College, and largely on the basis of his composition of a symphonic work, "New Year's Eve in New York," received the Prix de Rome, which gave him three years' study in Rome.

His first appearance as a conductor there was highly successful and resultant engagements took him to Berlin, Budapest, Helsingfors, Turin, Milan and Bologna. In February, 1933, when he made his first appearance in Helsingfors, he conducted an all-Sibelius program, with the composer Jean Sibelius, in the audience. After the concert, the composer said Janssen is "the most gifted interpreter of my works."

* * *

JANSSEN this month is making his third appearance in Helsingfors, presenting another program by the great Finnish composer. When he made his debut in this country last fall with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, the young conductor immediately was invited to take over the baton for three weeks later in the season. He has appeared since in Rochester, Los Angeles and Cleveland.

His compositions include "Louisiana Suite," "American Kaleidoscope" and an opera, "Manhattan Transfer," based on the novel by John Dos Passos.

Reiner, known to music audiences throughout the country, is conductor of the Philadelphia Grand Opera and head of the orchestral and opera department of the Curtis Institute of Music. For nine years formerly, he conducted the Cincinnati Symphony.

Born in Budapest, he was graduated from the National Academy of Music, studied law and then became assistant conductor of the Budapest Opera Comique. After positions in Jugoslavia and Dresden, as well as many larger European centers, he came to the United States. From Cincinnati, he went to the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Symphony, with various guest appearances. He has conducted in many of the larger opera houses and concert halls abroad.

The season of the St. Louis Symphony will be inaugurated with all-orchestral concerts on Friday afternoon, Nov. 8, and Saturday night, Nov. 9, at the Municipal Auditorium.

Gilda Gray in "Follies."

The latest ex-Ziegfeld star to join the cast of "The Great Ziegfeld" is Gilda Gray, well-known exponent of South Sea dancing. A resident of Hollywood in recent years, she is already on hand to join the cast of the new picture, with William Powell, Luise Rainer, Fanny Brice, Ann Pennington, Virginia Bruce, Harriet Hoctor, Frank Morgan, Reginald Owen and Nat Pendleton.

Dolores Costello Back in Movies.

Dolores Costello, who divorced John Barrymore last week, has signed a contract to go back on the screen with a new company organized by David O. Selznick. A star in her own right when she married Barrymore seven years ago, Miss Costello has not appeared in pictures since then.

MILLARD GLASER.

Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper in "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," Loew's.

Mary Moore First Artist in Concert Series at Principia

MARY MOORE, young Irish-American coloratura soprano who made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera last season as the youngest member of the organization, will give a recital at the Principia at 8:15 o'clock Friday evening, initiating the Principia lecture and concert series for the year.

Others to follow are William C. DeMille, author, motion picture director and brother of Cecil B. DeMille; Otis Skinner, in dramatic readings; Alexander Brailowsky, pianist, the Trio Italiano, string group with Alfredo Casella, the Westminster Choir and Dusolina Gianinni, soprano.

Miss Moore, who is not related to Grace Moore, has appeared as soloist with the Chicago and Cincinnati symphony orchestras and at various music festivals in this country. Her program is:

Amarilli	Caccini
"Deh vieni, non tardar," from "The Marriage of Figaro"	Mozart
Se Florindo e fedela	A. Scarlatti
Die Lotosblume	Schumann
Haiden-Roslein	Schubert
Madchens Wunsch	Chopin
"Pourquoi?" from "Lakme"	Delibes
Air du Rossignol	Saint-Saens
Under the Greenwood Tree	Buzzi-Peccia
Kerry Dance	Molloy
Bright Clouds	Quillian
Mad Scene, from "Lucia di Lammermoor" (with flute obligato)	Donizetti

Private Life of Opera Still Current on Screen

"Here's to Romance" Introduces Nino Martini as Another Career Singer—Schumann-Heink Brilliant in Bit Part.

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

JITTERY motion picture producers, who view the public as probably twice as fickle as it is in actuality, are hauling out grand opera and Shakespeare as the new fall specialties. These items may go over and they may not, but no one can say that Hollywood keeps anything, except what it quaintly classifies as indecency, under the lid. A true innovation might be to halt in the mad scramble now and then to make a picture and make it original, instead of sticking to the tried and true and making two pictures, or three or four, grow where one grew before. All of which is an appropriate prelude to saying that "Here's to Romance," at the Fox, is in the new operatic style, mixing elements of great merit by established composition methods, and that it is offered on a double bill with a bowl of mush called "Bad Boy." "Here's to Romance" derives its value from Nino Martini, ex-radio, opera and concert tenor, who journeys lyrically through a little chronicle which we might call a career, and from Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, always as genuine as money from the mint and as welcome. Nino is studying with Mme. Ernestine in New York when Genevieve Tobin, with a good deal of the mint product to toss away, decides to sponsor a handsome young man with a future. Nino gets the job. Genevieve and her husband, Reginald Denny, another amateur philanderer, follow her faun to Europe, Genevieve much stricken. But Nino has fallen in love with a little dancer, Anita Louise. From then on, it is Genevieve trying to give Nino his chance at the opera, and failing, with Anita picking up the loose ends and sending the willowy Mr. Martini right out thar to knock 'em dead all around the Golden Horseshoe. Now even if Mr. Martini lacks the physical charm of Man Mountain Dean, his singing is likely to make him tops with the ladies. He breaks out into arias in every reel, plugging "Manon," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci" and "La Tosca." He speaks English only after a fashion so the opera—let's call it that, just for fun—must stand or fall with his repertoire. Diversion comes in frequent change of scene, in expensive sets, in the dancing of Maria Gambarelli and Vicente Escudero, in the slick reading of lines by Miss Tobin. "Here's to Romance," therefore, is quite worth seeing and would be for Mme. Schumann-Heink alone. The Teutonic mama of the American Legion gives the warm glow that is needed, and her vocal bit, Brahms' Lullaby, would bring bravos if it were in real life. May the 74-year-old newcomer to the screen enjoy a long space of what promises to be a thrilling cinema career.

* * *

SHIPMATES FOREVER. School takes up again at Annapolis, in the new picture at the Orpheum. For even impressive photography and the development of Dick Powell into something of a dramatic actor do not obscure the fact that this new glorification of the United States Navy is just one of those things about the lad who could not reconcile or "orient" himself, as the educators would say, to a life of service. "Shipmates Forever" has its fine points and is resourcefully made. By following any one of three leads, it could have been a notable, instead of a routine picture. It begins with one theme, that of a successful crooner who does not wish to follow in the footsteps of his papa, Admiral Lewis Stone. By a psychology that would not fool a 6-year-old, he is drawn into the Academy and with the accompaniment of some genuinely bright dialogue. But in comes the old "Hearts and Flowers" theme of his buddies. Ruby Keeler is dunked into the drink for sweetness and as speedily hauled out. Later on it develops that Dick is the best student in the class and snooty about it. Then, for no good reason, he becomes a hero. An ex-classmate is buried with tears and a taps sequence. "Shipmates Forever" has 40 good elements and is more than occasional entertainment. If it had a story it could stick by, it would be just dandy.

* * *

BONNIE SCOTLAND. The picture getting the big play at Loew's is "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," a tear-stained reunion of Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper on the sawdust of a circus lot, to the disappointment of a mean old aunt, with a heart as black as Ethiopian midnight. With a distinct liking for "The Champ," to which "O'Shaughnessy's Boy" is an unfavorable comparison, I prefer to cross swords with the management and account "Bonnie Scotland" the major offering. Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, in a new 80-minute comedy, go to Scotland, unwittingly enlist in the army and are detailed to India. There is a bargain-basement romance in the thing, too, but "Bonnie Scotland" is nine-good-tenths Laurel and Hardy. Seldom has any screen comedy been as hilarious as Stan doing a Gaelic version of the can-can or putting the whole regiment out of step to get in step himself.

* * *

DR. SOCRATES. A Paul Muni picture cannot be too bad ever, as long as Muni is in it. And "Dr. Socrates," one of the later epics in the "G-Men" cycle, with Muni, becomes quite interesting. Here is an actor who does vary from one performance to the next, who does love his role better than the tricks that have made him famous. He is a young doctor forced to take on a clientele of desperadoes, headed by one "Red" Bastian. He and the "G-Men" eventually round up the "mob" and bring 'em back alive. MacLane, as Bastian, is a superb villain, capitalizing his burliness and interpreting the moronic sense of humor of Bastian to make the characterization highly individual. MacLane, who thus seems to stand at the top of the heap among movie bad-men, is, I am told, going soft in his next picture, to lend force to law and order. On the Shubert bill is "The Virginia Judge," a Walter C. Kelly picture. Any who have seen Kelly before, and Stepin Fechit, have witnessed what it purveys.

* * *

KING SOLOMON OF BROADWAY. Edmund Lowe, the glib, wise-cracking Mr. Lowe, is the sovereign of night life whose melodramatic existence is detailed in the main Ambassador feature. Becoming involved, by way of a poker game, with a bunch of dirty crooks of which Bradley Page is one, he has to "cut the boys in" on his amusement palace. The only way to get the rats out is to get a lot of money together. "King Solomon of Broadway" should on record as the fourth, fifth or sixth attempt to show that Pinky Tomlin has something beside the reputation of having brought forth "The Object of My Affections," and to mark the appearance of Dorothy Page, torch singer from the radio, who seems to be quite at home in front of the cameras and who probably will stay. "Fighting Youth," the slack in the program, is another anemic libel of American colleges, where Communism is said to be unsheathing its ugly hammer and sickle. At this particular seat of learning and football fans, the Czarist national anthem is one of the "alma mater" songs.

CARD OF THANKS

WE wish to extend to our relatives and friends our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy, beautiful floral offerings received in our sad bereavement in the loss of my beloved husband and our dear father; we especially thank, St. Louis Fire Department, Rev. Murch, Mrs. Marty and the Kraeger, Voss and Fix funeral directors.
MRS. KAMER AND DAUGHTERS.

IN MEMORIAM

CARTER, ELIZABETH—Our dear mother, who passed away Oct. 13, 1929. Sadly missed by DAUGHTERS.

FITZGERALD, ALBERTINA—In loving memory, who departed this life two years ago today, Oct. 13.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, CHILDREN and GRANDCHILDREN.

GENTRY, EDWARD—In loving memory of our dear son, who passed away Oct. 11, 1933.
Often from my heart comes a bitter cry;
Why, oh, why did my baby die?
Then comes a thought so solemn and deep,
He is not dead, but only asleep.
Sadly missed by FAMILY.

HENRY, LILLIE—In loving memory of our dear sister, Lillie Henry, who departed this life Oct. 8, 1934.
Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
Sadly missed by SISTERS, BROTHERS.

HOLSTE, PRIVATE EDWIN C.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who departed this life 17 years ago, Oct. 13, 1918.
If you had raised your dying head and bade us all a farewell,
The blow would not have been so hard to us who loved you so well.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER, BROTHER-IN-LAW.

KAUFFMAN, AUGUST—My beloved husband passed away Oct. 12, 1933. Sadly missed by LONELY WIFE.

McBRIDE, BILLY—In sad, but loving memory of our darling son, who passed away Oct. 9, 1933:
There was an angel band in heaven
That was not quite complete,
So God then took our darling Billy
To fill the vacant seat.
Sadly missed by
HIS LONESOME MOTHER, DADDY AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

McTIGUE, JOHN J.—In loving memory of our brother, who died suddenly Oct. 14, 1933.
Time speeds on, two years have passed,
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast,
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will;
His vacant place—there is none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For in heaven we will meet again.
Second anniversary requiem mass Monday morning, Oct. 14, St. Colombkille's Church. Sadly missed by FAMILY.

MONAGHAN, FELICIA E. — In loving memory of Felicia E. Monaghan, who passed away Oct. 11, 1933:
"More and more each day we miss her;
Friends may think the wound is healed;
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed."
Sadly missed by
SON, LES, AND SISTERS, FANNIE AND JEANNETTE.

MOESLEIN, HARRY—In loving memory of our dear son, who passed away Oct. 12, 1930.
And while he lies in peaceful sleep,
His memory we shall always keep.
MOTHER, DAD AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

RABENAU, ARTHUR A.—Who departed this life Oct. 16, 1934.
The depth of our sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of the one we loved so well;
And while he sleeps a peaceful sleep,
His memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, BROTHER AND SISTERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

RICHARDS, MINNIE—In loving memory of our dear friend, who departed this life Oct. 11, 1934:
Gone from us, but not forgotten,
Never shall thy memory fade;
Sweetest thoughts will ever linger
Around the spot where thou art laid.
Sadly missed by
NELLIE EMMS AND FRIENDS.

ROHLING, MARY—In loving remembrance of Mary Rohling, who died Oct. 11, 1933.
Two years ago she passed away,
We grieved when she departed;
Time was too short to say farewell
To those she knew and loved so well.
We miss her coming footsteps,
We miss her everywhere;
Home is not what it used to be,
Since Mary is not there.
Sadly missed by
SONS, DAUGHTERS-IN-LAW AND GRANDCHILDREN.

SCHULDE, JOHN—In loving memory of my beloved father, who departed this life Oct. 10, 1931.
Sadly missed by his DAUGHTER.

SEITH, PRIVATE JOHN H.—Headquarters Company, Sixty-ninth Infantry, Tenth Division. In loving memory of my dear son who gave his life for his country, Oct. 13, 1918:
Thoughts return to days long past;
Time rolls on, but memories last.
Sadly missed by MOTHER.

SPOHRER, RUSSELL—In memory of that beautiful life that passed on Oct. 15, 1927. Our darling son, we are trying to adjust ourselves to a sad and empty life. DAD AND MOTHER.

STUDT, HERMAN—Died Oct. 16, 1934;
While he lies in peaceful sleep,
His memory I shall always keep.
Beloved wife, MRS. HERMAN STUDT.

WILLMAN, CAROLINE—In loving memory of our dear mother, who died Oct. 11, 1930.
October once again is here,
To us the saddest of the year,
Because it took from us away
A dear one just five years today.
Her loving heart is now at rest;
God took her home when He thought best.
Sadly missed by
SON AND DAUGHTER.

EDUCATION

BUSINESS SCHOOLS

TO YOUNG MEN—

If you have applied for an office position—without doubt you have heard the employer say, "If you knew Shorthand and Typewriting we could offer you a position." A knowledge of these two subjects affords a splendid chance to secure employment in your chosen line of work.

To be a secretary to the president, vice-president, treasurer, or any official of a business is one of the quickest and best methods to secure a knowledge of any business, and to become an executive yourself.

61 calls have been received by Rubicam's Placement Department for young men Secretaries, Stenographers, and Bookkeepers during the last 60 days.

WE WERE RECENTLY THE LUCKY purchasers of one of the most unusual mixtures of U. S. stamps. The mixture is over 30 years old and is of an unpicked nature. The mixture is put up in little sacks which have not been touched since 1904. Each sack contains about 400 stamps, all free from paper and in many varieties. We sorted several sacks of this mixture and found many attractive old issues, high values, imperforates and other attractive items. Cancellation, watermark, plate and triangle varieties are also in abundance which should delight the specialist. We offer this rich mixture at one dollar per sack and feel that it is the finest mixture proposition that we have ever been able to offer our customers. Allendale Stamp Co., 4517 N. Lawndale av., Chicago, Ill.

If you are one who likes to practice to gain skill and judgment in what he does, and if you are a worker, willing to pay a working price for success, then we will give you a chance. We cannot guarantee you will be a star, but we do guarantee you opportunity with sincere, earnest, practical instruction and guidance.

This is a large national institution operating from coast to coast. The world sales of our product lead all others. We are now introducing this extraordinary product and it already has a greater sale than any product in the world ever attempting any of its services (no device ever having attempted to render all of its services.) For example, in our St. Louis branch, we paid E. W. Smith $91 for his latest week reported, while H. Tenzer made around $46; R. Morrison, $43; L. Ward, $42; O. Barnhart, $39; A. F. Hanson, $64.

Do not misunderstand. This is no get-rich-quick scheme. You cannot make money here unless you earn it, and some men who apply to us fail to fulfill the requirements. But we have found also that many men who never previously even thought they could do work of this kind have found it to be just the opportunity they sought for years, and are now making more money than they ever previously dreamed of making. We have men making up to $500 a month or more. Others $400, $300, $250.

This is a genuine opportunity. It costs nothing to try. The training is free. If you can do the job you can make real money and have the assurance of its permanence, together with splendid future possibilities.

In October our men will make more cash money than at any previous time. The coming year will be of unlimited possibilities to those who get at this business, successfully now.

If you are of good reputation, active, alert, willing to learn and to work hard every day to make a genuine success in return for the privilege of a genuine opportunity in a permanent position with good people who will deeply interest themselves in helping you to get started and to get along, make your application Monday morning.

We have tried to state the facts and requirements clearly. This is a straightforward offer of sincere intent to worthy men who are in need of good, substantial positions. Please do not apply for these positions unless you feel you can meet the requirements. Applicants will be personally interviewed Monday morning, 9:30 to 1:15 only, at Paul Brown Bldg. (corner 9th and Olive Sts.), Room 512.

Ann Shapleigh Makes Debut At Reception

Miss Frances Fuqua Terrell to Be Presented to Society by Grandmother, Mrs. Benton H. Pollock, at Mixed Tea This Afternoon.

AN old-fashioned reception, to which both men and women were invited, was given yesterday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Blasdel Shapleigh to introduce their daughter, Miss Ann Elizabeth Shapleigh, to their friends. Several hundred guests called at the Shapleigh home, 3 Southmoor, between 4 and 6:30 o'clock. Miss Shapleigh was the first special maid of honor to the Queen of Love and Beauty at the Veiled Prophet ball Wednesday night, and was the first debutante of the season to be presented to society.

The host and hostess and guest of honor stood in the living room before a bower of flowers built against the mantel to receive their guests who were served later in the dining room and in a great marquee stretched off one side of the house.

Miss Shapleigh wore a slightly trained gown of gold lame, shot with green, designed on long slender lines broken by wide shoulder epaulettes, and a corsage of purple orchids. Her mother's gown was of regency blue crepe with draped sleeves and cloth of silver trimmings.

The autumn tones, ranging from yellow to rust, were emphasized in chrysanthemums arranged in profusion throughout the rooms. Coffee was served from an elaborate reception table laid in the dining room by relatives of the Shapleigh family who otherwise assisted the host and hostess. The marquee, reached by stone-flagged steps from the liv-

Ted Shawn Troupe For Club Benefit

THE St. Louis College Club, a branch of the American Association of University Women, will present Ted Shawn and his men dancers at the Municipal Auditorium Saturday night for their twenty-ninth annual scholarship benefit. Proceeds will be used for loans and scholarships to girls of high scholastic achievement who would not otherwise receive the advantages of higher educations.

Mrs. Frank W. Ives is general chairman of the Benefit Committee and Miss Lillian Stupp is vice-chairman. Others on the committee are: Miss Marjorie Graham, treasurer; Mrs. Harry A. Collins, secretary; Mrs. Ralph Trovillion, in charge of mailing; Mrs. Chester Kotsrean, in charge of the alumnae groups; Mrs. Homer Howes, in charges of publicity and advertising; Mrs. Hildegarde Cunliff, in charges of boxes; Mrs. Henry Fett, chairman for posters, and Mrs.

Miss Roberts is one of the guests of the Veiled Prophet's Queen, Miss Lila Marshall Childress.

Guests at the debutante luncheon included Miss Childress and her other out-of-town guests, Miss Mary Cuthell of New York, Miss Elizabeth Windell of Louisville, Ky., and Miss Virginia Symes, daughter of Judge John Foster Symes of Denver, Colo., Miss Kathleen Wallace, Miss Ruth Bixby Stevens, Miss Betty Brown, Miss Vera Virginia Angert, Miss Suzanne Bitting, Miss Frances Charlot, Miss Ruth Deibel, Miss Frances Fuqua Terrell, Miss Eugenie Evans, Miss Elizabeth Myrl James, Miss Carroll West Jones, Miss Martha O'Neil, Miss Marie Taylor Spink, Miss Ann Elizabeth Shapleigh, Miss Grace Ballard White, Miss Elisabeth Cole Freeman and her guest, Miss Edith Malo of Denver, Colo.

Virginia Cave Is Bride of Thruston Pettus

MISS FRANCES VIRGINIA CAVE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes Estil Cave, 25 Washington terrace, was married to Thruston Pettus, 33 Westmoreland place, Friday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the Church of St. Michael and St. George. The Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block read the service. Dozens of lighted tapers were set in the chancel and vases of Easter lilies in the choir stalls and inside the communion rail were surrounded by green, accentuating the green and white tone of the gowns.

The bride's sister, Miss Elizabeth Cave, maid of honor, wore Bavarian green crystelle velvet, with wide sleeves set into the low V neckline and fastened into cuffs at the wrists. A crushed velvet girdle secured with jeweled buckles was worn at the waist and the skirt was slightly trained. She wore a brimmed hat to match her gown. The bridesmaids, two sisters of Mr. Pettus, Miss Martha and Miss Mary Pettus, and Miss Elise White and Miss Joan Pangman, wore gowns of hunter's green crystelle, similar in design to the dress of the maid of honor, and hats to match. They carried African daisies, varying in color from white to deep red.

Charles Parsons Pettus, brother of the bridegroom, and another brother, Thomas Wright Pettus, John Curby, William Lee Polk, Fulton Wright, William Little, John Baker and Richard Juergens, the last three from Chicago, and Robert Cave, brother of the bride, were ushers.

A reception at the Cave home followed the ceremony. The receiving line had stood in the living room in front of a wall of shaded chrysanthemums. Mrs. Cave was gowned in black, with silver tissue at the bodice top, a black hat and a corsage of purple orchids.

A dinner from the bridal party and a few additional guests was served after the reception. Gardenias and lilies of the valley were arranged on mirrors for the centerpiece, and candles were grouped at the ends.

Mr. and Mrs. Pettus will spend a month in Mexico on their honeymoon and will live at 7300 Pershing avenue.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and attended Wells College. She made her debut in 1932 and is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Pettus, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus, is a graduate of Princeton University and the Law School of Washington University. He is a member of the St. Louis Country and University Clubs.

Behan-Wilkins Wedding in Church

MISS MARJORIE KEANE WILKINS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benton Wilkins, 7129 Lindell boulevard, became the bride yesterday morning of William Lambert Behan Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lambert Behan, 33 Dartford avenue. The Rev. Francis J. O'Connor performed the ceremony at the candle-lit altar of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, which was decorated for the occasion with tall vases of white chrysanthemums massed against woodwardia fern.

The bride was preceded to the altar by Miss Peggy Cashatt of Columbus, O., as maid of honor, and by Miss Jane Behan, a sister of the bridegroom; Miss Betty Hartrich and Miss Rose Switzer, bridesmaids. They were gowned alike in bagheera cloth, the maid of honor in bright rose, and the bridesmaids in Fra Angelico blue, with small, rolled, off-the-face hats of the material with face veils. The gowns were fashioned with perpindicular shirring caught at the neck with a rhinestone clip and repeated at the waist to achieve front fullness to the skirt. The bodice is slashed at the back and secured with a buckle at the belt to match the clips. Streamers from their hat bands hung to the waists. Their flowers were yellow roses and white button chrysanthemums tied with silver.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore ivory satin designed with long sleeves set in at the waist and tight from the elbow with bands of seed pearls appliqued down their full length. The body of the gown fell from a draped cowl neck line, and ended in a long train. Her veil was arranged to her hair with a coronet of rose point lace, and instead of a bouquet, the bride carried a white prayer book marked with gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Alvin Huss of Chicago was best man, and Benton Wilkins Jr., the bride's brother, William Schramm Jr., William Kramer and Thomas Cooper, ushers.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins for members of the two families and relatives. White urns in book niches and on the mantel were filled with white chrysanthemums, which were also used against greenery as a background for the receiving line. The folwer-decked buffet in the dining room held the wedding cake and an all-white centerpiece.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. David Franklin of Chicago, the bride's aunt, and Father W. J. O'Brien of Texarkana, Tex., a close friend of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Behan have departed by motor for New York and White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., on their medding trip. They will live at 6833 Kingsbury boulevard.

Jane Gibbs Wed To R. A. Miller

MISS JANE GRAY GIBBS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Gibbs, 835 Oleta drive, became the bride of Ray Amadee Miller, 7620 Carrswold drive, Clayton, at a small wedding at noon yesterday at the Gibbs home. The Rev. Theodore S. Smylie of Central Presbyterian Church performed the ceremony against a background of palms, ferns, and white chrysanthemums, arranged in the bowed end of the living room.

The bride, who approached the improvised altar on the arm of her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of antique ivory satin. It was fashioned en princesse with a jacket of rose point lace, and a train. Her three-quarter length circular tulle veil was held by a bandeau of the lace, and she carried a boquet of white orchids.

Mrs. Kenneth Dillman, as matron of honor, was gowned in an afternoon ensemble of titian crepe satin, with which the chrysanthemums of her bouquet harmonized.

Orator O. Miller served his brother as best man.

After a bridal luncheon Mr. Miller and his bride left on a motor trip through Virginia and New York. They will make their home in St. Louis at 619 Westwood drive.

The bride is a graduate of Hosmer Hall and of Ohio State University. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and Mortar Board, honorary women's fraternity. Mr. Miller, who is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Miller of Troy, Ill., attended Washington University. He is associated with the Standard Oil Co. in St. Louis.

Rubye L. Wachter Becomes Bride of James O. Phelps III.

THE marriage of Miss Rubye Laura Wachter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alfred Wachter, 54 Mason avenue, Webster Groves, to James Orson Phelps III, son of Mrs. James Orson Phelps II, 6907 Pershing avenue, took place Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Dr. David M. Skilling officiating. Palms and greenery, baskets of white chrysanthemums and white tapers in candelabra formed the background for the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of honeycone velvet which was fashioned on Grecian lines. The folds of the high cowl neckline were held in place by strips of velvet, which crossed on the front of the full bodice and continued to the back of the dress. The long court train was attached to the straps at the back. A braided velvet band held the tulle cap in place, and from it the tulle veil extended to the end of the train. The bride carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Frances Meriwether Wachter, maid of honor for her sister, was gowned in baby blue velvet made on Grecian lines. The high round neck was gathered at the front. The dress was shirred at the waistline at the back making the skirt very full. She wore long white gloves and her bouquet of pale yellow roses was tied in a blue satin ribbon. The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret and Miss Virginia Phelps, sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Janet Mackey and Miss Adele Frances Recker, a cousin of the bride. They wore gowns fashioned like that of the maid of honor. Miss Margaret Phelps was in madcap blue, Miss Mackey in mystic blue, Miss Virginia Phelps in lark's egg blue and Miss Recker in bluelain. They also carried bouquets of yellow roses shading from light to dark. They wore long white gloves.

The bride attended school in Petersburg, Va., and later attended the St. Louis School of Fine Arts at Washington University. Mr. Phelps is a graduate of the John Burroughs School, attended Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., and was graduated from the University of Chicago last June. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

Out of town guests for the wedding included Mrs. Thomas Close and Judge Ewing Close of Nashville, Tenn., aunt and cousin of the bride, and Miss Anita Cohen of New York.

Judy West, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Bruce West, was the flower girl. She was dressed in a long pink net dress with tiny puff sleeves. She carried a basket of rose petals.

Charles Hayden Reasor was best man for Mr. Phelph. The ushers were Frank Proctor, M. Alexander Jones, George Woolley and William Nahlik.

Mrs. Wachter wore a dubonnet velvet dress made on princess lines with a slight train. Her flowers were gardenias arranged in a shoulder corsage. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in royal purple velvet with which she wore a matching pleated cape. Her flowers were also a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were enameled cigarette cases and compacts. Mr. Phelps gave the best man and ushers silver watch chains.

A reception for the bridal party and families followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Palms and autumn flowers banked the mantelpiece before which the receiving line stood. The bridal table was set in the sunporch.

The young pair departed on a honeymoon after which they will reside in Chicago, Ill.

Helen Pirmann Wed To Robert H. Smith

THE marriage of Miss Helen Pirmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul John Pirmann of Fulton, Mo., to Robert Henry Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Smith, 720 Fairview avenue, Webster Groves, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the St. Peter's Evangelical Church, the Rev. August C. Rasche officiating. The chancel of the church was banked with ferns, palms and white chrysanthemums, and was lighted with standards of tall cathedral tapers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a simple gown of white lace made en princesse over an ivory satin slip. It had a soft cowl neckline and tight sleeves ending in a point over the hand. Little buttons fastened the back from the high neck to the waistline. Her tulle veil, which was caught to her hair at the back with sprigs of orange blossoms, fell to the edge of the long train. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Oliver M. Smith of Minneapolis, Minn., sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of beige lace over apricot satin and accessories of brown velvet. She carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums in fall shades. Nancy Taylor Smith, niece of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid. She wore a Kate Greenaway dress of peach net. Three deep tucks formed the hemline and the short bodice was marked by a twisted peach and blue ribbon girdle fastened at the back with tiny rosebuds and streamers to the hem. A band of the same ribbon was worn in her hair and she carried a colonial bouquet of Johanna Hill rosebuds and steeria.

Mrs. Pirmann wore a blue afternoon gown with hat to match and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Smith wore a black and metallic ensemble and her flowers were a corsage of rosebuds.

Oliver Smith served his brother as best man, and the ushers were Fred A. Wright, John H. Armbruster, Gordon E. Moore, Russell R. Wischmeyer and H. Burnett Mothersill.

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal couple received informally in the foyer of the church. Later a wedding supper was served to the immediate families and the bridal party at the Park Plaza.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will spend their honeymoon in the Carolinas, and on their return will make their home in Webster Groves.

Pre-Nuptial Parties For British Royalty

LONDON, Oct. 12.

FOLLOWING the precedent established before the Duke of Kent's wedding last year, King George and Queen Mary will entertain at two parties before the wedding of the Duke of Gloucester and Lady Alice Scott next month. Two thousand guests have been invited to the first party in the state apartments of Buckingham Palace on Nov. 4. The following afternoon, the King and Queen will entertain 2000 more guests at a tea in St. James' Palace. There the wedding presents will be on view.

The son born to the Duchess of Kent, Princess Marina of Greece, is seventh in line to the British throne.

The Duke of Roxburgh's marriage to Lady Mary Crews-Milnes, will by special permission of King George, be celebrated in Westminster Abbey, Oct. 24. The Duke is the son of the former May Goelet of New York. He is a godson of the King and Queen.

Alice R. Geyelin, daughter of Anthony Geyelin of Philadelphia, and David Henderson, were married in St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, this week. The bride's attendants were Lady Margherite Strickland, Margaret Ward and Diana Mills.

Barbara Worrall Bride of A. F. Rankin

THE marriage of Miss Mary Barbara Worrall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Worrall, 651 East Monroe avenue, Kirkwood, to Archibald F. Rankin, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Rankin of Manitowoc, Wis., was solemnized last night at 8:30 o'clock at the Grace Episcopal Church in Kirkwood, the Rev. Dr. Robert O. Kevin officiating. The candlelight ceremony took place before the chancel which was banked with palms and greenery. Large vases of white chrysanthemums and candelabra were arranged on the altar.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin made on princesse lines with a round neckline and leg-of-mutton sleeves. Corded material was used on the bottom of the dress and the train was scalloped. Her tulle veile was held in place at the front by a braided tulle band and was caught at the back to a row of natural gardenias. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Helen Worrall, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaid, Mrs. Gilber Rankin, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, wore velvet dresses fashioned alike. Miss Worrall was in cameo pink valvet and Mrs. Rankin in bright powder blue. The dresses were made with high necklines in the front. A drape of the velvet starting from either shoulder formed a low cowl decolletage. The skirts, made with the new front fullness, had slight trains. The bride's attendants carried bouquets of cameo pink roses.

Gilbert Rankin, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were James Worrall, brother of the bride, Jack Nash of Manitowoc, Wis., and Donald Hamilton of New York.

Mrs. Worrall wore a pansy velvet dress and her flowers were gardenias arranged in a shoulder corsage. Mrs. Rankin was gowned in blue velvet and her flowers were orchids.

A reception for the bridal party, families and a few intimate friends was held at the home of the bride's parents. The home was decorated with autumn flowers and white chrysanthemums. The bridal table was set in the dining room.

After the reception the pair departed on a honeymoon, the destination of which has not been disclosed. They will live in Manitowoc, Wis.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute. Mr. Rankin was graduated from Cornell University Law School.

Among the out-of-town guests who came to attend the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Rankin, parents of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Rankin of Manitowoc, Wis, and Mrs. C. F. Wheadon of Elmira, N. Y., maternal grandmother of the bride.

Box Reservations For Grand Opera

MORE than half of the 56 boxes comprising the "golden horseshoe" in the new convention hall of the Municipal Auditorium have been reserved by prominent St. Louisans for the dedicatory season of grand opera. The dates are Oct. 31 to Nov. 6, inclusive. Boxholders are being encouraged to lease their boxes from season to season after the fashion of the Vanderbilt, Harriman, Astor, Belmont and Goelet families at the Metropolitan Opera in New York.

A special seating arrangements has been devised, and rushed to completion. A ramped floor, rising to a height of 7 feet at the rear of the auditorium, insures visibility of the stage from all parts of the hall.

The brief fall season will open with Puccini's "Turandot" starring Maria Jeritza, and Guiseppe Bentonelli, young Americna tenor, Thursday evening, Oct. 31. Richard Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde" with Paul Althouse, dramatic tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Margaret Halsted, young American dramatic soprano, Nov. 2. Nov. 4, the attraction will be Wagner's "Tannhauser" with Paul Althouse in the title role and Maria Jeritza as Elizabeth. The season will close with Gounod's "Faust" with Giovanni Martinelli in the title role, Nov. 6.

MANHATTAN'S more earnest gourmets, who but a short time ago welcomed the return to drinking sanity with glad huzzas, are now wondering if the age of the speakeasy, with its attendant reticence and unobtrusiveness, didn't have its compensations. A wave of bedizened opulence has overflowed the town's hotels and restaurants, and with it a deafening surge of noise which, in a score or so of once decorous dining spots, makes serious eating impossible. Ragtime bands have been installed in half a dozen once first-class restaurants. There are individual artists, blues moaners, piano pounders, mammy yammerers and other distractions where once it was possible to sit down to a quiet 5 o'clock drink and make yourself heard by your companion. It was, of course, the drinking gals who started it, bringing hysterical laughter with them and demanding the idiot entertainment of saxaphones.

The fastidious who formerly were patrons of these establishments have been forced in dismay and self-protection to seek new haunts. The distinguished chefs who once labored piously for their pleasure are turning out flimsy hors d'oeuvres and snacks to go with grenadine cocktails. It is yet possible that the hotel owners who have deserted their serious patrons for the favors of the shop girl and cocktail trade will find they have cut their own throats. If they have, they will receive scant sympathy from the town's gourmets.

We hasten to assure you that there are no brass bands yet at the Colony, at "21" or at Leon and Gregory's smart little Aperitif, in Fifty-fifth street, and that the Lafayette has a little orchestra that is just the right thing if you want wistful music with your coffee and Cognac. The perfect ideal of dining tranquilly was achieved, of course, by the celebrated French host who had each of his dinner guests served in a separate room, so that the impertinence of conversation might not mar the quality of the food.

* * *

If, on the other hand, you are in search of after-theater divertisements where noise is in order and the cheerful popping of corks and smash of jazz are fit and proper, never since the Good Years has there been such a multitude of platinum-plated joy joints to choose from. The bystreets fairly seethe with ermine and tailcoats hastening from Gil Boag's new O'Opera, on the site of the old Embassy Club; to the French Casino, or from the French Casino to Sherman Billingsley's Stork Club. Even Heywood Broun has got himself poured into a voluminous dinner jacket and is out seeing what he can see in the spangled hours. Barney Gallant has opened again, uptown this time, John Perona has re-opened El Morocco to the midnight celebrities and celebrity hunters, and a prosperity note that should interest the Federal Government seems latent in the circumstance that at Michael's, in Fifty-third street, a room for the exclusive service of champagne has been opened. It is called the Salle des Pommes, and has been decorated as a gleaming orchard by Vernon McFarlane. The Mayfair Club is about to start its season at the Pierre, and Marian Cooley has taken over the same establishment for her Sunday evening levees. The town hasn't been so night-club conscious as this since the old days of the Mat Winkle era, when Mr. A. Borgo was running the Club Royal and Charlie Journal was sending them away in hundreds at the Montmartre. Hurry, baby, and sock yourself out in a peck or so of emeralds and we'll go out and get ourselves into a lot of trouble!

Box Reservations For Grand Opera

MORE than half of the 56 boxes comprising the "golden horse shoe" in the new convention hall of the Municipal Auditorium have been reserved by prominent St. Louisans for the dedicatory season of grand opera. The dates are Oct. 31 to Nov. 6, inclusive. Boxholders are being encouraged to lease their boxes from season to season after the fashion of the Vanderbilt, Harriman, Astor, Belmont and Goelet families at the Metropolitan Opera in New York.

A special seating arrangements has been devised, and rushed to completion. A ramped floor, rising to a height of 7 feet at the rear of the auditorium, insures visibility of the stage from all parts of the hall.

The brief fall season will open with Puccini's "Turandot" starring Maria Jeritza, and Guiseppe Bentonelli, young Americna tenor, Thursday evening, Oct. 31. Richard Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde" with Paul Althouse, dramatic tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Margaret Halsted, young American dramatic soprano, Nov. 2. Nov. 4, the attraction will be Wagner's "Tannhauser" with Paul Althouse in the title role and Maria Jeritza as Elizabeth. The season will close with Gounod's "Faust" with Giovanni Martinelli in the title role, Nov. 6.

Among the boxholders are: Joseph Pulitzer, Mrs. Edward J. Walsh, Clinton L. Whittemore, L. Ray Carter, Morton J. May, Mrs. Clifford W. Gaylord, Mrs. Charles McClure Clark, Frank M. Mayfield, Walter W. Head, Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, David L. Grey, L. Warrington Baldwin, Mrs. John E. McKinney, Harry M. Pflager, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Mrs. Paul Brown, A. M. The arrival of the Russian Ballet, or for that matter the American Ballet or any other acredited choreographic troupe, always sets a certain not too shrinking posse of Manhattanites to shouting "bis" and "bravo" and appearing in fancy dress in the theater lobbies on first night. Some of these folk never seem to be visible at any other season of the year, but turn out en masse with black slouch hats, lavender-dyed hair, yellow single eye-glasses and other forms of personal and sartorial adornment whenever the dancers perform. This week the Russian Ballet has been on view at the Metropolitan Opera and such general swishing, whisking and waving of eighteen-inch cigaret tubes you never have seen. The first requirement of a "balletomane" is to be dressed like one whether or not he knows an entrechat from an off-to-Buffalo, and some wierd and wonderful arrangements characterize a convocation of Gotham's ballet aficionados. There is the young man who wears pale-gray trousers with an otherwise conventional suit of evening tails, "because black is too sad a color for pants." There is the professor from a New England college who every year comes to town and tears his opera hat to shreds during the performance so great is its emotional impact on his consciousness. There are two youths who always sit together in the front row and weep throughout the progress of "Prince Igor," overwhelmed by the beauty of it. And there are the surrealist ladies who compare all performances to the ballet in Gertrude Stein's "Four Saints in Three Acts," which startled New Yorkers two seasons ago by consisting of nothing but four Negro boys dressed in sailor costumes made of blue cellophane. If ever the men with the net should get loose at a ballet opening they'd make enough captures to fill the wagon five times over.

An amazing facet of New York life is the terrifying complete mental index maintained by police officers about people who imagine themselves quite anonymous. An instance was furnished the other evening by an elderly gaffer who is well enough known in the town's drawing rooms, but never imagined the patrolmen along the avenue all knew him, too. It was a fine night when he stepped out of Leon and Eddie's, and he was tempted to stroll up Fifth avenue to his residence in a not undistinguished club in Sixty-first street. All went well; he carefully placed one foot in front of the other, maintained a firm grip on his stick, and the pavement rolled smoothly out under him, just as it should. It was not until the Fifty-seventh street corner that catastrophe overtook him and that in some inexplicable way he contrived to collapse ungracefully upon the pavement. Two officers emerged hastily from the shadow of the Trust Company of New York and recovered his errant stick and chapeau. They brushed the old gentleman off and put him together again with every courtesy. "Shall I call a cab, Colonel," one of them asked solicitously, "or do you think you can make Sixty-first? It's only four more blocks."

Capital's Social Season Opens

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.

THE social season in Washington is nearly under way, although Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who spent a few days this week in the capital, will not return until the President comes back from his Western trip the end of this month.

The White House official program has not yet been announced, but as the rebuilding at the White House is nearly completed, official functions probably will get under way early. Last winter the opening of the season with the dinner in honor of the members of the Cabinet and their wives was delayed because of the moving of the executive offices into the residence while improvements were being made.

The wedding of Nina Gore Vidal and Hugh D. Auchincloss, an investment broker of Washington, took Washington by surprise Tuesday.

A rumor that Mrs. Vidal, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, and Mr. Auchincloss were to be married has been current since Mrs. Vidal obtained a divorce in Reno last May from Eugene Vidal, director of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Air Commerce.

The pair were married at Frederica McKenney Mallan's apartment, with only a few close friends present.

Mr. Auchincloss also had been married previously. His first wife was Maya de Chrapovitsky, daughter of a distinguished Russian family. She obtained a divorce several years ago. Mr. Auchincloss is the son of Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss of New York. He has a son 8 years old, Hugh Auchincloss III. The bride also has a son 9 years old, Eugene Vidal Jr., who was present at his mother's wedding.

The bridegroom some time ago bought Merrywood, the estate near McLean, Va., which belonged to Newbold Noyes.

Curtis Lyter, Mrs. John O'Fallon Delaney, Mrs. Sidney Maestre, Mrs. Harvey Mudd, Mrs. Richard Shelton, Mrs. William Bagnell, Mrs. Arnold Stifel, Miss Helen Heissler, Mrs. James K. Stribling, Mrs. Frank W. Sneed, Mrs. W. Fred Anheuser, Mrs. John Ring Jr., Mrs. Jerome Kircher, Mrs. W. Oscar Mullgardt, Mrs. James M. Vanston, Mrs. John L. Roemer, rs. Rita deLaporte Murphy, Miss Edna Leiber, Mrs. Alfred V. Fingulin, Mrs. H. Wade Choate, and Mrs. Paul Friess.

The concert will be given for the benefit of Pine Mountain Settlement School for underprivileged children in the mountains of Kentucky. After the program the soloist will be presented to members of the sorority and their guests at tea in the club rooms of the Monday Club.

Presiding at the tea tables will be: Mrs. Del Martz, president of the alumnae; Mrs. Xenophone P. Wilfley, Mrs. Leonard V. Roach, Mrs. Chase Morsey, Mrs. Harvey E. Truex, and Mrs. Walter Bailey.

WEDDINGS and ENGAGEMENTS

Wille-Young.

Mrs. Kathleen E. Young, 5107A Palm street, and Bernard F. Wille, 4077 Toenges avenue, were married Oct. 2 at the Blessed Sacrament Church by the Rev. Father Kline. After the wedding a breakfast was held at Carsonville Inn., Carsonville, Mo. On their return next Sunday from a wedding trip to Denver and Colorado Springs, Colo., Mr. Wille and his bride will be at home at 4077 Toenges avenue.

Sandrock-Meyer.

Miss Bernice Meyer, daughter of Mrs. William F. Meyer, 5631A Dewey avenue, became the bride of Victor Sandrock, 4615 Lindell boulevard, Saturday, Oct. 5, at St. Paul's Evangelical Church. The Rev. T. J. Hermann performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Adolph Ganahl, uncle of the bride, gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory satin made on long lines. Miss Dorothy Pappas, Miss Doris Eckhoff and Mrs. Carl Hellweg attended the bride. The bridegroom's cousin, Granville Gloor, was best man, and the groomsmen were Walter Hinckle, Frank Bryan, Carl Hellweg and Keith Hinckle.

Mr. Sandrock and his bride will make their home temporarily at 4615 Lindell boulevard on their return from Mexico. They will move to their new home on Lorenzo road as soon as it is completed.

Green-Shaw.

The marriage of Miss Ellagwen Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Shaw of Bluff Park, Dixon, Ill., and Harold A. Green, son of Mrs. Raymond F. Lohse, 3403 McKean avenue, will take place at Bluff Park, Saturday, Oct. 26. Mr. and Mrs. Lohse and Mrs. Catherine Farley, grandmother of the bridegroom-elect will go from St. Louis for the wedding.

Miss Shaw attended Gulf Park College in Gulfport, Mississippi, and was later graduated from the University of Missouri, where she was a member of Kappa Gamma sorority.

Mr. Green is also an alumnus of the University of Missouri and a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He and his bride-to-be will make their home in Oklahoma City, Ok., where he is a member of the staff of the Daily Oklahoman and Times.

Markham-Scudder.

Miss Dorothy Verna Scudder, daughter of Mrs. Agnes Scudder and the late Oscar Franklin Scudder, of Los Angeles, formerly of St. Louis, was wed to Glen James Markham, son of Mrs. Mae Newcomb of San Diego, Friday, Sept. 13. The Rev. Frank Fagenburg performed the ceremony at 7 o'clock in the evening, in the Little Church of the Flowers in Glendale, Cal. Mr. Markham also formerly resided in St. Louis.

He and his bride motored here on their wedding trip and will be with her aunt, Mrs. W. M. Scudder, 6304 Fauquier drive, until the first of this week. They will make their home in San Diego where Mr. Markham is engaged in business.

Walker-Blankenship

Miss Marion Blankenship, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Blankenship of Lancaster, Pa., and L. Ernest Walker Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Walker, 4735 Lewis place, were married in Chicago, Oct. 2. The bride studied harp with Carlos Salzedo at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, and is a recent graduate of the Pennsylvania State College. Mr. Walker, first violinist of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, studied under Firmin Touche at the Paris Conservatoire, and under Leopold Auer in Chicago.

Goldman-Leon

The engagement of Miss Ione Leon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Leon, 7632 Westmoreland avenue, and Arthur Goldman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Goldman, 6121 Westminster place, was announced yesterday at a luncheon at the home of the bride-elect for a group of her friends. Miss Leon is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and of Washington University. Mr. Goldman attended Washington University and the University of Chicago. The date of the wedding has not been set.

Rovics-Floun

The wedding of Miss Marian Floun, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Floun, 6236 Enright avenue, and Lester Rovics, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rovics, 6311 Delmar boulevard, took place Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock in the Tower Room of Hotel Congress. Rabbi A. E. Halpern performed the ceremony which was followed by an informal breakfast for the families. Mr. and Mrs. Rovics will live at 314 Clara avenue on their return from a short wedding trip.

Schuchard-Burkholder

Miss Marie Burkholder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Burkholder, 5929 Arsenal street, became the bride of Don Schuchard, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Renisch, 4444 Tholozan avenue, Wednesday, Sept. 25, at Memorial Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Russell Paynter officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin, made with a flared skirt terminating in a court train. She carried a white Bible from which fell a shower of valley lilies. The attendants, Miss Elsie Burkholder, sister of the bride, and Miss Lillian Brauer, wore brown velvet gowns and carried Colonial bouquets of yellow roses and straw flowers.

Wesley H. Farrell served as best man and Arlyn Wente as groomsman.

Sweet-Frankel

The engagement of Miss Dorotny Frankel, daughter of Mrs. G. A. Frankel, 5951 Plymouth avenue, and Hugh Sweet, son of Mrs. Lee H. Sweet, 609 Sunnyside drive, Webster Groves, was announced last Sunday at a bridge party at the Frankel home. The party was ostensibly given to celebrate the twenty-third birthday of Miss Dorothy and her twin sister, Miss Helen. About 14 guests were present. No date has been set for the wedding.

NEW COMMITTEES OF BOARD OF EDUCATION APPOINTED

Emil J. Barth Made Chairman of Instruction; Richard Murphy Heads Finance Group.

New committees of the Board of Education for the next year have been appointed by James J. Fitzgerald, who was elected president of the board Tuesday. There was a general realignment of personnel.

Emil J. Barth was made chairman of the Instruction Committee, succeeding Dr. Francis C. Sullivan. Other members named were Dr. Solon Cameron, the retiring president, and John J. Sheahan. Richard Murphy was mad chairman of the Finance Committee in place of Arthur A. Blumeyer, but there was no change in the other members of this group, Dr. David C. Todd and Mrs. Elias Michael.

Blumeyer was chosen chairman of the Building Committee, succeeding Fitzgerald, with Sheahan, only member given two committee assignments, and Edward A. Ferrenbach as colleague. Dr. Sullivan was appointed chairman of the Auditing and Supplies Committee, in place of Henry P. Schroeder, with Schroeder and Joseph J. Ward as associates.

Evangelical Brotherhood Meeting.

A meeting of the Evangelical Brotherhood of St. Louis and Vicinity will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Holy Ghost Evangelical Church, 4916 Mardel avenue. The Rev. Carl F. Sturm, pastor of St. Matthew's Evangelical Church, will speak on "Evangelical Mission on Madeline Island."

ALUMNI MEETING TUESDAY

The annual meeting of the Cleveland High School Alumni Association will be held Tuesday evening in the Administration Building of St. Louis University, Grand and West Pine boulevards. Officers for the coming year will be elected.

Arrangements will be made for the presentation of the annual play of the association, and for a celebration to honor the alumni who have played with the high school's football teams in the past. Bert Fenega, coach, will assist in making the plans.

United Charities Campaign Nov. 11

MRS. LYON A. GRATIOT, 5154 Westminster place, has been chosen chairman of the West End Region in the United Charities Campaign, which will open Nov. 11. About 300 women volunteers under her direction will solicit funds for 91 social agencies.

Mrs. Gratiot is retiring president of the Occupational Therapy Workshop, a United Charities agency.

Mrs. Raymond W Peters, 14 Clermont Lane, Ladue Village, will be vice-chairman of West End Region.

Six district chairman and 24 teams will be under the supervision of Mrs. Gratiot and Mrs. Peters.

Arnold Lunn to Speak At Webster College

ARNOLD LUNN of London, author, editor, lecturer and convert to Catholicism, will open the sixth annual series of forums conducted by the Loretto Foundation, in Webster College auditorium, this evening, at 8 o'clock. His talk, "The Joys of Controversy," will be based on the relation of religion and science. At the close of the lecture the audience will have an opportunity for a round-table discussion.

For years, before his conversion, Mr. Lunn was a champion of Protestantism and the coming into Catholic Church of several prominent Protestants so aroused his wrath that he published his "Roman Convert," in which he accused these converts of being the victims of temperamentalism. Among his other works are "The Flight From Reason," "Is Christianity True?" and "Difficulties."

Lectures on Musical Appreciation.

Mme. Olga Samaroff Stokowski, pianist, will give the first of a series of lectures on musical appreciation Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of January Hall, Washington University. Mme Stokowski, who lives in New York, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Carlos Hickenlooper, 4545 Maryland avenue.

Music Clubs to Hold First Board Meeting

THE Eighth District Missouri Federation of Music Clubs, will begin its year's activities at a board meeting tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, in the Baldwin Hall, with the district president, Miss Anna Louise Petri, presiding. Plans will be made for the coming year.

Following the meeting, Mrs. Warren Bruce, Co-chairman of the program committee, will have charge of the following musical program:

Piano solo— — — — Mrs. Lilla Canter
(David Earle Ensemble Club).
Songs — Mr. Frederick Schneider, baritone
Miss Betty Binkhard, accompanist.
(Mel-Harmonic Club).
Piano solo — — — Mrs. M. W. Shanfeld (Pettingill Tuesday Musical).
aIPno duo, Miss Anna Louise Petri and Miss Dorothy N. Lord.

Wins Scholarship.

Miss Adrian Wittiker, 1227 Childress avenue, has been awarded the scholarship offered by the Alumnae Association of the Better Speech Institute for the best 400-word theme on the subject "Better Speech for the Business Girl." A partial scholarship was awarded to Miss Jane Kemna, 4961 Audubon avenue.

Mrs. Wayman Crow of La Jolla, Cal., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Berry Moore, 7527 Buckingham drive, Clayton.

United Charities Campaign Nov. 11

MRS. LYON A. GRATIOT, 5154 Westminster place, has been chosen chairman of the West End Region in the United Charities Campaign, which will open Nov. 11. About 300 women volunteers under her direction will solicit funds for 91 social agencies.

Mrs. Gratiot is retiring president of the Occupational Therapy Workshop, a United Charities agency.

Mrs. Raymond W. Peters, 14 Clermont Lane, Ladue Village, will be vice-chairman of West End Region.

Six district chairman and 24 teams will be under the supervision of Mrs. Gratiot and Mrs. Peters.

Arnold Lunn to Speak At Webster College

ARNOLD LUNN of London, author, editor, lecturer and convert to Catholicism, will open the sixth annual series of forums conducted by the Loretto Foundation, in Webster College auditorium, this evening, at 8 o'clock. His talk, "The Joys of Controversy," will be based on the relation of religion and science. At the close of the lecture the audience will have an opportunity for a round-table discussion.

For years, before his conversion, Mr. Lunn was a champion of Protestantism and the coming into Catholic Church of several prominent Protestants so aroused his wrath that he published his "Roman Convert," in which he accused these converts of being the victims of temperamentalism. Among his other works are "The Flight From Reason," "Is Christianity True?" and "Difficulties."

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER—just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

USE POWDER
100% Cleansing Properties
Twice that of tooth paste
No Grit—No Pumice
Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel
Lasts Longer—Costs Less
Outlasts tooth paste 2 to 1

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER—just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Do as your dentist does—
when he cleans your teeth

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

Webster Groves

THE marriage of Miss Margaret L. Crockett, daughter of William A. Crockett, 108 North Old Orchard avenue, to Harry H. Holecamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Holecamp, 205 South Elm avenue, took place last evening at 8 o'clock at First Congregational Church, the Rev. George M. Gibson officiating. The chancel was banked with woodwardia ferns. Placed among these were two vases of white crysanthemums and candelabra. The ceremony was performed by candlelight.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was dressed in an ivory velvet gown made on princesse lines with a small turnover collar. The long tight sleeves came to a point over the hand. The dress buttoned down the back with tiny velvet buttons. Panels at the back of the skirt formed the train. Her veil was ivory tulle arranged in pleats making a halo. A band of seed pearls held the veil in place. She wore a rhinestone bracelet, which was the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a bouquet of white gladioli and lilies of the valley.

Miss Louise Tidd, who was maid of honor, was gowned in chartreuse velvet. The dress was made with a white satin top embroidered in gold threads. It had a short velvet jacket which buttoned down the front and had large stitched lapels and long sleeves. She carried a bouquet of canary yellow roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Emilie Holecamp, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Charles Crawford and Miss Dorothy Barthels, wore dresses fashioned like that of the maid of honor. They were in coral velvet, shading from light to dark, and they carried roses that blended with their dresses. The maid of honor and the bridesmaids wore the gift of the bride, a rhinestone clip, in their hair.

William Crockett, brother of the bride, was best man for Mr. Holecamp. Milton Johannes, George Fitzwilliam and Charles Crawford, were groomsmen. Robert Holecamp, brother of the bridegroom, and Murray Tanner, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as ushers.

Mrs. Holecamp wore a black crepe dress with a lace bodice. Her flowers were gardenias arranged in a shoulder corsage.

Mr. Holecamp's gifts to his attendants were monogramed tieholders and collar clips.

Following the ceremony an informal reception for the bridal party, families and close friends was held at the Crockett home. The home was decorated with autumn flowers. The bridal table was set in the dining room and had a large wedding cake as the centerpiece. White tapers also decorated the table.

The pair departed on a two weeks' honeymoon, and will live in Louisville, Ky. Mr. Holecamp attended Washington University, and is a member of Theta Xi fraternity.

Many pre-wedding parties have been planned for Miss Virginia Waggoner, daughter of Mrs. William C. Waggoner, 60 North Maple avenue, and William Henry Bryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bryan, 5915 De Giverville avenue, whose marriage will take place Saturday, Oct. 26. Last night Mrs. Allen Calhoun, 61 Fair Oaks, entertained at a bridge party. Wednesday Miss Virginia Grace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo M. Grace, 246 Spencer road, will give a small tea for the bride-elect. Saturday Miss Betty Greenland will give a bridge luncheon for Miss Waggoner. Next Sunday evening Miss Elizabeth Conrad, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar J. Conrad, 214 Spencer road, will honor the young pair at a buffet supper. Tuesday evening, Oct. 22, Miss Jane Scholz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford O. Scholz, 33 North Maple avenue, will entertain at a bridge. The following afternoon Mrs. David E. Ward, 11 South Moreland avenue, will have a bridge luncheon at her home for the prospective bride. That evening Miss Dorothy Ann Rebstock, granddaughter of Mrs. Anna Rebstock, 3222 Hawthorne place, will entertain at a dinner party. Miss Sue Gilbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilbert, 425 Oakwood avenue, will have a buffet supper for the bridal party before the rehearsal Friday evening, Oct. 25.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Chambers, 119 Portland terrace, have as their guest Mr. Chamber's mother, Mrs. J. H. Chambers of Hollywood, Cal. She has been here for two weeks and will remain through the month of October. Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brayton Shelley, brother-in-law and sister of Mr. Chambers, were guests at the Chambers' home. They were on route to their home in Oregon after attending the world series in Chicago, Ill.

Miss Betty Greenland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Greenland, 111 Jefferson road, entertained at a bridge luncheon Saturday, Oct. 5, at the Missouri Athletic Club in honor of Miss Jane Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Russell, 3515 Russell boulevard, whose marriage to Ralph Smith, 4157 Magnolia avenue, will take place Friday. The guests at the party were Miss Russell, Mrs. David E. Ward, Mrs. Fred Weber, sister of the bride-elect; Miss Margaret Bokern, Mrs. Howard Finney, Mrs. Lester Abbot and Mrs. Harry Stein.

Mrs. R. L. Mackey, 124 Sylvester avenue, has returned from Hollywood, Cal., where she spent the summer. George Edmunds Mackey of Louisville, Ky., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Mackey, spent last week-end as the guest of his parents.

Bert Schmidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. L. Schmidt, 460 Belleview avenue, returned home last Sunday from a canoe trip down the Wisconsin and Mississippi rivers. Accompanied by James Tideman of Marionette, Wis., he left from Rhinelander, Wis., Sept. 7 and stopped at interesting points en route. Earlier in the summer they were counselors at Camp Minna-Wonka, Three Lakes, Wis. Mr. Tideman spent several days as the guest of Mr. Schmidt before returning to his home.

CITY'S OBSERVANCE OF COLUMBUS DAY

443d Anniversary of Landing; Exchanges Closed, K. of C. Services in Park.

Columbus day, marking the 443d anniversary of the landing of Christopher Columbus on the Island of San Salvador, was observed in St. Louis yesterday by the closing of City Hall, Police Courts, Courts of Criminal Correction and the St. Louis Stock, Merchants', Butter, Egg and Poultry Exchanges.

Banks remained open, however, and business houses kept their customary Saturday hours. The Federal Building remained open and the Post Office routine remained the same. Only five divisions of Circuit Court were in session.

The Marquette Council of the Knights of Columbus celebrated the day for the thirty-third year in succession, beginning with a mass at 7 a. m. at St. Margaret's Catholic Church, 3868 Flad avenue. The Rev. Joseph P. Kennedy, assistant pastor, officiated.

From the church the men marched to the Columbus statute just west of Grand boulevard, in Tower Grove Park, and placed a wreath at the base of the statue. An address was delivered by John J. Griffin, vice-president of the Mutual Bank & Trust Co., and a past district deputy of the Knights of Columbus.

Griffin praised the courage and faith of Columbus, saying: "What a contrast between the example of the great Columbus and the present day tendency of those who seek to tear our land bare, destroy our homes, raze our institutions, drive Christ from the land, and offer instead the pagan worship of the golden calf."

The Marquette Council met again at luncheon at Hotel York. Last night the Knights of Columbus Good Fellowship Club sponsored a party at the Knights of Columbus Building, 3547 Olive street, to which all the council in the city were invited.

New York Police Disperse Fascists.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Swinging night sticks, mounted police in Columbus Circle dispersed 2500 Fascist sympathizers and 2000 anti-Fascists today, shortly after Governor Lehman and Mayor LaGuardia gave Columbus day addresses. Several members of the Fascist group were struck by the policemen when they did not respond to "move on" orders.

LIBRARY BUYS 64 COPIES OF LIBRETTOS OF 4 OPERAS

Texts of Vehicles to Be Presented at Auditorium Will Be Placed in Circulation.

The Public Library has bought 64 copies of the librettos of each of the four operas to be given by the St. Louis Grand Opera Co., starting Oct. 31, and will place them in circulation. The operas are "Turandot," "Faust," "Tristane and Isolde," and "Tannhaeuser."

The library added 2566 volumes to its collection during September, of which 1613 were bought, 921 gifts, and 32 were pamphlets bound and formally entered. Use of books in the reference room increased over that in September, 1934, but the circulation of books showed a decrease.

Most called for of recently published books at the library are Stefan Zweig's "Mary, Queen of Scotland," Anne Morrow Lindbergh's "North to the Orient," Clarence Day's "Life with Father," Gina Kaus' "Catherine, The Portrait of an Empress," Josephine Johnson's "Winter Orchard," and "The Autobiography of John Hays Hammond."

RELIGIOUS DRAMA TOURNAMENT FROM NOV. 15 TO MARCH 30

Churches in St. Louis and Suburban Towns Are Eligible for Competition.

The fourth annual religious drama tournament, sponsored by the Metropolitan Church Federation of St. Louis will be held from Nov. 15 to next March 30.

The competition will be divided into two sections: Groups appearing in Biblical drama, and those presenting non-Biblical plays which are religious in character. The two classes will be judged separately, and a silver cup will be awarded to the casts receiving the highest score in each division. Churches may enter one or more groups in either of the two divisions.

Churches in St. Louis and suburba ntowns are eligible for the tournament. The plays are to be selected from an accredited list compiled by the educational department of the Federation.

YOUTHS TO REGISTER TOMORROW FOR JOBS

Those Between 16 and 25 of Both Sexes, Who Were on Relief Rolls in May, Eligible.

Registration of young men and women for employment under the National Youth Administration program will begin tomorrow at the offices of the Missouri State Employment Service, it was announced yesterday by John E. Riley Jr., St. Louis director of the NYA.

Offices of the employment service are at 1806 Washington avenue; 7823 Forsythe boulevard, Clayton; and 156 West Argonne drive, Kirkwood.

Those eligible for work are persons between the ages of 16 and 25 who were on the relief rolls in May, 1935. Aside from the jobs to be provided through the employment service, colleges have been allotted funds for needy students, not necessarily from relief families, and Superintendent of Schools Henry J. Gerling is to administer a fund for high school pupils from relief families. The students are to be given part-time jobs.

Wages to be paid on jobs allotted through the employment service range from $19 to $25 a month with a maximum of 43½ working hours a month. About 11,000 youths are eligible to apply for these jobs, Riley said.

So far no specific work programs have been formally approved, Riley said, but several are in the process of approval. He expected the first jobs would be available in about two weeks.

The National Youth Administration opened its office here Oct. 1 in room 404 of the Board of Education Building, 911 Locust street.

SCOUT LEADERSHIP TRAINING PROGRAM

First Session Tomorrow at Elias Michael School; 12 Meetings in Course.

The leadership training program which will be started tomorrow by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council is part of a five-year progressive course recommended by the National Council. Those who complete the course will receive Scoutmasters' keys or Scouters' awards.

The first course in the program, "Elements of Scoutmastership," starting at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Elias Michael School, 4568 Forest Park boulevard, will emphasize the leaders' duties in organizing and training the members of a scout troop. There will be 12 sessions in the course.

Members of the "elements" class will be organized into a troop for experience with the actual problems which will confront them later as leaders. H. Max Nusser. North District field executive, will serve as the troop's scoutmaster, J. R. Mauntel will be his assistant, Don Kuhlenbeck, junior assistant scoutmaster, and George C. Brockhoff, senior patrol leader.

A more advanced course, "Principles of Scoutmastership," will be directed by H. L. Rush, West District executive. It will meet at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow, at Stix Schol, 226 South Euclid avenue. William J. Puffer, education director of the council, will teach a course on Nature, the first session to be held Wednesday evening at Stix School.

Also at the Stix School, a course on "The Outdoor Program" will be given with the first session Tuesday evening under the leadership of Merle D. Shippey, council camp director. Dr. Forest H. Staley will be the instructor of an astronomy class meeting Tuesday night at St. Roch's School, 6048 Waterman avenue. On the same day Ross Blackford, education director of the Sea Scout committee, will start a course for leaders in that field at the First Congregational Church, Claytton.

Troop 198, St. John's M. E. Church, was addressed by Charles Nagel, attorney, at its birthday dinner Thursday night. The troop was awarded its seventh Standard Troop emblem by William C. Bitting Jr. G. W. Berri, troop committeeman, was toastmaster.

Scouters of West District held a field day yesterday at Country Day School. Following supper, the Order of the Blue Ox made plans for the sale of tickets to the Merit Badge Show, which will be held Dec. 5, 6 and 7.

South District leaders will hold a round-up dinner at 6 p. m. Tuesday, at St. Paul's Evangelical Church, 3510 Giles avenue. Phil Ziegenfuss, chairman of the district, will preside.

Three Eagle Scout badges were presented at a court of honor of Troop 31, Grace M. E. Church, recently. The awards were made to Scouts Chester Lukey, Roy V. Whisnand, and Wright Coulson, who is the son of Williams C. Coulson, scoutmaster of the troop. More than 150 guests were present at the ceremony, at which 65 merit badges were awarded. Scout Billie McDade received a bronze palm for his Eagle Badge, and George Ross, a gold palm.

R. F. Schramm has been appointed scoutmaster of Troop 3, Clayton, succeeding Jack Horner, who resigned a week ago to become field commissioner for Suburban district.

Scouts Richard Andrews, William Canning, and Archie Hale received the insignia of Star Scout rank at an award ceremony held by Troop 160, Immauel M. E. Church, last week. Twenty-one merit badges were presented also.

Arthur B. Cole has become scoutmaster of Troop 215, Carondelet School. E. E. Hahnfeld recently succeeded O. F. Harris as scoutmaster of Troop 1, Affton.

GIRL SCOUTS.

A tea for all First-class Girl Scouts in St. Louis and St. Louis County will be held from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m. today at the Little House, 4253 Magnolia avenue. The Badges and Awards Committee, headed by Miss Jennie Wahlert, has arranged the tea in order to give the advanced scouts of the various districts a chance to become better acquainted.

Second-class Scouts of West and North Districts are spending the week-end at Camp Cedarledge, near Pevely, Mo. During the summer camping season 339 girls spent two or more weeks at the camp. Other groups may visit Cedarledge on week-ends until Nov. 1.

Fall swimming courses began last week. Non-swimmers meet from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. on Saturday mornings at the Bishop Tuttle Memorial, 1210 Locust street, and the Sayman Town Club, 1122 Locust street. Classes for beginners will be held at 10 a. m. on Saturday at the Sayman Town Club, and at 4 p. m. Tuesday at the Y. W. C. A. Swimmers who wish to prepare for Red Cross life saving tests may use the Y. W. C. A. pool at 9:30 a. m. Saturday and at 4 p. m. on Friday.

Y.M.C.A. FUND DRIVE WILL OPEN TOMORROW

96 Boys to Explain Purpose of Organization in Churches Today.

As a preliminary to 1936 campaign of the Y. M. C. A. for current funds, 96 boys will appear this morning in as many churches to make brief talks describing projects of the "Y." Today is the second annual "Young Men's Sunday," directed by William H. Danforth, president of the American Youth Foundation.

The boys will describe the activities of 50,600 young members of the organization who pay none or only part of the fees. The actual campaign will begin tomorrow to raise funds to continue the 700 projects of the Y. M. C. A.

Before setting out on their speaking engagements, the boys will meet at the Chase Hotel at 8:30 a. m. to hear final instructions from Danforth. Each will be accompanied by a prominent layman of the church he is to visit.

The speakers will describe, among other things, the Y. M. C. A. Indian Guides, a father and son organization. Their program includes outings, nature study, craft work, hobbies and trips.

Other speakers will describe the Employed Boys' Brotherhood, which has a program of gymnasium and classroom work. The Hi-Y Clubs which were started to "create, maintain and extend throughout school and community high standards of Christian character" will also be discussed.

THREE SISTERS IN FRESHMAN CLASS AT WASHINGTON U.

Two Are Twins; Always Seen Together; Dress Similarly and Have Same Likes.

Washington University has three sisters, two of them twins, enrolled in its freshman class. They are Mary, Alice, and Ruth Worthington, of 5549 Cabanne avenue. Mary and Alice are twins, 17 years old; Ruth is two years older.

The sisters are the youngest in a family of eight. They planned their course so that all could graduate from Soldan High School together. All are pledged to Alpha Chi Omega sorority.

A release from the university's publicity has the following to say about them: "The girls are always seen en masse. They never find themselves speaking in the first person singular, but always speak in the plural. Not only do they dress alike, the twins in identical colors and the other sister in a contrasting shade, but they also date twins and brothers occasionally. They always go on triple dates, all have the same likes and dislikes, and have blonde hair and blue eyes."

TOYS AND CLOTHING TO BE THEATER ADMISSION OCT. 26

39 Houses Agree On Plan; Playthings and Garments to Be Distributed by Agencies.

Toys and a bundle of clothing will be the admission price to morning or matinee performances at 39 moving picture theaters in the city and county on Saturday, Oct. 26. The toys will be sent to the Toy Shop Guild for rehabilitation and subsequent re-distribution among poor children. The clothing will be turned over to the St. Louis Child Conservation Conference.

The Missouri and Shubert Theaters will have morning shows at 9:30 o'clock. The remaining theaters, all neighborhood houses, will have matinee performances beginning at 2 p. m. They are the Granada, Shaw, Gravois, Tivoli, Maplewood, Aubert, Lindell, Congress, Ivanhoe, Robin, Wellston, McNair, Palm, Cardinal, Princess, Redwing, Roxy, White Way, Powhattan, Fairy, Macklind, King Bee, Pauline Peerless, Cinderella, Melba, Michigan, Virginia, Columbia, Ashland, Queens, Lee, Lexington, O'Fallon, Baden, Shady Oak and Globe.

NURSERY EDUCATION SPEECH

Miss Christine Glass to Discuss Meeting to Be Held Here.

Miss Christine Glass, State supervisor of emergency nursery schools in Missouri, will discuss the National Association for Nursery Education conference, opening here Oct. 31, at a meeting tomorrow at 4 p. m. of heads of public and private schools and of day nurseries in the metropolitan area. The meeting will be held at the Progressive Pre-School, 829 Union boulevard.

Logan R. Fuller, supervisor of emergency educational projects, and Mrs. Laura S. Edwards will also speak.

COLLEGE DAY AT FONTBONNE

The Rev. Thomas D. Kennedy to Preach Sermon.

Fontbonne College will celebrate its thirteenth annual college day on Tuesday. The Rev. Thomas D. Kennedy, elected national chaplain of the American Legion at the convention recently held here, will celebrate mass and deliver the sermon.

An automobile parade, with the students in cap and gown, will drive to Cahokia, Ill., in the morning. The evening celebration will be the presentation of the Slaviansky Russian Chorus, which is 75 years old and is under the direction of Mme. Margarita Agrevena Slaviansky, for the students in the Fontbonne Little Theater.

Chinese Student to Speak.

Miss Eppy Chang, a Chinese student at Webster College, will speak on "Social Service in China" at a luncheon meeting of the St. Louis Conference of Social Work at the Town Club on Oct. 21.

Can you estimate what the scores will be? If you can, you may be one of the fifty participants who will share $300.00 in cash prizes offered in this Football Knowledge Test.

The games on which the competition is based will be listed in the Post-Dispatch Sports Section up to and including Thursday, October 17. Entries should be mailed to the Football Scores Editor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and must be postmarked before midnight, October 17. Names of successful entrants will be published Wednesday, October 23.

Total of 50 Cash Prizes	$300.00

Here Are the Simple Rules:

The Football Knowledge Test is open to everyone except Post-Dispatch employes and members of their families.

A brief explanatory letter must accompany each entry.

Prizes will be awarded to participants whose entries are most accurate and whose explanations, in the opinion of the Football Scores Editor, are most logical and convincing.

The games on which the competition is based will be listed daily in the Post-Dispatch Sports Section up to and including Thursday, October 17. The competition will close at midnight, October 17, and entries must be postmarked before that time.

It is not necessary to use the entry form in the Post-Dispatch. Any piece of paper of approximately the same size will do.

You do not have to buy the Post-Dispatch to enter. Copies may be examined at public libraries or in the business office of the Post-Dispatch.

Only one entry may be submitted by each participant.

In the event of a tie for any award, the full amount of the award tied for will be paid to each tying participant.

Names of successful participants will be published in the Post-Dispatch Wednesday, October 23.

The Football Scores Editor will be the sole judge of entries submitted and his decision must be accepted as final.

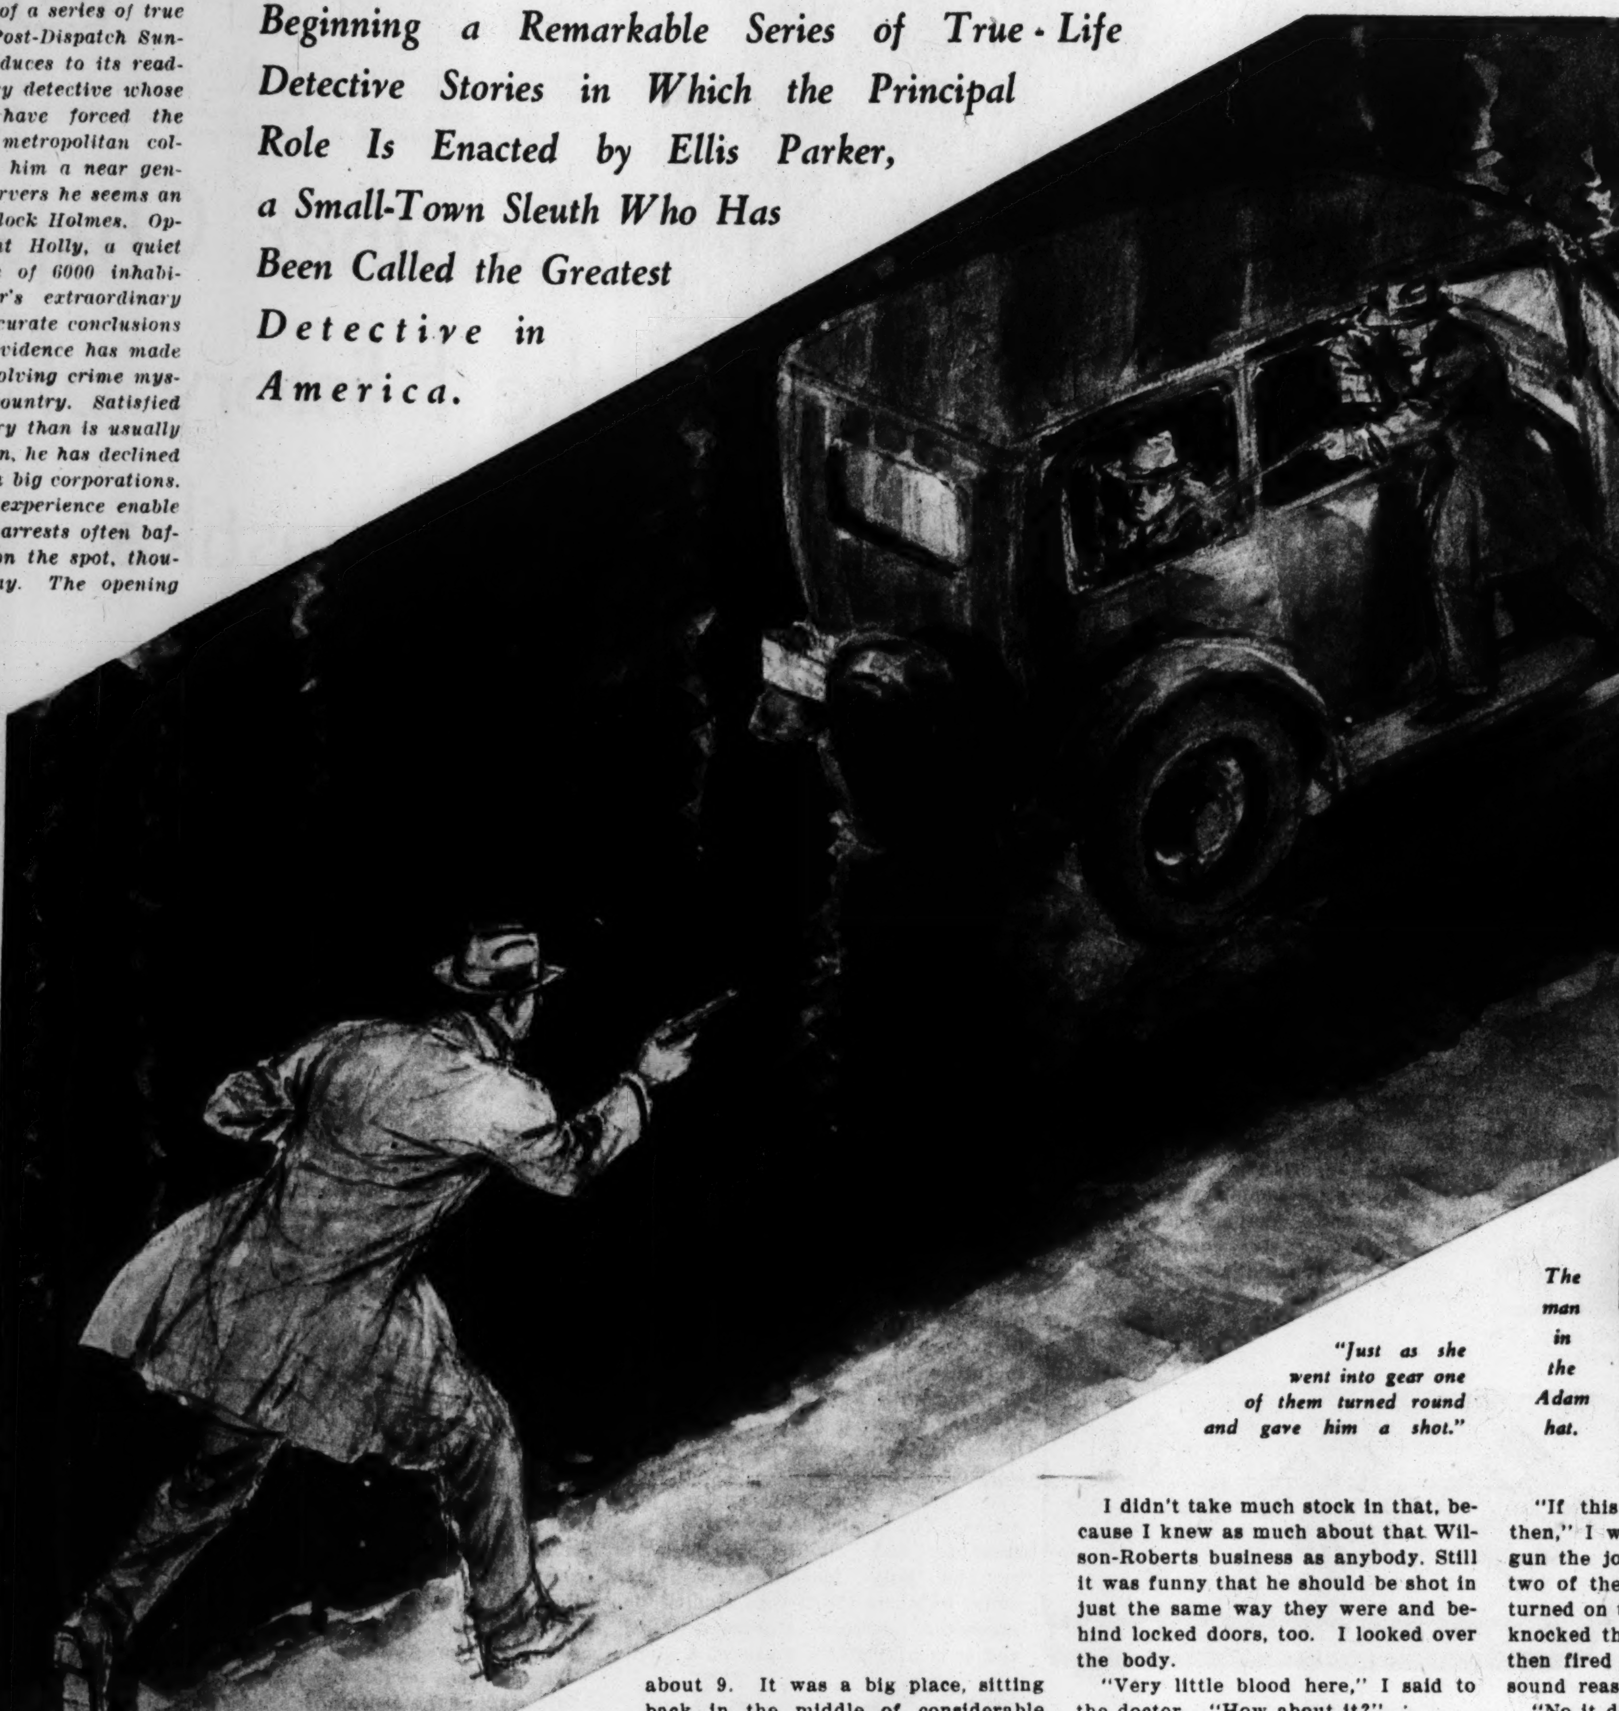
MURDER AFTER DINNER

Beginning a Remarkable Series of True-Life Detective Stories in Which the Principal Role Is Enacted by Ellis Parker, a Small-Town Sleuth Who Has Been Called the Greatest Detective in America.

Ellis Parker.

In this, the first of a series of true crime stories, the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine introduces to its readers a simple country detective whose inductive powers have forced the most able of his metropolitan colleagues to consider him a near genius: to outside observers he seems an incarnation of Sherlock Holmes. Operating from Mount Holly, a quiet New Jersey village of 6000 inhabitants, Ellis Parker's extraordinary ability to induce accurate conclusions from fragmentary evidence has made him invaluable in solving crime mysteries all over the country. Satisfied with a smaller salary than is usually paid rooky policemen, he has declined lucrative offers from big corporations. His many years of experience enable him to bring about arrests often baffling to detectives on the spot, thousands of miles away. The opening story relates how Parker solved, in an unexpected way, the mysterious killing of Bradway Brown.



"Just as she went into gear one of them turned round and gave him a shot."

The man in the Adam hat.

By FLETCHER PRATT

ELLIS PARKER is short, round and gray on top. When he sits in his swivel chair his feet don't touch the floor. He likes hunting, fishing and homemade soup; wears a gray mustache, from beneath which a pipe is usually projecting, and carries, on the end of a chain, one of those old-fashioned knives which includes every instrument from a cigar clipper to a device for removing stones from a horse's hoof. He lives in a tall old brick house, dating from the middle of the Victorian era and furnished in the style to which it has always been accustomed. It is on the main street of Mount Holly, New Jersey, a rather quiet village whose most striking feature is a Quaker meeting house dating back to Colonial days. Mount Holly is the county seat of Burlington County and directly across the street from Ellis Parker's home is a clump of buildings which includes the county courthouse and jail.

That clump of buildings has been the center of Ellis Parker's existence for the last 42 years. During this period of nearly half a century he has been a county detective, and in the course of the 42 years he has handled something over 300 cases, the precise number being not quite certain. In this total of 300-odd crimes—most of which are crimes of violence, for Burlington County has few displays of wealth that would tempt a robber and is populated by shrewd and conservative farmers who make poor targets for a swindler—in this total of over 300 crimes, he has caught and seen convicted all but 12 of the criminals. In seven of these 12 cases he brought into court signed confessions. The seven confessions which the juries refused to credit were by women.

ELLIS PARKER'S total record is thus somewhat ahead of that established by Scotland Yard, and considerably better than that of the French Surete, the Vienna police, and other organizations that are frequently held up as models. He is probably the best detective in America, if not in the world. As to just what this means and just how he does it, let us see.

He was standing in his office, marking something on a bulletin board on the wall when I came in. I looked over his shoulder; it was one of the circulars issued by police departments all over the country when they want a man, and Parker had just written across the face of it—"Solved 4-13-34; convicted 5-23-34." He turned round.

"Hello, there," he said. "Well, that's over. I just got a letter from the other one in the death house. He said: 'You know all about this case. You must know that I didn't fire the shots. Can't you do something for me?' I guess that's quite a tribute, eh?"

"It is. What was the case, anyway?"

"Oh, this Bradway Brown business. He lived on Highland road, over at Palmyra, you know. Wealthy young man, in the manufacturing business over in Philadelphia and lived on this side of the river because he liked it.

"Pretty good case at that. I'll tell you about it, if you want to sit down and listen. It was an outstanding piece of hard work, that case, even if I did get in on it right from the start. You see, in most cases there are certain people who could have done something, but in this one the opportunities were unlimited. Anybody could have shot Bradway Brown, not excluding Bradway Brown himself. In fact, both Dr. Le Faver and Morris Beck, the Police Chief over at Palmyra, thought he did shoot himself.

BECK got hold of me at the Elk's that night, and I remember I had to get Clint Zeller, that's our fingerprint man, away from a moving picture show to take him over. I think a couple of the others went with us. It looked like a big case from the start, because Bradway Brown had been the star witness in the Wilson-Roberts case and was related to one of the people in it.

Now in case you don't remember that I suppose I better go back and tell you a little about it, because it had considerable influence on the case of Bradway Brown. Ruth Wilson and Horace Roberts were Philadelphia society people; they were found shot to death in a room with all the doors and windows locked, a couple of years before the Brown business, and the doctors didn't like the case a bit, because the girl had been shot twice through the heart and Roberts four times through the head. They didn't see how either of them could have fired any more than one shot into him or herself, but I had proved that it was a murder and suicide. Well, you know how people are; there was still a lot of talk about that case, and some people said the truth hadn't all come out and that Bradway Brown knew more than he had ever told.

So as soon as I heard Bradway Brown was shot I knew it was going to be something big, even if it turned out to be suicide. I got to the house about 9. It was a big place, sitting back in the middle of considerable grounds, all lit up when I got there. Brown was in the living room, on his face in the middle of a litter of children's toys, with his left hand sort of stretched out toward a phone on one of those little stands and his right just touching a Holtz .32 revolver. I handed the gun to Clint for fingerprints and turned to Beck for details.

"Shot himself, I guess," said Beck. "All the doors and windows were locked and the lights on. I had to break in."

"How did you hear about it? He's still warm. Did he knock the phone over when he went down?"

"I guess he did, because it was on the floor when I found it, but that wasn't how I heard. There's a witness, a girl named Frances West, living next door. She happened to be looking out the window in this direction and saw the lights go on. A minute later there were a couple of shots and a scream. Thought she saw someone moving around the place, too."

"What do you know about this Brown?"

"Well, he's been around speakeasies boasting that he could tell the real story of that Wilson-Roberts case if he wanted to. He has a wife and a three-year-old baby, but they're both in Florida. You know he was Ruth Wilson's sweetheart once."

I didn't take much stock in that, because I knew as much about that Wilson-Roberts business as anybody. Still it was funny that he should be shot in just the same way they were and behind locked doors, too. I looked over the body.

"Very little blood here," I said to the doctor. "How about it?"

"I noticed that. The hemorrhage might have been internal with that type of wound, however. I should say that the wounds could very well have been self-inflicted. There are burns on the coat around both bullet holes, and all the doors and windows were locked."

"No fingerprints," said Clint just then, but I didn't pay much attention to him. I was busy looking around the room, and Morris got sort of excited. "What are you looking after?" he wanted to know.

"The third bullet," I told him.

"What? What third bullet? There are only two."

"Have a look for yourself. He has a topcoat on. There are two holes just over the left chest, high up—and a third hole lower down, right next to the seam."

"The coat could have been folded."

"But all three have contact burns around them. If the coat was folded the hole that came underneath one of the others wouldn't have any burns around it. Therefore, there must have been three shots. Now that third bullet hasn't hit anything in this room, nor gone through the window or any of the doors. Therefore, the third bullet was not fired in this room, even if the others were."

Dr. Le Faver whistled.

"If this young man shot himself, then," I went on, "he must have begun the job outside somewhere, fired two of the shots, then come in here, turned on the lights, locked the doors, knocked the phone onto the floor and then fired the third shot. Does that sound reasonable?"

"That's hard to get around. However, the lock on that kitchen door is a Yale. But it isn't half as hard to get around as the picture of a suicide committed by sections. And have a look at this gun, will you? The barrel is half-full of cinders. You can't get around that at all. Bradway Brown was murdered outside and brought into this room, because none of the shots could have been fired in here. There's nothing here the gun could pick up cinders from."

AS soon as the point of its being a murder was settled that opened up about a dozen lines of inquiry. I told Clint Zeller to call Doc Remer over at Mount Holly and ask him to come over for an autopsy right away with Le Faver. After that he was to take the car and run the gun in to Philadelphia to have Lieut. George Spangler of the Philly police subject it to ballistic analysis. I wanted to know how many bullets had been fired from it and how recently and whether they checked with the bullets from the body. I put Beck on the family angle, especially with a view to finding out what enemies Brown had. You see the point, don't you? The whole thing looked as though it must have been pretty carefully planned, because the murderer had caught Brown at a time when he was alone in the house, and if that Frances West hadn't looked out her window, nobody would have seen the crime committed. Besides, I had noticed a diamond ring on one of the dead man's fingers; that knocked out the robbery motive. I instructed everybody to tell the reporters it was suicide when they came; we didn't want to give the murderer any warning we were suspicious of him. Then I went outside; if that girl next door had heard shots they must have been fired outside somewhere.

There was a cinder path across the yard leading to the garage. I flashed the light around the lawn for a second, then remembered that if Brown had arrived home early he must have used a car, headed for the garage. Right at the door my flash picked up something.

"There's evidence of a struggle for you," I told Stack of the Palmyra office, who was with us, and pointed to a place where the soft ground was trampled, with a long sliding scar at one side.

The garage was a big one; where the door joined was a padlock, but the hasp had been pulled out, and the mark it left showed fresh wood. Inside there was one car, and a motorboat at one side of the garage, on a set of rollers. I lifted the hood of the bus and laid my hand on the motor. It was still warm, confirming the evidence of the body that we were on the job in jig time after the killing. Just then Stack gave an exclamation:

"Here's your third bullet," he said, pointing to the motorboat, and I saw a long, fresh sliver had been plowed up, ending in a hole through the mahogany prow of the craft.

The more I looked at that evidence, the more peculiar it seemed. I could figure out the sequence of events in the murder easily enough—the killer had brought out the gun, fired a shot that went through Brown's coat and into the motorboat. Brown dived for the door, trying to get away—or perhaps it was the murderer who tried to get away. In any case, there had been another grapple outside and two more shots. That accounted for all the evidence—the fact that Frances West had heard only two shots, the presence of the third shot in the garage and the traces of a struggle as well as the cinders in the gun barrel, which the murderer would have dropped when he bent to pick up Brown and carry him into the house. But there were still several unknowns; I noted down that Frances West must be asked whether the lights went on in the Brown house before the shots or after the shots. If it was after, it might conceivably mean that Brown had arranged a meeting with the murderer in the garage, therefore a secret meeting, which opened up all sorts of possibilities.

In the hope of getting light on this angle of the case, I searched the garage carefully. From beneath the motorboat I rescued two hats. One was a nearly new Stetson with BB in it. That would be Brown's, all right. The other was worthy of more attention; it was a 6¾ instead of Brown's 6⅞, and had been worn so long that even the maker's name was obliterated, leaving only the letters PH in the sweatband. The size eliminated the possibility it might belong to Brown; it was lying half over the Stetson, so evidently it had been placed there after Brown's hat. Therefore, it must belong to the murderer. I rushed it also into Philadelphia for microscopic analysis and then went home and to bed. There wasn't anything more we could do till we had some information.

IN the morning we began to get it from all angles. Spangler, in Philadelphia, reported that the bullets which killed Brown had come from the Holtz .32 and that it had been fired during the last 24 hours. But that was all the gun could tell; the numbers had been filed off. The microscopist said the hat had been worn by a man with blond hair who suffered from dandruff; that made it certain that the hat belonged to the murderer, for Brown was a brunette. Beck, however, had the most sensational information. He had been tracing Brown's movements. The young man had had a date to dine with his mother in Riverton about 7. At 5 in the afternoon, he had received a mysterious phone call in his office. As soon as he hung up the receiver he called up his mother and canceled the dinner appointment. Beck had failed to trace the call, but the result made it look very much like confirmation of the idea of a secret meeting.

I told him to keep on after Brown's back trail. Myself, there wasn't anything I could do but follow up the two clews we had—the hat and the .32 Holtz. I tried the hat first, figuring

Another Chapter In the History of the Swastika

Called the "Earliest Known Symbol," It Has Been Used at Different Times as an Emblem by Peoples All Over the Earth.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Staff

PARTLY in response to several American demonstrations and gestures in which the flag of the Nazi party was insulted by anti-Fascist groups in New York and elsewhere, Chancellor Adolf Hitler recently declared the swastika the official emblem of the German realm—"in gratitude to the movement under whose symbol Germany regained her freedom." Thus the symbol which the National Socialists adopted in 1923, shortly after their organization, has become the officially accepted emblem of all that is "Aryan" in Germany.

By no criterion relating to its origin can the swastika be said to have any relation to a peculiarly German culture, however. Apparently it has occurred as an important element in the ancient symbolism of almost every people. The Tibetans, the plains Indians of America, the ancient Greeks, the Chinese, the pre-historic inhabitants of all parts of Europe and the later Romans—all used the emblem to signify something, or just as an element in conventional design.

But to Hitler, when he explained its significance, it had another meaning. It was a "pure Aryan" symbol, he said. And within his curious interpretation of that word there is, oddly enough, an accidental relevance in this, for among the few peoples who failed to discover the ornamental possibilities of the emblem were the inhabitants of ancient Egypt, Assyria, Babylon and Palestine. To Hitler the symbol stands for the superiority of the "Aryan race." Scientists have remained as stubborn as the facts in refuting both the Nazi allegations regarding the Germanic origin of the swastika and the assumption that there is any such thing as an Aryan race. These things may make—and have made—excellent propaganda. But the swastika has nothing more to do with Berlin than with Lhasa; the word Aryan, since it applies not to a race but to a language, might just as properly be applied to English-speaking Liberian Negroes, Basques, Armenians or Frenchmen. To explain this point, it is necessary to sketch briefly the origin of Nazi-ism's Aryan theory:

WHEN the western world first became aware of the kinship of Sanskrit to modern languages, one of the greatest scholars in this field was Max Mueller. He introduced the term "Aryan," as applied to a group of languages, and once, in a momentary lapse, referred also to an "Aryan race." The idea, with its suggestion of primordial superiority, appealed to various romantic but unscientific writers, who began a cult that persisted through the years and now has grown to the racial fanaticism that colors all politics, culture and society in modern Germany. Mueller realized his error and its results, but his repudiation, in 1888, is forgotten: "Aryans are those who speak Aryan languages, whatever their color, whatever their blood. In calling them Aryans, we predicate nothing of them except that the grammar of their language is Aryan."

As a sun symbol on a Greek vase: The geese are also solar emblems.

The swastika's early use by Aryan-speaking aborigines is the basis of its choice as the German symbol. It is true that it has been found in these peoples' remains in the Indus Valley, dating back to about 1000 B. C. But excavations since the Aryan cult was founded disprove the theory that the swastika was their invention. In 1931, the Archeological Survey of India announced the finding of seals bearing the swastika sign in the ruins of Mohenjo Daro and Harappa—dating back 1500 years before the Aryans invaded India. It is supposed that these ruins are of cities of the Dravidians, a non-Aryan-speaking race. Dr. W. Norman Brown, professor of Sanskrit at the University of Pennsylvania, says definitely in his pamphlet on this subject: "The swastika is one of the many minor borrowings which the Indo-Europeans made from their neighbors."

As to the actual origin of the swastika, either its birthplace or the manner of its beginning, that is a matter scientists have debated endlessly and fruitlessly. "The earliest known symbol," Thomas Wilson of the National Museum at Washington called it in his exhaustive treatise, published in 1896, and the verdict stands. From all quarters of the globe, and in all periods of history—even in pre-history—specimens have been found—engraved on coins, painted on vases, carved on weapons and religious images. Because of its universality, the League of Nations, soon after its founding, considered adopting the swastika as its emblem. Had it done so, Germany's banner today would bear some other sign, considering Hitler's antipathy for the League and its works.

AS A GOOD-LUCK charm, the swastika had a vogue in this country while Hitler was still painting houses in Austria. A superstition had it that a swastika in reverse, that is, with its top arm pointing to the left, was a sign of ill-fortune. And long before Hitler's day, the swastika had been esteemed variously as a magic sign, as a symbol of fire and water, wind and rain, lightning and thunder, of the four points of the compass, of the sun and moon, as a trade mark and a decoration, a symbol of the four castes of India and of Thor's hammer, a holy talisman, a conventionalized octopus or a bird in flight, a sign of fruitfulness, of resignation and of immortality, a crude rendering of a constellation. In India, China and Japan today, it means long life and good fortune. Its name comes from the Sanskrit "suastika," meaning "of good fortune," but the symbol itself is older than the name. Other names for it are gammadion and fylfot.

An interesting sidelight on the swastika's modern use is its adoption by Rudyard Kipling as his personal trademark, from its and his own link with India. It appears on the title pages of his books, but it is reported he has ordered his publisher to omit it in future, to prevent any possible association with Nazi-ism.

In the distinctly non-Aryan lands of the Orient, the swastika is widely known, both in modern handiwork like Persian rugs and ancient remains. The symbol is associated with Buddha, and figures particularly in the holy footprints of that deity, which to the devout signify his presence. Japanese statues bear it, and it is a symbolic mark of ancient Chinese porcelain. Says one investigator with more positiveness than accuracy: "The symbol is thoroughly Chinese." In Tibet, the swastika is placed on the breasts of the dead, and is used as a tattoo mark. The rock walls of ancient Buddhist caves in India bear the symbol, many times repeated, and it appears on the oldest medals of this religion. Jain shrines display it today, and worshipers there make the sign of the swastika as the Catholic makes the sign of the cross.

Schliemann's excavations in ancient Troy produced thousands of swastikas, some rudimentary, others perfect in execution, on spindles, vases and metal ornaments, dating back to about 2000 B. C. In the Caucasus, ancient metal work carries the motif. It was used on the Hittites' robes, and appears on the tomb of King Midas of Phrygia. African specimens of the symbol are found on a tomb and other relics in Algeria, on bronze ingots in Ashanti and in tattoo marks and decorations of various primitive tribes.

IN EUROPE, the swastika was in widespread use during the Bronze Age and after. Fine Etruscan metal work, vases and vessels of Greece and its isles, wall paintings in Pompeii, pottery from Swiss lake dwellings, iron spearheads from Germany, a French altar, bone carvings found in Belgium, Scandinavian brooches, bronze pins from Scotland, urns from England—all bear the swastika, whether their makers were "Aryan" or Mediterranean, Gallic or Norse or Roman.

The sources could be catalogued endlessly, but the exceptions are interesting as well. As said before, the swastika design is not found in ancient Egypt, Assyria, Palestine or Babylon. When found in these countries the emblem is invariably of Greek origin. Christian countries of medieval times also did not use the swastika.

In aboriginal America, the symbol was widespread, and continues today as a favorite design for Navajo Indian rugs, beadwork and pottery. The swastika has been found in many regions: on artifacts buried by Tennessee and Ohio mound builders, on beaded baskets from Kansas, ornamented Pueblo gourds and pottery from Arkansas. In Mexico and Central and South America as well, the emblem persists. One observer finds a startling similarity between images bearing swastikas made by Brazilian tribes and others unearthed at Troy.

Did the swastika have a central origin and was it carried over the world by pre-historic travelers? Or did its use develop spontaneously in all the remote regions where it is found? These are the questions that the scientists debate, with no decision save a leaning to a compromise verdict that both causes played a part. Hitler, as he rallies his battalions under it, at any rate can claim no monopoly on a symbol that has played a world-wide and all-time role in art, religion, commerce and war, from the topless towers of Ilium to the tourist trade of a Western Indian reservation.

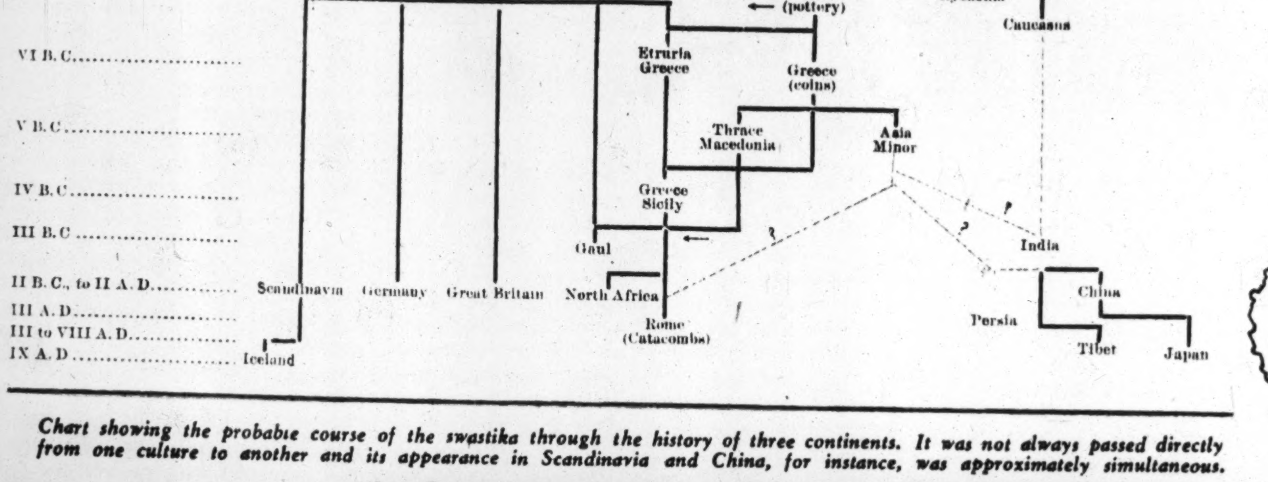

Chart showing the probable course of the swastika through the history of three continents. It was not always passed directly from one culture to another and its appearance in Scandinavia and China, for instance, was approximately simultaneous.

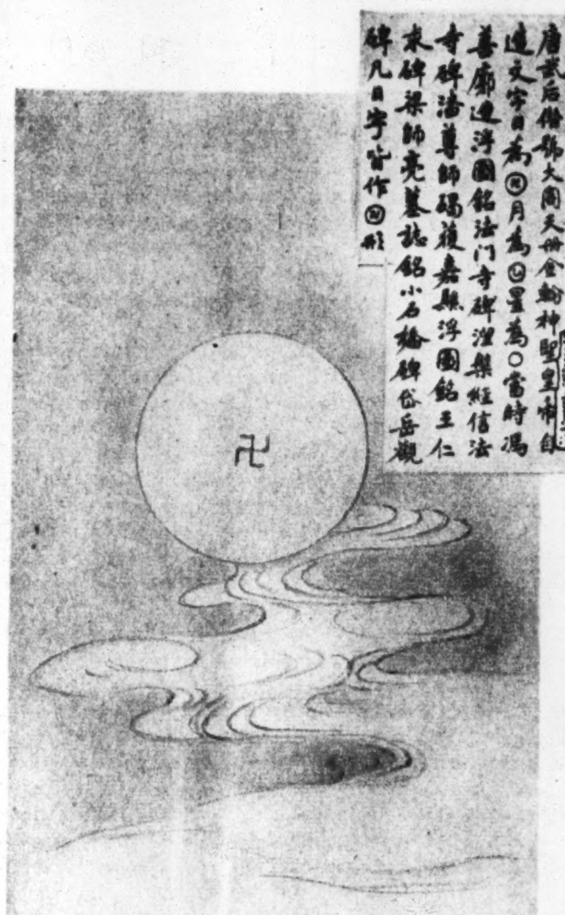
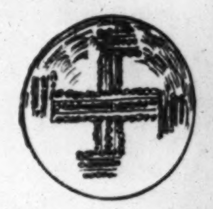
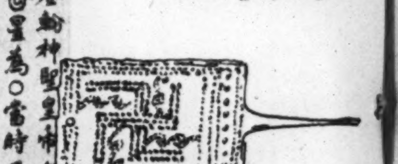


In the seventh century A. D. Empress Wu of China decreed it to be the symbol for the sun.



On a Bronze Age clay bobbin found in Bologna, Italy.



On the enlarged head of a bronze pin found in a Bavarian mound and dating back to the Bronze Age.

As used by the Gauls: The decoration of a pre-Roman altar found in the French Pyrenees.

CHARLES BICKFORD, one of the half dozen or so genuine he-man stars of the movies, has just come through a terrifying experience for the sake of art—cinema art. A more or less playful but full grown lion tried to bite Mr. Bickford's head off during the making of a picture and pretty nearly succeeded. That the lion was humiliated and chagrined afterwards—either by his attempt or his failure to make entirely good—is small consolation for the actor who will be ready to act again shortly, after several weeks in the hospital. The lion, Tarzan by name, who has been appearing in films ever since he was a cub, will continue his life's work, too. In fact he has been photographed in scenes in the picture play since he forgot himself for the moment and went primeval, or Hollywood, or something.

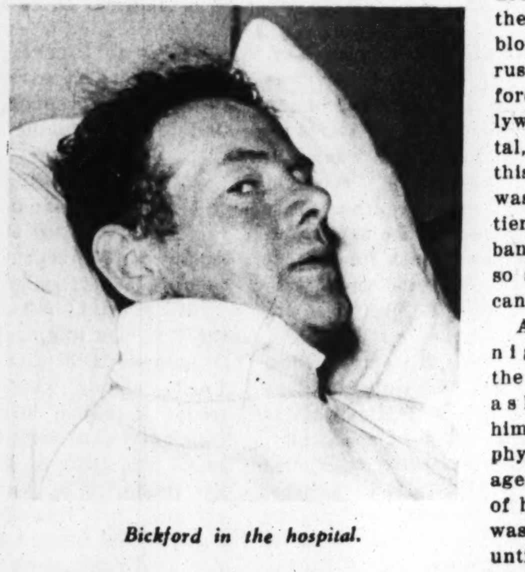
It all came about during the making of a picture called "East of Java" taken from the story "Tiger Island" by Gouverneur Morris, on the lot of the Universal Studios in Burbank, California. Bickford plays an American gangster who has slipped away to British East Africa with a price on his head. Forced to make another quick move when a warrant for his arrest arrives from America Bickford ships on a little freighter which has a large cargo of wild beasts in charge of an animal trainer who is "bringing them back alive." The gangster makes friends with one of the biggest lions—Tarzan, none other—and when the ship is wrecked and they all have to battle for their lives with the beasts on a desert island, Tarzan finds his friend wounded and revives him by licking his face. A sort of Androcles and the Lion affair vaguely similar to George Bernard Shaw's play.

That was where the accident happened which almost cost Bickford his head. Tarzan, a large, docile looking beast, had been put through his paces several times in rehearsing the scene and gone through it letter perfect. Director George Melford was satisfied; Charlie Bickford, who had seen Tarzan well fed with raw meat a few minutes before, was satisfied, and apparently all was well with the lion. So Bickford took his place on the "jungle" ground. Tarzan was told by his trainer, Charles Murphy, to do his stuff. Tarzan walked over to the prostrate actor, leaned over him and then, instead of licking his face, bit him in the neck.

It was almost a fatal nip for the beast's great teeth just missed severing Bickford's jugular vein. With blood spurting in a stream Bickford, unconscious, rolled over on his back and the lion climbed on top of him.

In the confusion Director Milford, Trainer Murphy and the camera man—he kept right on shooting to get some pretty remarkable photographs—alone kept their heads. Milford held back an assistant trainer who started to rush in with a pitchfork while Murphy, advancing on the beast, shouted, but not angrily, "Tarzan, Tarzan, come here."

It was the only thing to do Murphy explained afterwards. If the lion had been stung by the pitchfork or even by a whip he would probably have killed Bickford then and there before turning on his assailants. But when he heard his name called he looked up, surprised, and then, springing over Bickford's body, he slunk, rather shamefaced, to Murphy and allowed himself to be "roped" with a stout cable which is always kept handy in animal acts. Without the least show of resistance he was led into his cage where he settled down apparently ashamed of what he had done—or failed to do.



Bickford in the hospital.

Now all the movie studios have hospitals on their lots. First aid stations with a doctor and a nurse in attendance. About all they ever have to do is take charge of minor accidents to studio workmen, and a lion bite was a new experience. But the doctor stopped the flow of blood and then rushed Bickford to the Hollywood Hospital, where, at this writing, he was still a patient with his bandaged neck so stiff that he cannot move it.

And that night Tarzan the Tame, still ashamed of himself, Murphy says, managed to get out of his cage. He was not missed until the next morning when a startled workman found him under a New England church "set" on the lot. Murphy took him back to his cage again without a struggle. Two days later he was acting once more. Murphy says he will never bite any one again but Bickford isn't so certain. "They will have to look out for that cat from now on," he told us from his hospital cot. "Once a wild beast gets the taste of human blood, and he got plenty of mine, he is never the same again."

"Nobody can explain why Tarzan attacked," Bickford went on. "Apparently he was merely reverting to his natural instincts. But I would advise anybody who has future contact with him to be constantly on his guard for Tarzan will be a killer from now on. He has enjoyed the thrill of attacking a human and from now on no one will be safe in his company."

TARZAN was but a cub when he was bought by Universal for use in "The Big Cage," the sensational animal film in which Clyde Beatty, famous wild animal trainer, was starred. When this picture was completed Tarzan was turned over to the Los Angeles Zoological Gardens and when filming of "East of Java" was started he was brought back to the studio for this picture. Born in captivity, Tarzan always had been extremely docile and tractable.

"Nobody can be blamed for the accident," Bickford says. "It was just one of those things that cannot be anticipated or prevented. Strangely enough, I had a premonition that the cat was going to attack but it happened so quickly I could do nothing to prevent it."

"In your adventuresome life doubtless you have suffered many accidents," it was suggested.

"No, I haven't," he replied, "And I have never been bitten by a lion before and hope I will never have the experience again."

Yet, as soon as he was able, Bickford was to return to the studio and complete the scenes that were interrupted by Tarzan's attack! And Tarzan, not another lion, will work with him. Needless to say, the utmost precautions will be taken to make sure Tarzan will not renew the attack.

Despite the pain that occasionally brought a wince and an involuntary gasp to his lips, Bickford recalled certain features of his experience with amusement. To supply him with a laugh his nurse, Isabel Edmundson, had brought him his chart.

"What do you suppose was the description they had put on it when I was brought in?" he chuckled. "It was, 'well developed man, heavily bearded type.' "

Through the requirements of his role Bickford had let his beard grow and his face was covered with a thick stubble that matched his fiery hair. When the ambulance rushed him to the hospital he probably looked as little like a famous movie star as anybody possibly could.

"I got a great kick out of being the first 'lion bite case' ever registered at the Hollywood Hospital," Bickford said. "And can you imagine that before I had been here an hour the hospital received a cable from a London newspaper requesting full details of my condition?"

The MIRAGE Over Marseilles

Scientific Explanation of a Phenomenon That Never Ceases to Be Astonishing.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

THE inhabitants of Marseilles were recently astonished by the specter of Mount Canigou suddenly looming above the horizon across the Gulf of Lions—big as life. Although this has happened before, it never ceases to be astonishing. For Canigou, at the eastern extremity of the Pyrenees, in the section of Roussilon, has an altitude of only 9137 feet. It is 35 miles inland from the Mediterranean coast and separated from the southern French seaport by another 135 miles of water. A mathematically straight line from the quay at Marseilles to the very summit of Canigou would pass 400 feet below the surface of the sea. What happens in these cases is that the image of the mountain is projected hundreds of feet into the air, so that it actually towers up over the sea, so much magnified in size that it seems almost within swimming distance of the city across the wide bay. This is one of the most spectacular of the several types of mirage. Technically it is known to students of the science of atmospheric optics as looming. One famous example is the phenomenon at the Brocken, a peak in the Harz Mountains of Saxony. The Brocken specter involves the projection of much enlarged and distorted human figures into the misty air above the mountain and has brought into being an elaborate mythology, much of which is contained in the Walpurgisnacht scene of Goethe's "Faust."

Although the mechanics of what takes place in looming are extremely complex, the phenomenon can be explained in a vague sort of way by saying that it is the result of light rays passing through atmospheric layers, which, because of their varying heat and density, do not carry them in a straight line. Anyone who has carefully examined a pair of ground spectacles of a certain type knows how light can be refracted by a transparent material of a different "refractive index" from that of the air. Like glass, various conditions of air have various refractive indexes. Image-bearing light rays passing through them may be carried in a curved line following the curve of the earth's surface. And that is how the image of the mountain was carried 170 miles across land and sea to the people of Marseilles. That it seemed so close was largely owing to the fact that it was raised to an altitude involuntarily associated with nearness. Visitors to mountainous sections are continually baffled by the seeming proximity of very high peaks; they set out calmly, intending to reach a mountain 10 miles away and return before tea. But in the case of Mount Canigou, the image may actually have been enlarged by the magnifying glass of the curved air layers. Arctic explorers have often found looming to be an invaluable telescopic periscope, enabling them to see great distances.

There are numerous possibilities when conditions favoring the appearance of a mirage occur. It causes distant objects to disappear as well as to appear, raises visible objects, obscures intervening ones, distorts shapes. One type has become proverbial for its trick of spreading delusive lakes before the eyes of thirsty desert travelers. But regardless of the kind of phenomenon, all mirages have the same basic cause. When light rays, ordinarily a trifle bent by contact with the atmosphere around the earth, meet sections of air having unusually varied patterns of density—usually owing to abnormal conditions of heat and moisture—they are bound to cause distortions of some sort. The natural effect of passing through natural atmospheric layers causes the moon or the sun to appear magnified at rising and setting. But phenomenal conditions have made the sun set, then appear again well above the horizon and repeat itself. Double sunsets are about as spectacular as any form of the spectacle of looming.

Mirage is common over the hot plains of Mesopotamia, where, during the campaigns of the World War, fighting frequently had to be suspended because the gunners could no longer see their targets on account of abnormal refraction. In one case, described in the British official history of the war, Turkish detachments took flight when a mirage greatly magnified the apparent size of the attacking force. In another, Turkish prisoners reported that the attack in which they had been captured had been a complete surprise, owing to the fact that mirage concealed the advancing British troops.

Mirage in days gone by was a means of profitable fraud on the thirsty plains of Kansas, according to a story related by one Ham Bell, a pioneer inhabitant of Dodge City, to the local observer of the Weather Bureau.

"I came to Kansas in 1872," he said, "landing one night in Ellsworth. The next morning I engaged a cab driver to take me to Great Bend, a distance of 45 miles. He charged me $45—a dollar a mile—and demanded payment in advance. The excuse given for this exorbitant charge was the danger that would attend the crossing of a lake, which could be seen in the distance, and which he said his team would have to wade. The lake was only a mirage, but the rascally driver had my money before I found it out."

On June 14, 1907, passengers on the liner Philadelphia of the American Line, reported having witnessed an unusual mirage at sea. Cutting through a sea like glass and under a clear sky, 25 miles off the starboard bow was the French liner La Lorraine, bound for the same port. The vessel could not be seen, but her smoke was making a blot on the horizon. A slight mist gathered just above the smoke and there appeared in the sky a perfect picture of the French liner. The reflection was an inverted vessel sailing across the sky. So clear was the vision that passengers on the Philadelphia could make out a ship's officer pacing the bridge. The reflection lasted an hour and a half, disappearing as if the mirror had been smashed.

Major Martin, the army flyer, who fell in the Aleutian Islands, ascribed his mishap to a deceptive mirage, which led him from his route by changing the apparent face of his surroundings. Perplexing eccentricities of light, peculiarly disconcerting to the airman, have been known to exist over Alaskan waters for some time. In October, 1891, the American barquentine Steadfast was wrecked on the Island of St. Croix while bound from Trinidad for Philadelphia with a cargo of asphalt. Her loss is alleged to have been due to a mirage, which caused the island to appear as though many miles away, although the vessel was actually close to the reefs.

A THRILLING aerial battle was witnessed about 25 years ago in Germany. One March day the villagers of Doerzbach and Ober-Ginsbach, in Wuerttemberg, were startled to see a bright red streak appear in the sky. On this could be observed a landscape with field, streams and woods, among which two bodies of troops in battle formation were advancing toward each other, firing volleys. The puffs of smoke were clearly visible. The superstitious were alarmed, the skeptical puzzled; then suddenly the picture disappeared. Next day the explanation appeared in the newspapers. A sham fight had been held by the garrison at the town of Mergentheim, 20 miles distant, and its appearance in the sky was due to mirage.

Stefansson, in an account of his travels north of the Arctic Circle, says:

"At most seasons one is considerably troubled with mirages, perhaps more in summer than winter, but in winter also. On my hunts at this time I was frequently deceived, not so much by the appearance of objects out of all natural proportion, but more especially by their apparent motion, and their disappearances and reappearances on the level snow surface. The mountains inland were visible, and were continually changing their shapes, but they looked unlike real mountains. More frequently they simulated the water-front appearance of New York skyscrapers, even to chimneys and whiffs of smoke. They would continually change their shape and order, and at times seemed to be marching in single file either to the east or west."

The mirages that thus involve extensive distortion and also undergo rapid changes are classified as "fata morgana." The name originated along the shore of the Straits of Messina, where such displays are occasionally seen, but the phenomenon is much commoner in other parts of the world, especially in polar regions.

A spectacular display of fata morgana was seen in 1882 from the Brazilian frigate Parnahyba off the coast of Patagonia, in about latitude 50 south. The vessel was carrying a scientific expedition to Punta Arenas to observe the transit of Venus. The official narrative of the expedition says:

"After midday the wind fell, the temperature rose, and the air became unusually transparent and pure. The coast, from which we were not far distant, took the most varied and strange forms. Sometimes its height was greatly exaggerated, sometimes the salient points, the hills, appeared turned upside down, or lost in the space between the lowest clouds, like the fantastic visions of a dream. One could not distinguish sea from sky, and the froth of the waves resembled flaky cirri dotted on the blue heavens. At one time the reflected images of the hills took the shape of ships arranged in regular order and engaged in gunnery practice; the reflections of the solar rays, darting in all directions, represented the flashes of the guns."

Some parts of the world are famous for their mirages. One of these is known as the Rann of Cutch, the great salt-impregnated plain on the northwest coast of India and intermittently under water. According to legend, a pious King once reigned here, when the country was fertile. He had, we are told, succeeded so completely in restoring a golden reign of virtue that his capital, purified from all that was unclean or offensive, was in gradual process of elevation to heaven, when a forgotten donkey, regarded by the Hindus as a most unclean animal, betrayed his presence in an outhouse by braying. The elevation of the city then stopped, and it has ever since wandered uneasily between earth and heaven over the district.

A peculiar variety of mirage is often observed in a certain district of the island of Crete, especially in the late spring. Toward sunrise shadowy figures are seen moving over a plain near the seashore. The peasants call them "drossulties" ("men of the dew") and say that they are the ghosts of some Greek volunteers who were cut to pieces by Turkish troops during an insurrection in 1828. The more prosaic scientific explanation is that they are the result of the irregular refraction of light by a stream of cold air draining down from the adjacent mountains.

DISPLAYS of mirage are sometimes so bewildering and real that it is no wonder they should in all ages have given rise to myths and legends. When a superstitious old salt looks up from his holystone to see a distant ship sailing over the horizon take right off into the clouds, second by second, is it any wonder he should shout to his mates that he's seen the Flying Dutchman? That is just how that forecastle yarn—and a hundred like it—originated. The illusion it involves is known as the superior mirage. During the Crimean War the entire British fleet was seen to jump into the sky by this means. A picture of it later was published in the Illustrated London News.

The so-called desert mirage, which gives the illusion of water puddles or lakes, is by no means limited to deserts. When the eye is at the right level, it can be seen at any time on the lid of a hot stove. And on hot days the mirage thus formed over highways is quite familiar to all motorists, especially on the Middle Western plains. Dr. C. F. Brooks of Harvard University has this to say about the optical illusion he calls the highway mirage:

"On a very clear day, when the sun's rays burn fiercely upon the asphalt or other hard road, its surface becomes greatly heated and a thin layer of very hot air forms upon it. The stratum above it is much cooler. The difference in density between the two layers is so great that the light rays are bent upward, the refraction acting in effect as would a mirror. The motorist does not see the highway's surface but the sky as if reflected in that surface. Were such conditions perfect, clouds might be seen 'reflected' as in a body of water, and the illusion thus still further increased. Indeed, the parts of an approaching car or pedestrian may at such times be visible only above a height of three feet, with an inverted reflection below."

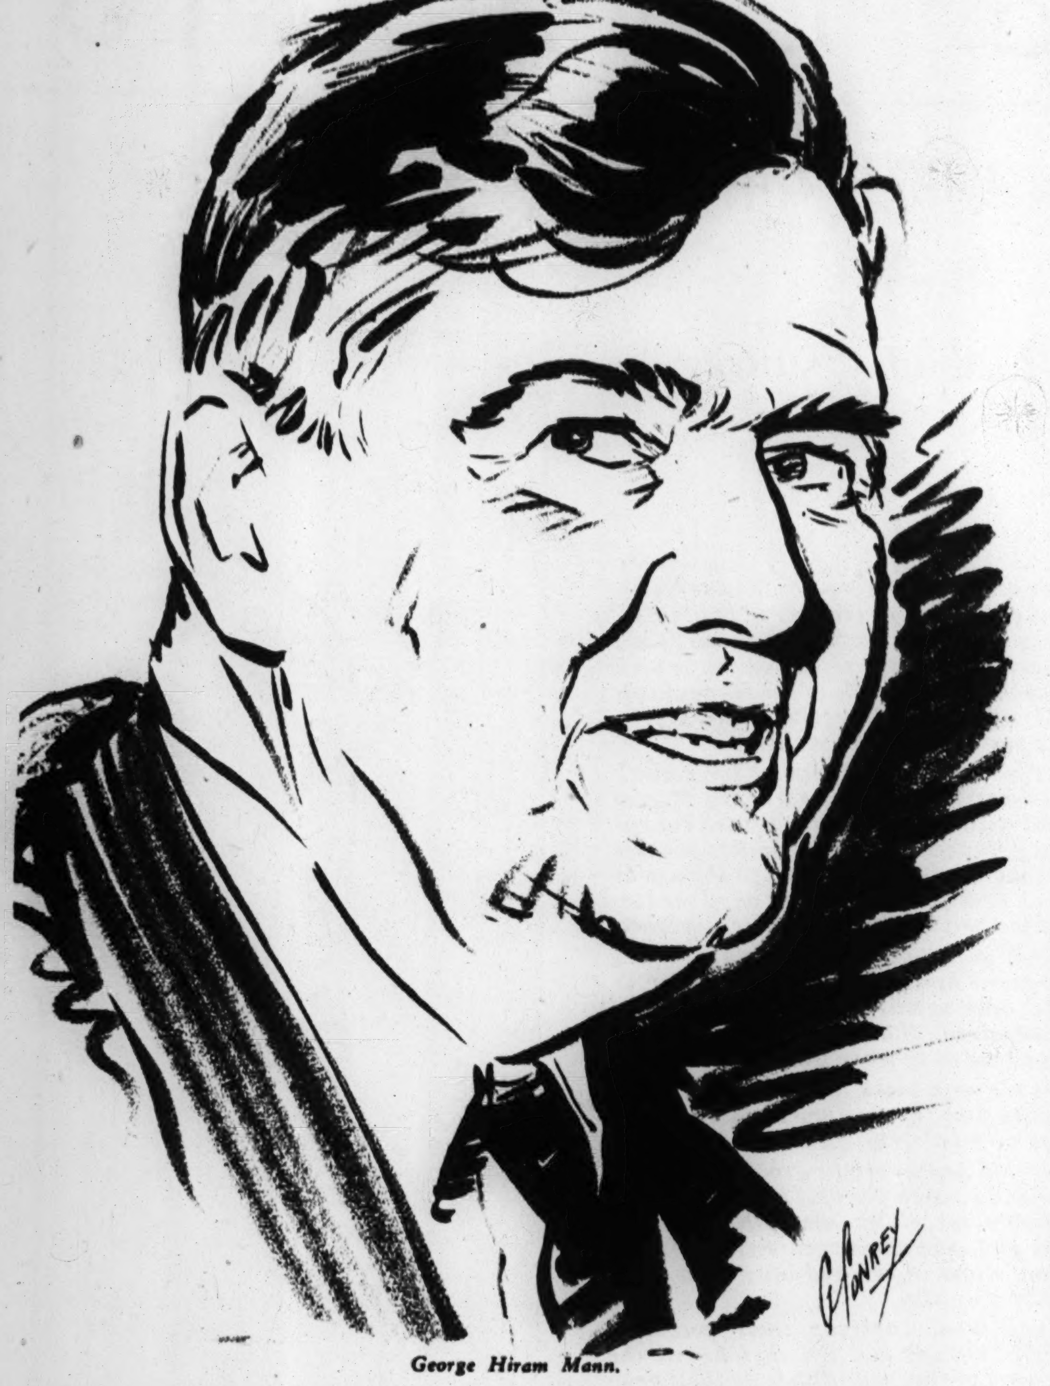
NEW YORK.

> NAVYITES paid ancient debt! Now beat New Deal!—MANN.

THIS insignificant classified ad, which appeared recently in the New York Times, was the victory cry of one of the world's demon crusaders and his battle yell for a new joust.

For more than 25 years George Hiram Mann, lawyer, has had a sideline which has dominated his life—his fight to make Uncle Sam pay $322,000, due Navy laborers for overtime run up between 1878 and 1882. In pamphlets, in street corner harangues, in paid advertisements which have mystified a generation of readers—Mann has plugged at his pet cause. It rather took his breath away when the last Congress, in its rushed final session, decided to pay the bill.

A checkup showed that not one of the 1377 workers for whom Mann struggled so valiantly is alive today. But their heirs and assigns will cash in on the appropriation. Mann, having recovered his aplomb, is now out to wreck the New Deal. He describes himself as a Tory and a "black William McKinley Republican."



George Hiram Mann.

Mann's campaign for his beloved Navyites has cost him between $15,000 and $20,000, most of it spent on newspaper advertising. He started advertising about 20 years ago, buying good-sized chunks of display space at first. Later he contented himself with classified exhortations. They appeared several times a week in the Public Notice department of the Times and the Herald Tribune.

The ads were never the same. Mann has a flair for alliteration, and he exercised it ad lib in his appeals. Few readers knew who the Navyites were. Fewer cared. But the ads popped up, sometimes every day in the week. Frequently they were topical. They were much prized by inveterate readers of the Public Notices, fitting well alongside such perennial gems as: "Hymie. Nothing matters. Wire or call. Minnie." "We buy old gold, silver, etc.," and "Heirs to Irish estate wanted."

A few of Mann's ads follow:

"Kings! Khans! Khedives! Kulaks! Kalamazoons! Unpaid Navyites ask justice. Hiram Mann."

"Jewelers! Joksters! Junkmen! Jerseyites! Pay navy workers. Mann."

"Keep America American! Pay Navyites $322,000. Mann."

Explaining the frequency of the insertions, Mann says "I just put one in every time I had a couple of extra dollars in my pocket."

Here's how the Navyite situation got started. From 1878 to 1882, when George Hiram Mann was wearing short pants out in the Michigan backwoods, navy laborers in 10 yards were forced to work 10 hours a day instead of eight. The Government promised to pay the overtime when the right appropriation was made, but never seemed to get round to it.

MANN was a struggling New York lawyer when he took up the cudgels in 1909. It was the prospect of a fat fee that first interested him but later it just grew into a hobby. What brought the matter to his attention in 1909 was a ruling by the Court of Claims that the wages were a just lien on the Government. To Mann, 1377 clients were worth stringing along with.

He found otherwise, but his ardor never cooled. His first efforts to collect were repelled by bored congressional committees. Mann began making speeches on curbstones. He wrote pamphlets and annoyed editors with verbose broadsides, telegrams and letters. Then he began to advertise.

On a justice-for-Navyites platform, he had a fling at running for Congress. He got less than a sprinkling of votes. Eight times he carried his case to the voters in congressional elections. His top poll was 776 votes. Nobody gave a hoot for the Navyites, but many people came to look for the challenging ads signed "Hiram Mann," or just plain "Mann," as if everyone ought to know who Mann was.

No one noticed when Congress finally okayed the Navyite bill. But Mann saw that the victory got due notice. To reporters who came to his office at 77 Wall Street, on his invitation, he said: "I'd have spent a lot more money on it, if I had had it. It's cheaper than yachts and booze and women; and no headaches."

Since a New Deal Congress had responded after polite yawns by many Republican predecessors, some thought that Mann, now 63 years old, would toss an orchid at the White House and settle down to enjoy the fruits of his victory. The recent act awards 10 per cent to attorneys "who performed services towards securing provision for payment herein," and Mann is entitled to half of that—about $16,000.

Instead, the graying lawyer sharpened a pencil and wrote out this ad for the Public Notice columns:

> GALACTODENDRON Growers! Philoprogenetics! Butchers! Delicatessen! Read "Pork Prices Explained." Translates New Deal dreams. Nickel. Hiram Mann, 77 Wall.

JACK ALEXANDER

FROM COWBOY to VIOLIN EXPERT

FROM herding cows on the Panhandle to becoming acknowledged as one of America's foremost authorities on rare violins is certainly a wide gully for a man to straddle. But Jay Freeman did it. Today there is no trace of the cowboy in the suave and sophisticated rotund man to whose judgment Jascha Heifitz, Mischa Elman and Albert Spalding listen respectfully. Yet, if he hadn't been a cowboy, he never would have attained his present prominince.

In his youth he left his native Chicago in the 1880s for a life out of doors in the West. He found what he wanted in Texas. Evenings around the camp fire, the wranglers were entertained by the fiddling of Rastus, the Negro cook. Becoming fascinated at the manner by which he drew bow across the strings and brought forth "Arkansas Traveler," "Turkey in the Straw," "The Cowboy's Lament," he asked Rastus for lessons.

In no time at all he knew all the cook could teach him of music. Rastus' graduation address to his pupil was, "Yo' is good as I am, kid." But that wasn't good enough for the boy. He was really fascinated by the violin now—not only by its music, but also by its construction.

Returning to Chicago, he became apprenticed to a violin maker. The whole business of violin making fascinated him so much that he devoted every waking minute to studying the subject. Learning about the history and construction of the instrument soon meant more to him than becoming a great virtuoso himself.

So expert did he become at judging the age and tonal quality of violins that in 1890, at the age of 22, he was commissioned to go to Europe to find and buy rare old instruments.

"In those days," he explained, "there were few rare violins in America, chiefly because of the extremely high import duty on them under the classification of antiques. When I understood the situation, I worked to have the tariff regulation changed. A tariff should protect our manufacturers only from direct competition. But certainly in youthful America there were no rare old violins being made. Finally the law was changed to allow genuine antiques over a certain age to come in duty free. That permitted so many fine instruments to come in that today America owns more genuine Stradivari and Guarnieri than all the rest of the world."

Curator of one of the most important collections of violins in the world, that owned by the Rudolph Wurlitzer Company of New York, Freeman knows the history and tonal peculiarities of every one of his charges, which are housed on shelves in a specially built vault. There, in rows, were samples of the handiwork of such famous makers as Amati, Stradivari, Guarnerius and Henry Jacobs.

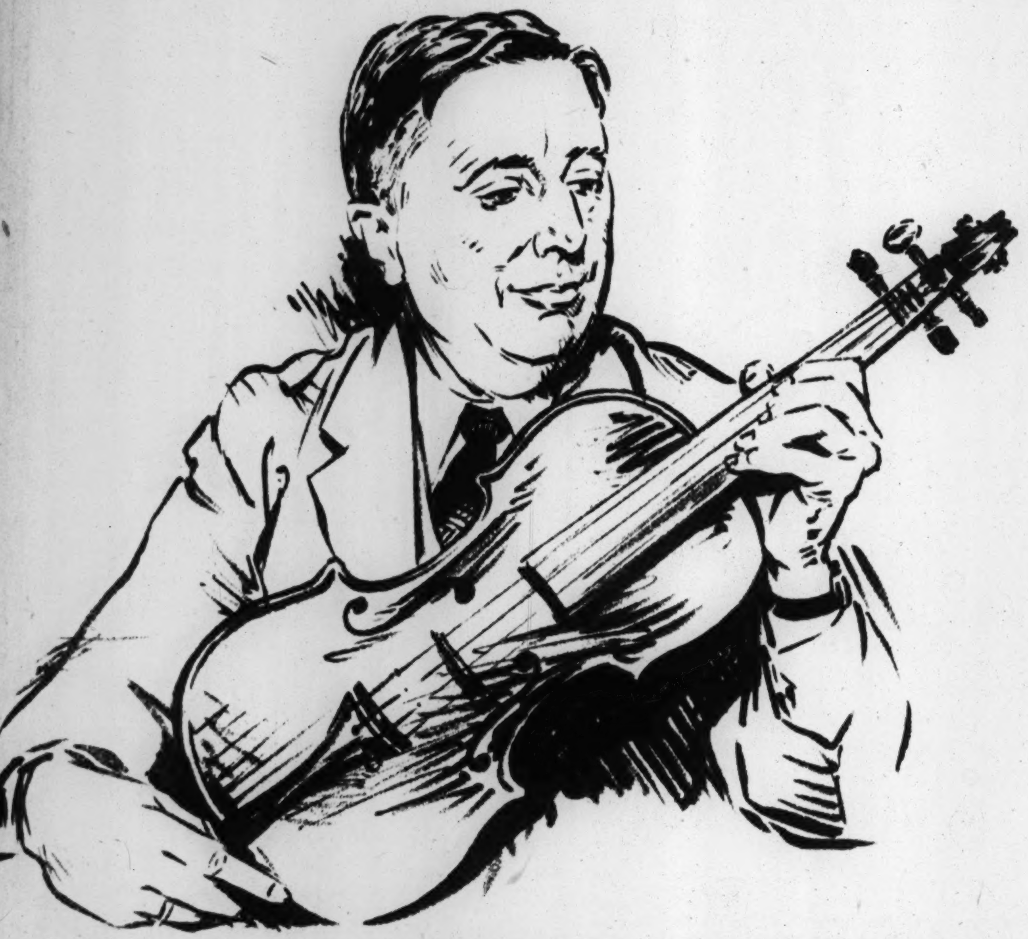
"In the vault," he says, "the violins need only air and moisture to keep them in perfect condition. On cold, dry days we pour two and a half gallons of water on the stone floor at night before closing the vault. By morning the water is all gone. First it was absorbed by the air and in turn sucked in by the wood of the violins. Violins breathe, the same as trees."

DESPITE the depression, there still seems to be a lively market for rare instruments, according to Freeman. Transactions are concluded only on a cash basis.

"Last year," he recalled, "we sold six antique Stradivari violins, each priced in five figures.

"Some of the transactions I have handled were with Albert Spalding, who bought a Guarnieri; Yehudi Menuhin, a Strad; Grisha Goluboff, for whom Henry Ford bought a 1703 Strad; Jascha Heifitz, a $30,000 Strad and a $30,000 Guarnieri, and Mischa Elman, a $30,000 Strad.

"These instruments are outstanding for concert use, and that is why violinists are willing to pay such prices for them. Their tone is strong enough to fill the biggest concert hall, yet under the player's ear it is so soft that it almost seems to lack power."



Jay Freeman.

Instantaneous recognition of the elements which give these fiddles their perfection and equality of vibration accounts for Mr. Freeman's success as an expert in passing upon the quality of an instrument.

"The things I look for," he says, "are construction and varnish. Contrary to the general impression, all violins do not look alike. Some masters used a longer neck than others, some a thicker front panel than the back and vice versa. The curves on the sides were shaped differently by each maker. The manner in which they made air vents varied.

"The varnish, however, is most important because it gives tonal character to a violin. The varnish used on the finest instruments when violin making was at its highest perfection in Cremona is unknown today. No one has been able to duplicate the formula. A unique manner of mixing the ingredients, plus special gums probably account for the lasting quality of the old varnishes. Whatever it was, the secret died with the masters who discovered it.

"Do not get the impression that good violins can only be had at a cost of thousands of dollars. Good instruments, but not as old, can be had for upwards of $150. Many such were well made and well varnished. It is from modern violins that have not been properly varnished that we get the horrible harsh and shrill tones produced when the varnish sets in about three years.

"There are about 400 genuine Strads in existence today, but over 10,000 imitations, exact in every respect but the magic tone quality. There hasn't been a genuine one unearthed in the past 75 years, yet every week at least half a dozen instruments sent from all parts of the world, come to me for 'expertizing.' And I have to tell the owners that tney are only imitations.

"Many buyers of what appear to be old violins later discover that they have been swindled. Such instruments are often realistically coated with dust to simulate old age. They are usually of inferior and recent make. And it is my duty to disillusion the buyers of such fakes. Often they are professional musicians."

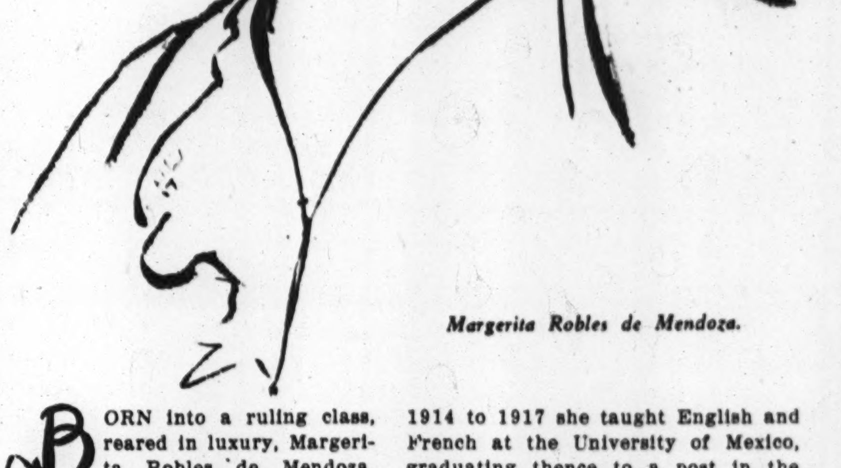
Mr. Freeman's eyes have become so accustomed to recognize instantly in an instrument both the year it was made and the name of its maker, that he makes his identification with the speed that people recognize their friends. So acute is his sight in this matter that he buys an instrument solely by what he sees in it, preferring not to have it played.

Seated in his office behind a massive desk of rich wood, I asked this man upon whose opinion hangs the sale of instruments valued at thousands of dollars, what was the biggest discovery he had made in his business.

He replied: "That the best violinists are often poor judges of good violins!"

RUTH ARELL

SHE LED the FIGHT for WOMAN'S RIGHTS in MEXICO



Margerita Robles de Mendoza.

BORN into a ruling class, reared in luxury, Margerita Robles de Mendoza, grew up a rebel. Now, at 45, she is regarded as the mother of the Union of American Women and of suffrage for "working women" throughout the Republic of Mexico.

She was hardly more than an infant when she was brought face to face with peonage, hardly more than a child when she began her lifelong career toward the education and liberation of Mexican women. While she was still a baby, her parents moved from Mexico City to a great hacienda, essentially a feudal estate, in the State of Morelos.

Her father, a full-blooded Zapotec, as she proudly relates, was legal adviser to the landowner, overlord of many peons. The earliest scenes of her childhood were scenes of serfdom, and its sorrows for women whose menfolk were broken and embittered by something near slavery. Before she was 10 she had begun, single-handed, talking to the women she knew on the plantation, to give them a view of another sort of life.

A great many of her ideas came by way of the United States, for she studied its language and its ways in the American Methodist School at Puebla, where she obtained her license to teach while yet in her teens.

Even earlier, she knew revolution at first hand. Zapata, the "liberator," had held her up in his arms as a child. In the Zapatista rebellion her home was burned. Her first written work, while she was still in the Methodist school, was a pamphlet which she called "El Veradero Zapata," "The True Zapata." Since then she has written several books; most notably, her volume on the Mexican woman.

Through the turbulent years of 1914 to 1917 she taught English and French at the University of Mexico, graduating thence to a post in the Ministry of Agriculture in probably the major project of the new Mexico—rural education. In 1921 she obtained a leave of absence to study at Columbia University in New York and later at the University of Southern California.

In Los Angeles she had, again, opportunity to serve her country and her countrywomen. The Mexican population of Los Angeles County was numerous. Senora Mendoza, then Senorita Robles, took over the task of promoting an understanding of Northern ethics and culture among her own people, a work of which the very fundamental was her conviction that, with equality of opportunity, Mexico and Mexicans would take a high place in modern civilization.

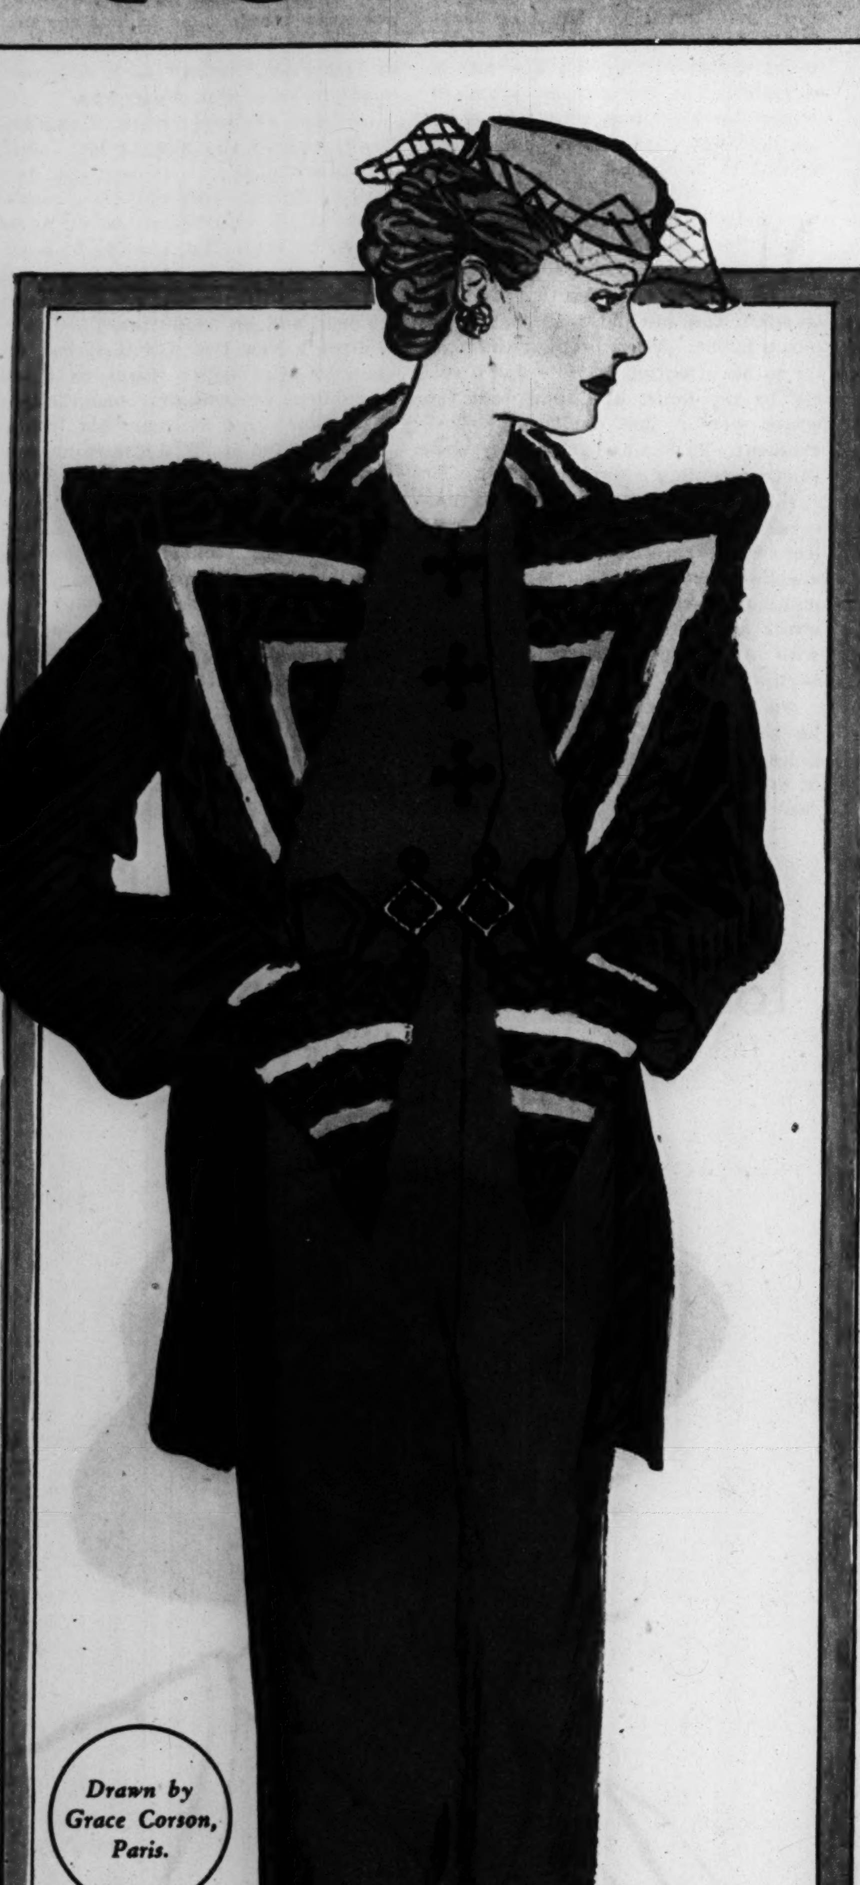
SIX years ago she returned to Mexico to devote herself to obtaining that equality, in vote at least, for Mexican women. Last month President Lazaro Cardenas told the Congress of Mexico that henceforth working women shall have the vote—and that includes every woman productively engaged, whether in agriculture, industry, the professions or the home.

A few days ago she was called to organize the feminine sector of the National Revolutionary Party. She is president of the Mexican section of the Union of American Women, which she founded. She says, with suffrage for working women, her work has just begun.

Her husband is Salvador Mendoza, well-known attorney, one of the authors of the Constitution of the State of Vera Cruz. It is her particular pride that this Constitution was the first in North or South America to give full equal rights to women.

COATS and ENSEMBLES

Fur and Wide Lapels in the Fall Fashion Picture



FUR trimmings used in every conceivable manner dramatize the new Fall coats, suits and ensembles. There is a particular vogue for the flat pelts such as Persian lamb, astrakan, caracul, beaver and castor fur which enliven the smartest costumes in the form of collars, many of which are convertible, wide lapels, gilets, jabots and odd-shaped pockets.

The use of astrakan as a trimming for a black broadcloth ensemble is illustrated in the Marcel Rochas model to the left. The fur is used for the unusually large lapels and the triangular pockets and a novel touch is provided through the use of rose and green ribbon stitched right on to the fur. The buttons and belt buckle are of patent leather.

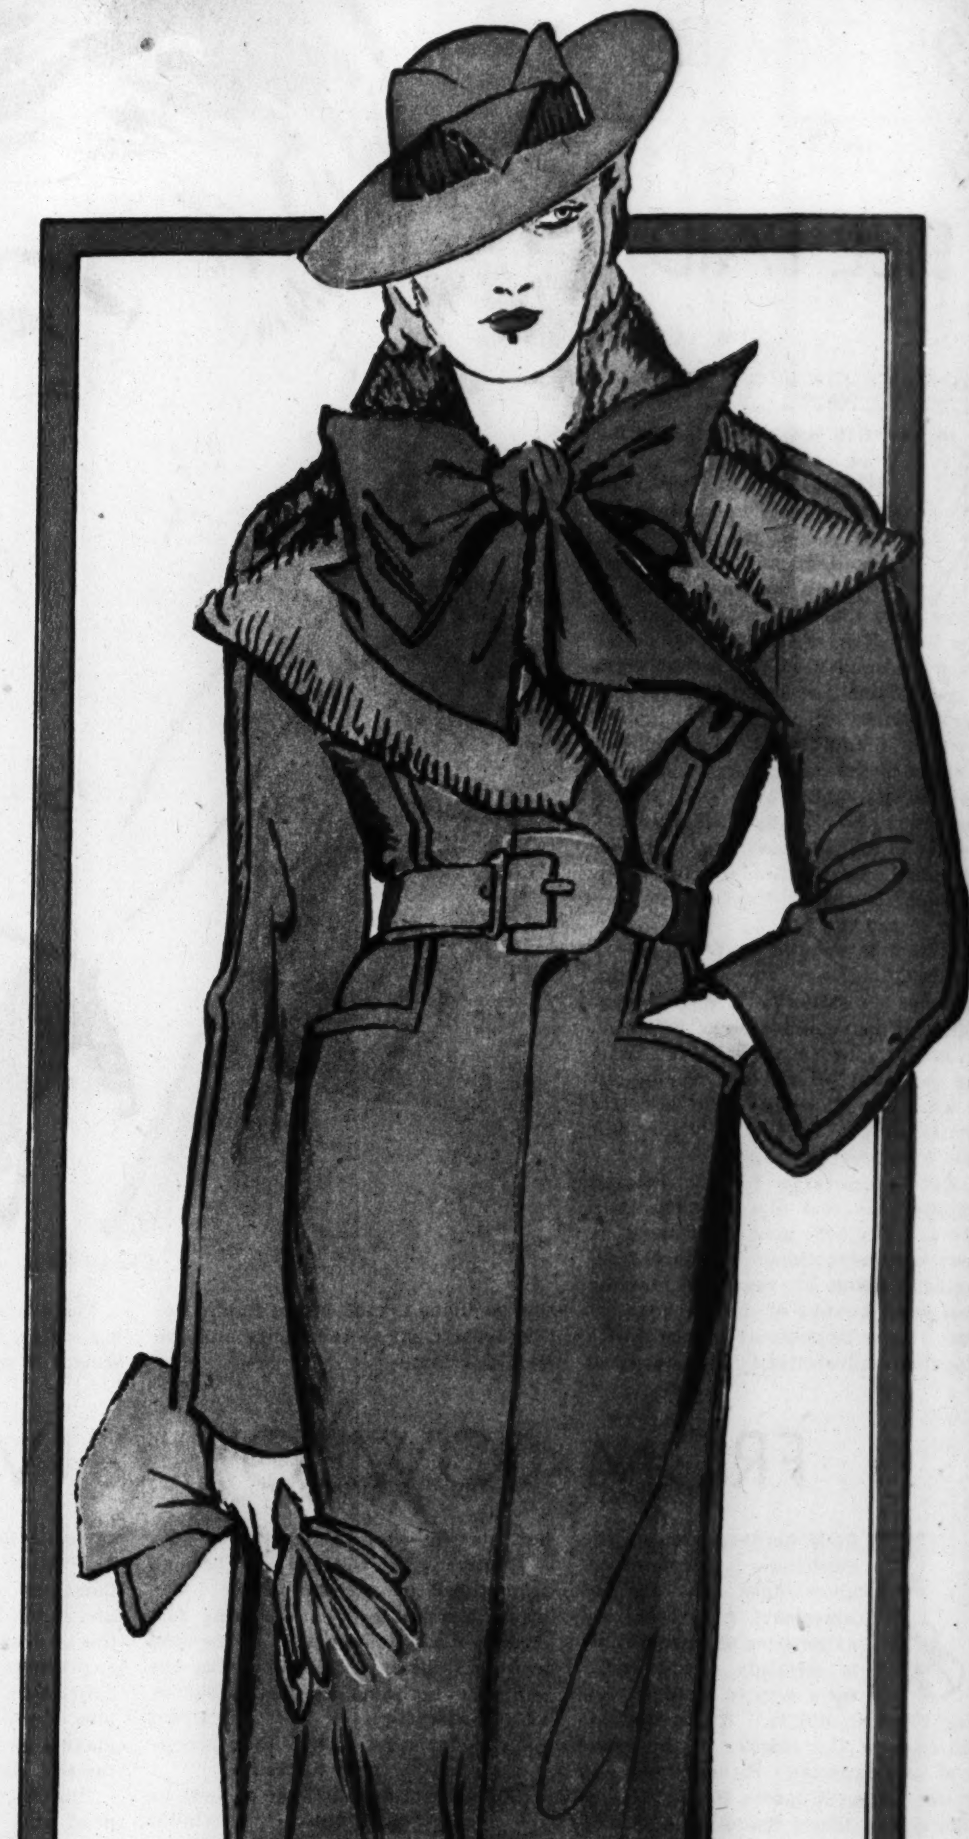
Maggy Rouff uses castor fur as a trimming for a yellowish-green broadcloth coat, as shown at the right and, once again, the trend toward wide revers is emphasized. The scarf is of taffeta and ties in a large bow to be worn outside the coat.

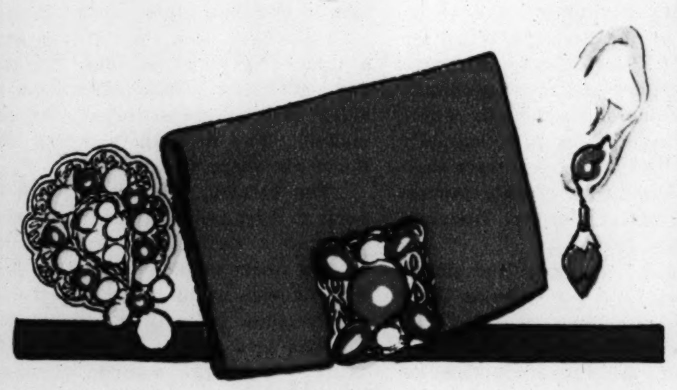
Gay colors vie with black in the early fall tailleurs and suits and the costumes shown below give promise of a colorful Autumn for Milady.

Borea's woolen suit in bright green, worn with tan accessories to match the belt is a smart little number suitable for either the college girl or the business girl, and the Creed ensemble, featuring a plaid dress in red and blue with a red coat is equally youthful.

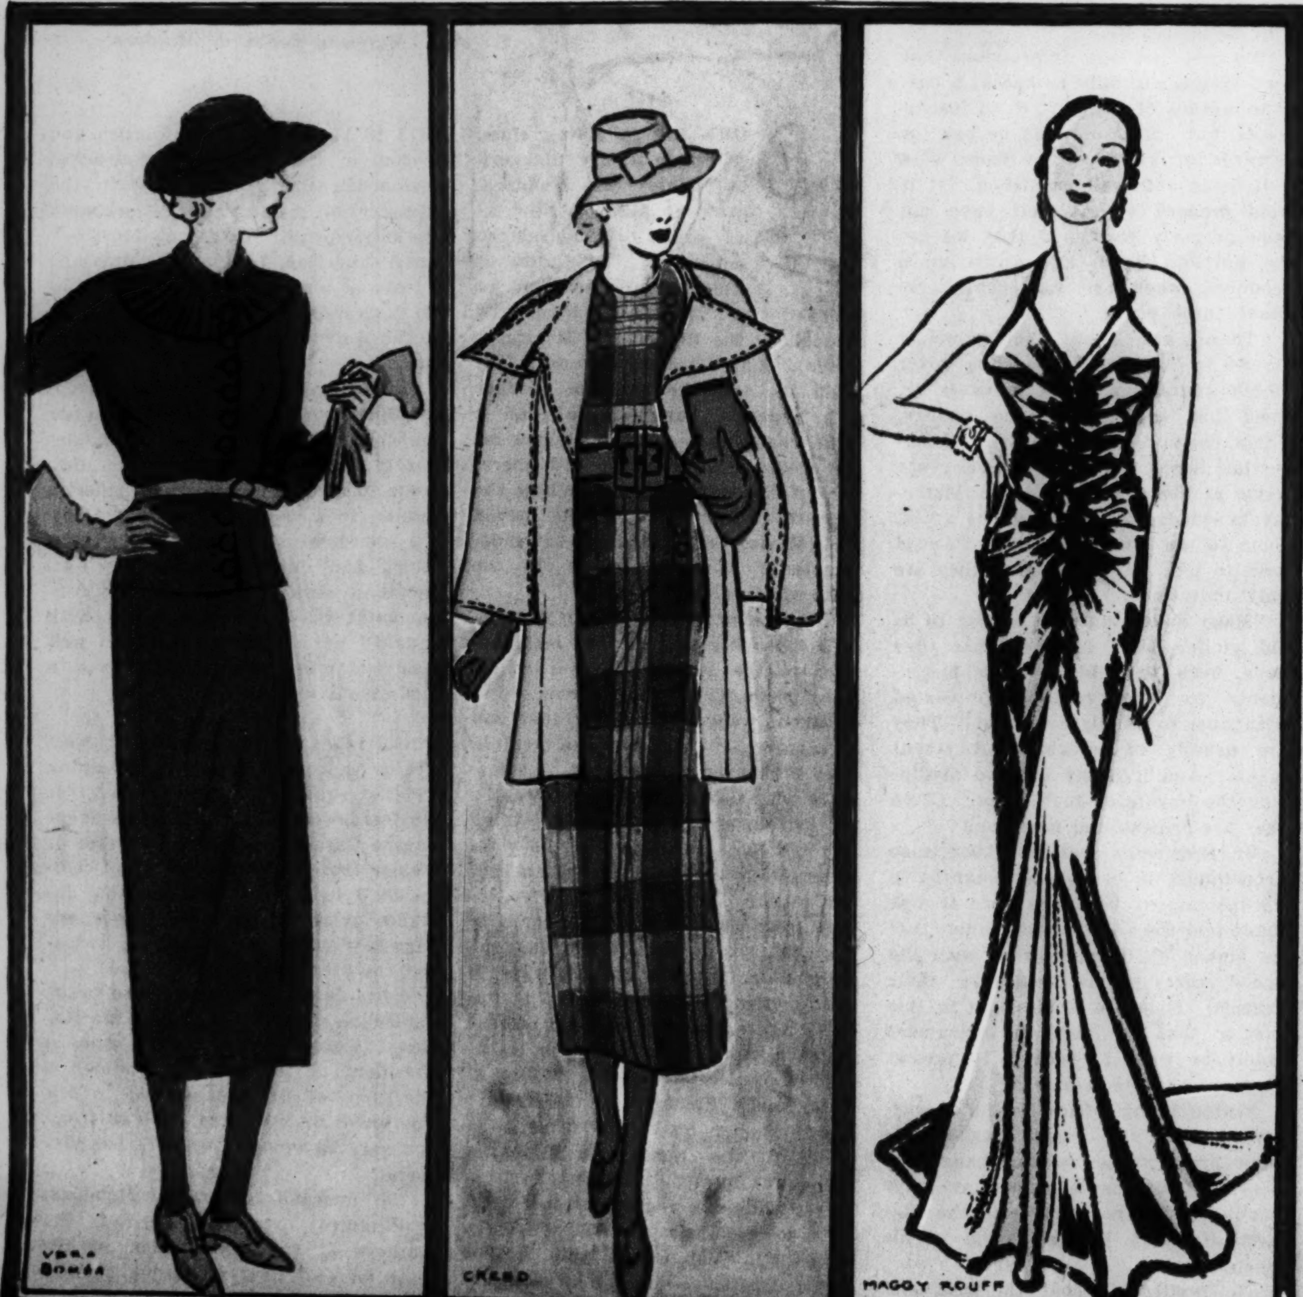
Tweeds and wool continue their perennial vogue in Fall fashions and the sketches at the lower right hand of this page illustrate their newest versions. The little tailleur with a purplish tone is in a mixed tweed and the brown suit, with its loose coat is in a very soft wool.

The current trend in evening gowns is toward the regal and rich fabrics draped to the silhouette are glamorous indeed.

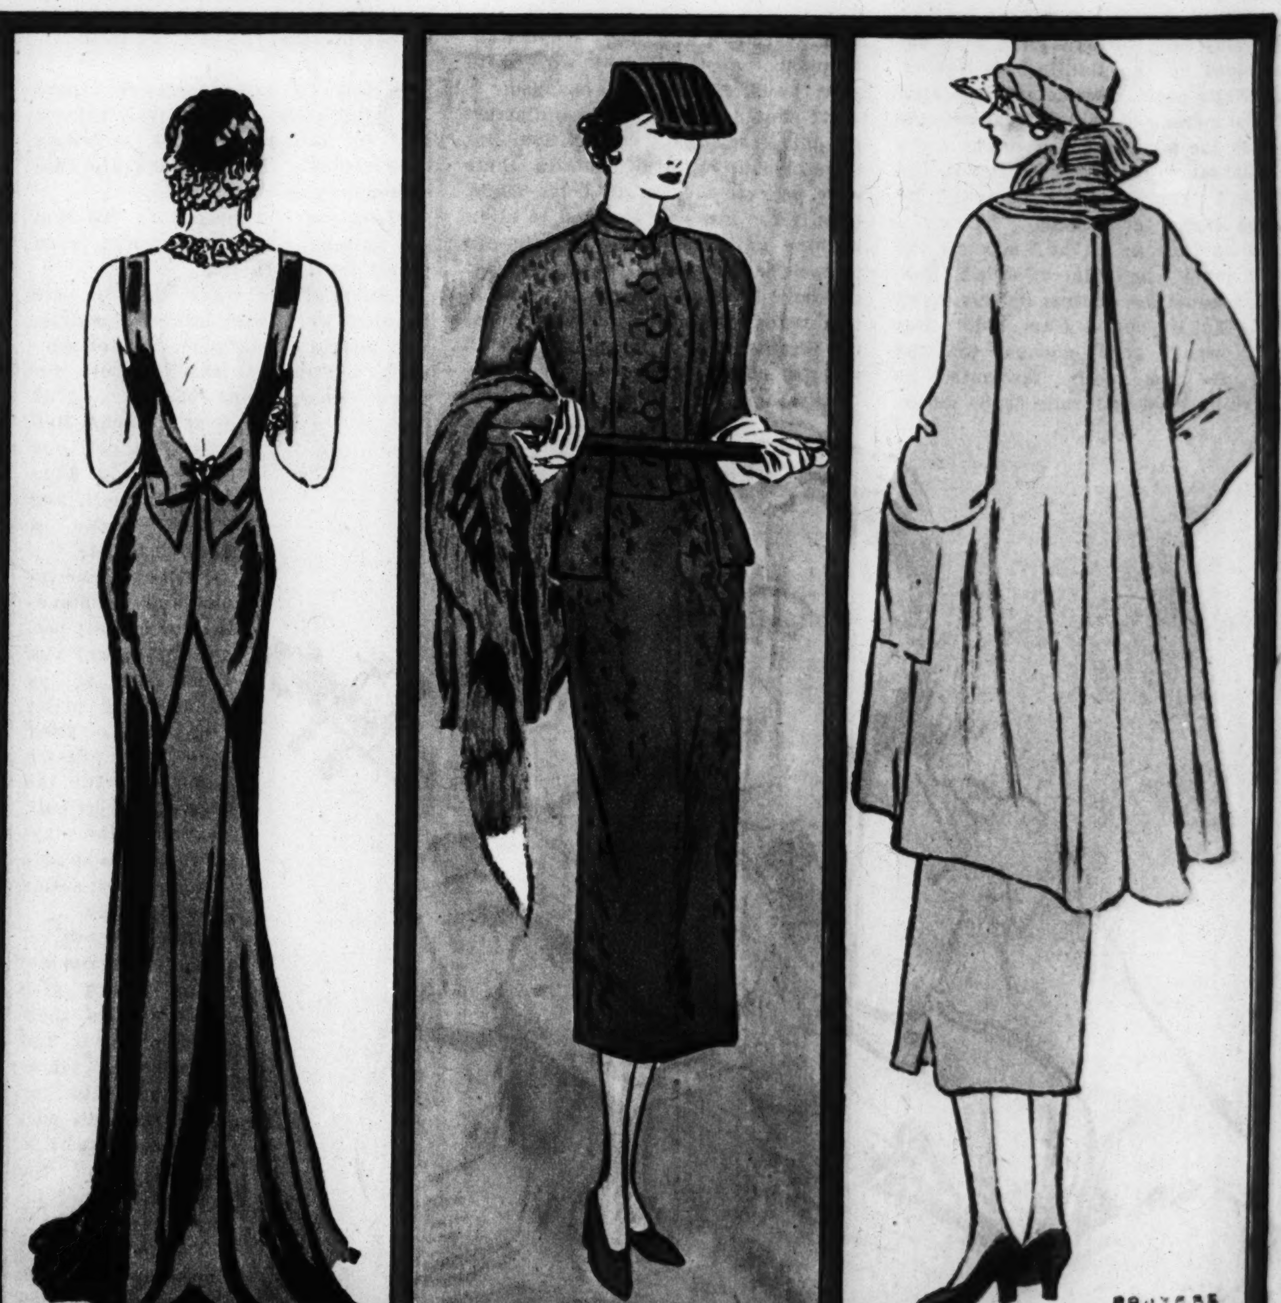




Smart Evening Accessories Include a Clip of Gold Filigree Encrusted with Jewels, a Purse of Red Velvet and a Gold Earring with Ruby Stud and Pendant.



Two Especially Youthful Costumes for the New Season Include a Bright Green Wool Suit to be Worn with Tan Accessories and a Gay Ensemble Which Combines a Red and Blue Plaid Dress with a Red Coat Effectively Trimmed with Coarse Stitching. Maggy Rouff's Evening Gown in Gold Lame Is Regal in Fabric and Draping.



A Black Satin Evening Gown Which Accents the Svelte Silhouette, Has a Gold Filigree Clip at the Decolletage. Smart Costumes for Fall Include a Tailleur in Mixed Tweed in One of the New Purple Shades and a Practical Ensemble with Loose Coat in Soft Brown Wool. The Stand-Up Collar Is Very Smart.

that the PH was part of the word "Philadelphia." But it turned out to be too easy; at the very first store I went into the clerk said: "Why, that's an Adam hat." Now the Adam Hat Company is a big chain organization and when I tried them all they could tell me was that they had sold over 2000 of those hats, which they called their Clark Gable model.

That left us with the gun as the only clew—and the numbers had been filed off the gun! I sat in my office fiddling with it for a while, then an idea struck me. On a Holtz the numbers are cut in at the base of the butt. "Get me a file and another Holtz revolver," I said to Clint.

He did. I dug away at it with the file for a minute.

"Look here," I told him, "the base of this gun is made of tool steel. The file hardly scratches it, and the numbers are stamped way in, good and deep; if I did succeed in filing them out I'd be cutting right into the rubber grip of the gun. And the grip on this murder gun isn't cut."

"How did he get rid of the numbers, then?"

"Well, it stands to reason that they weren't filed off, doesn't it? They must have been filled in with metal and a few file scratches made across the base to make it look as though the numbers had been filed off."

"Sure it does. But what good does that do?"

"In the first place, we know that the man who handled the gun that way was a mechanic or someone with metallurgical knowledge, and as he's probably the same man as the murderer, that will be a help. In the second place, he certainly didn't fill in those numbers with tool steel. It takes a furnace to melt steel up. Therefore, he filled them with something else, and if he did, we can get it out again. Take this gun up to Trenton. Find a chemist.

I GOT that report within 24 hours. The numbers had been filled in with lead; the chemist got enough of the metal out to make sure what they were—59237. Now any time you think tracing a gun is easy, you just want to try it. In this case, I got in touch with the Holtz factory. They told me that gun had been sold to a wholesaler in St. Louis three years before. I had the St. Louis police look up the wholesaler. His records showed that the gun had been sold by him to a retailer in Chicago a year and a half after he got it. From Chicago, the retailer reported that Holtz 32, number 59237, had been sold to a garage proprietor in Peoria, Illinois, a couple of months after he bought it.

That sounded hot, because I was looking for a garage man or mechanic. I took a train out to Peoria, but when I got there it was a disappointment. The garage proprietor was an Italian, a heavy set man with coal-black hair, who couldn't have got the Adam hat on his head, much less left blonde hairs in it.

"That gun?" he said, when I asked him about it. "I wish to hell I did know who has it. I'd bust his face. Somebody broke into my garage four months ago and got away with 50 bucks and that Holtz. No, I never been in New Jersey."

I checked up his story, of course, but it was all right. The garage man had reported the robbery at the time; it was still unsolved. So that ended that trail, and with it went my last clew, because Beck's efforts to dig anything useful out of Brown's past life didn't come to anything.

You sometimes see the newspapers criticising police for dropping cases. Don't let them fool you. On this case, now, I hadn't dropped it, but I had worked out all the clews and they all came to nothing. But it's a curious thing the way crimes get connected with one another. You can't solve one without getting leads on two or three more, especially if professional criminals are involved.

AND about this time I began to get a few burglaries in Burlington County; there were more on the Pennsylvania side, too, and several in Mercer County. We held a conference of officers on all those cases and pooled information, and we came to the conclusion that all of them were the work of a single gang. Some of them were big; they got $20,000 in securities and jewels from the Kirkland Marter home at Edgewater Park and $125,000 in bonds from the house of a man named Bartle at Overbrook.

The reason we connected up all these burglaries was the similarity of the methods used. The burglars seemed always very well informed about the movements of the family; they picked out an evening when the family was out to dinner, and, arriving in a car just about that time, got in and took their time about ransacking the whole house.

When I had this information, I got a list of all the burglaries and a map and began to put dots on the map for the places, as well as to draw up a list showing dates and places of the burglaries. I noticed that the burglars were working along a series of definite curved lines, following along the main roads. The burglaries were almost accurately spaced to fall 20 or 25 miles apart in space and seven or eight days in time. Crooks can be very systematic at times, so that didn't surprise me so much as something else in the list; namely, the fact that the after-dinner burglaries went on steadily right through November, December and the first half of January, never missing a date or place, with one striking exception. On January 9 there had been a burglary at Moorestown in Burlington County—and then there was a long jump to January 24, when the after-dinner burglars had suddenly appeared at Kennett Square, Pennsylvania, clear on the other side of Philadelphia. I followed down the line of burglaries that led through Moorestown. By rights the next one after the January 9 crime should have taken place at Riverton, New Jersey, and the date should have been January 16. But January 16 was the date Bradway Brown had been shot, and Palmyra was less than two miles from Riverton!

IT SUDDENLY struck me that there was nothing definite whatever to connect the Bradway Brown murder with the Wilson-Roberts case; in fact, Beck, who is a careful officer, had failed to turn up any connection between Brown and anyone else who might want to kill him. The only evidence against robbery was the fact that Brown's diamond ring had not been taken—but that might have been left deliberately.

I went back to the map, following out the line of dates and places. The after-dinner burglars were working north of Philadelphia now, and by following out the line of their operations I could make out they were due in Florence, New Jersey, on the night of April 13 or 14. But that day was the thirteenth! I reached for the telephone and called the Florence police.

"Have you had a burglary in your town recently?" I asked.

"Not that I know of," was the answer.

"Well, you're going to have one tonight. I'll be over and explain."

We set a watch as carefully as we could all through the town, but it was rainy and foggy so you couldn't see any distance. One of the Florence men did better than I did. He saw a parked car, with three men running across a lawn toward it through the fog. He shouted "Stop!" at them; they jumped in the car and started off, but just as she went into gear one of them turned round and gave him a shot. He fired back and got the man on the running board, who tumbled off into the ditch, shot right through the heart, but all he could make out of the car's license number was the first four figures—N-113 or N-118.

We got the dead man into the station and looked him over. From fingerprint and photographic identification we discovered he was a bad egg named Joe Ferguson, with a record as long as your arm, mostly for burglary. The deduction the after-dinner burglars would turn up in Florence was confirmed, though; the gun he had used was one stolen from the Kirkland Marter place at Edgewater Park, when the $20,000 went. But we couldn't make anything out of the car numbers; it just happened that both N-113 and N-118 were the beginning sequences of hundreds of numbers.

But this time we had something more definite to work on. We knew that Joe Ferguson had been one of the after-dinner burglars. Now, with that piece of information, we had a good deal to work on, but it was really hard work.

Every man who has as much of a record as Joe Ferguson did has numerous contacts among criminals. These contacts are known in the underworld and, in most cases to the police. Now in the case of Joe Ferguson, we knew that among these contacts were the members of the after-dinner gang, and we had known long before that the after-dinner gang consisted of experienced criminals. So in co-operation with the Mercer County and Philadelphia police I sat down and compiled a list of every crook Joe Ferguson knew or had any contact with. We then found out the present whereabouts of every man on that list, as closely as possible, and if they were living anywhere near Philadelphia, pulled them in. When we got them in, we asked them a lot of questions, partly about Joe Ferguson, but mostly inviting them to furnish an alibi for the night of April 13, 1933. Then we checked the alibi, because they all had alibis—you never saw a crook without one, did you?

One of these birds was a man named Edward Adamski. He was picked up for us by the Newark police—not, as it happened, on the Joe Ferguson clew, but because a warning had been sent out to watch the pawnshops up there on another case, and he was seen going into one, the arresting officer taking him along to the station, thinking he might be another wanted man. This Adamski gave his right name, knowing Newark didn't have anything on him, I guess, but they found he was on the wanted list as an acquaintance of Ferguson's and held him for us. He was trying to pawn a ring that looked a lot like one from the Kirkland Marter home.

"WHAT were you doing on the night of April 13?" I asked him.

"Playing pool in the Germania Hall in Philly," he said, without batting an eyelash. That was more than usually phoney. April 13 was a month ago by this time, and the idea that he could remember something like that was sort of queer in the best circumstances, but I didn't have a doubt he'd get a half-dozen poolroom loafers to swear he was there.

"Where did you get the ring you were trying to hock?"

"Aw—a guy sold it to me for 20 bucks."

That was another misstep. I already knew he had been trying to pawn the ring for $10, and it was worth $60. I looked at him a minute and then said:

"Oh, my God," he said, "don't try to hang a murder on me. Honest, I don't know a thing about that case. I been in on a few little jobs in my time, that's all right. I'll take my rap on them, but I didn't kill nobody."

I had them take him over to the jail then and turned to Prosecutor Eastwood, who was in the office at the time.

"That man was in on the Bradway Brown job," I said, "and the chances are that he's one of the after-dinner burglars, too. Did you notice how excited he got when I asked him about the Bradway Brown business? Why, an ordinary crook wouldn't even remember what the Brown case was."

"Yes, but you haven't any evidence to give me, have you?" asked Eastwood. "I can't take a case to trial on a deduction."

"No, but I'll try to get some evidence for you. I'm going up to Philadelphia and establish the connection between Ferguson and this egg."

I went over first thing in the morning, and they gave me a couple of fat files. From the two of them I started comparing dates and places. At first it wasn't very informative; Ferguson had been working right out of Philadelphia during most of his criminal career, while Adamski had an arrest in New York for burglary and then began drifting west, because he had an arrest in Lorain, and then one in Indiana. But the next note in the series is the one that stopped me. It read:

Now I knew where Pekin, Ill., was, because I had just been there. It's right across the river from Peoria. What made this entry queerer yet was that the date on it was just the day before the garage man's revolver had been stolen.

Right below that on Ferguson's record came the first mention of Philadelphia—"Arrested, Philadelphia, concealed weapons, October, 1932—discharged, lack of evidence." I checked it with Adamski's record, and found that both he and Ferguson had been released in Philadelphia on the same day in 1932. Then something else struck me about that listing—Ferguson had been discharged for lack of evidence. The thing had a fishy look; a concealed weapon case isn't like a burglary, for instance, where witnesses may contradict themselves. A man is either carrying a weapon or he isn't. If he is carrying a weapon the weapon itself is the evidence; if he isn't carrying one the officer doesn't arrest him.

I determined that this point needed to be cleared up, and, taking the rogue's gallery pictures of Ferguson and Adamski, together with their records, went over to the prosecutor's office. The assistant who handled the case remembered it readily enough:

"Yes," he said, "I always thought there was something queer about that. It was like one of those spirit visitations. Now, I'll tell you about what happened, because I went back over that a dozen times trying to find the slip. We were running through half a dozen minor cases that day, and this Ferguson's concealed weapon case was one of them. I had the gun right on the counsel table along with some other things. While another case was being called I stepped out of the court for a minute, but when I came back that gun was missing—right under the noses of all the court attendants, the judge and two or three cops. So, of course, the case was discharged."

"Have you got any record of the number of the gun?" I asked.

"I suppose it's somewhere around still." He tapped a bell and got a stenographer to look it up, and we talked about Adamski while she was out. He didn't remember that case at all; it was one of the dozens that had made no impression on him, but from the nature of the case Adamski could have been in the same court at the same time, all right. Then the stenographer brought in the report on the Ferguson case.

"HERE you are," she said; "it was a Holtz .32, No. 59237."

Well, the case was broken. That tied up Ferguson, Adamski and the gun with which Bradway Brown had been killed tighter than a knot, and I went back to Philly police headquarters feeling pretty well pleased with myself. But when I got there I found a phone message waiting from Bading in Mount Holly; he wanted me to call right away.

"Hello, chief," he said. "You remember that Adamski we had here on the after-dinner burglary case? I hate to say it, but the fact is, chief, he—he escaped."

"He what!" I almost shouted.

"He slugged the guard that was taking in his breakfast and got over the wall, and we haven't . . ."

I hung up the receiver. That was a tough blow, after all the work we had done on that case, to get a set-back like that. Ferguson was dead and Adamski was gone, and, what was worse, he knew exactly what we wanted him for now, and we'd be lucky if we ever saw him again. Once more I was up against one of those points where they say the case has been dropped. There didn't seem to be anything we could do.

I went over all the steps again, making schedules of places and dates, and then I noticed something else. The case in the Philadelphia courtroom, where Ferguson's gun had disappeared, had come up in October, 1932. The after-dinner burglaries, in which both Ferguson and Adamski were concerned, had begun in November, 1932. Therefore, it was a reasonable deduction that the after-dinner gang had been formed just outside that Philadelphia courtroom. But there were at least three members of the gang, for the Florence policeman had seen three. Therefore Ferguson and Adamski had picked up someone else. It might be someone that one or the other had known previously, but there was just a chance that it was someone they had contacted that same day, or who had come to court with one of them that day. At least, slender though this thread was, it was the only one that still offered a chance of leading to the center of this maze.

In Philadelphia I looked back through the court records to that day in the Magistrate's court; got the names of all the accused and witnesses who had been in court then and began checking over the whole list. There were just two of them who didn't look good; one was a small-time racketeer named Steve Wojtkowiak, from up in Central Pennsylvania, and the other one was a burglar named Adam Szewczak. I had them get out the pictures on those two, and the minute I saw Szewczak's photo I knew I had the man I was after. Because he was blond, and in the picture he was wearing an Adam hat, Clark Gable model, the same hat I had found in Bradway Brown's garage at Palmyra. I went back to Mount Holly and had them get out circulars.

Right about that time I got a break, the only one in this case. A couple of detectives of the Philadelphia narcotic squad, named Leinhauser and Potje, were following up a case of their own, working on some of the dope distributors who handle for the trans-Atlantic ring. They raided a man named Gip Ginsburg in Philly and took him off to jail. At the time they made the arrest there was another man in Ginsburg's place, a Pole who gave his name as Zeleski, but the narcotic squad didn't have anything on him, so they let him go.

When they began to search Ginsburg, however, they found on him a $1000 U. S. Steel bond. They checked it; it was part of the loot from the Bartle robbery at Overbrook, one of the biggest of the after-dinner cases. Ginsberg was immediately invited to explain about it, and when he refused they told him they'd try him for the after-dinner cases, which were enough to send him to jail for 500 years if they laid them end to end. He cracked then, and said he had taken the bond for a friend of his, this Zeleski.

Now that wasn't a break, that was good work. The break came in what happened next. When they let Zeleski go, Detective Leinhauser had trailed him unobtrusively, hoping that Zeleski was in the dope racket, too, and would take him to some of the others. Zeleski left in a car, a Chevvy with a New Jersey license number. After taking Leinhauser around most of North Philadelphia, he finally met another man in a drug store, turned the car over to him and went to a rooming house, where he went to bed. Leinhauser phoned in the location of the rooming house; they got it at headquarters just about the time they checked the Steel bond on Ginsburg, and there were half a dozen radio cars around the place within 15 minutes. They pulled a raid, got Zeleski and his baggage and from it extracted five more $1000 bonds. As I was on the case, they called me up and I went over first thing in the morning. Zeleski was Szewczak, the man I'd been seeking for nearly a year.

BUT we still didn't have any evidence against him except the hat and the fact that he was tied up with the Bartle robbery. The Philadelphia police gave him the works on that one so they could hold him, and we put out warnings for the car.

We found its owner was Solomon Lutz, a barber, who now lived in New York. I sent Bading and Clint Zeller up to take over. The New York police reported that Lutz had a regular job and was working at it, so he didn't look like a good candidate as a member of the gang, but it was a cinch he was in touch with Adamski somewhere. They trailed that Lutz for two solid weeks. Then one night Lutz goes out alone in his car and heads for a small stationery store on the upper East Side. Bader and Zeller and a New York man were right behind. They saw Lutz go into the store and stand there talking to someone for a few minutes, then come out again. Next thing they went in themselves. The man behind the counter was Edward Adamski.

So we got the whole gang at last. They made a fight in court, but Lutz gave some evidence and we had that gun right there all the time. Both Adamski and Szewczak were convicted and got the chair. It was one of the toughest cases I ever handled, and we never did find out about Bradway Brown's phone call or why he canceled the dinner date with his mother.

Bit in the Neck by a Lion

"After you get back and finish this picture will you ever do another with wild animals?" he was asked.

"Sure I will," said Bickford, "if the occasion comes up again. As I said before, nobody is to blame for this accident. If I want to face the dangers of working with wild animals I certainly am not going to welch if an accident happens. I wasn't forced to accept the role. If I didn't want to work with wild animals no director or producer could induce me to."

Bickford proved his courage once before during the filming of "East of Java" when a black leopard attacked Charlie Murphy, the veteran animal trainer. The leopard had proved unruly and Murphy was trying to get him into what is known as a "shifting" crate. The animal leaped at Murphy and grabbed his arm and only the fact that the keeper had wrapped his arm in heavy cloth saved him. He fought free of the leopard which was about to attack again when Bickford leaped into the scene armed with a pitchfork. Bickford held the beast at bay until Murphy got another pitchfork and then both drove it into the cage. It was the same Murphy who saved Bickford from Tarzan.

Despite the active life he has led and the dynamic roles he has portrayed on the screen, Bickford has been unusually fortunate in escaping accidents. The nearest exciting experience he could recall was when he was filming "East of Borneo" a few years ago.

"I was required to walk across an alligator infested river with Rose Hobart in my arms," he said. "I carried a club with which I would strike the 'gators when they snapped at me. The club broke and, throwing it away, I began kicking at their noses with my feet. From then on it became a game to see whether I could kick faster than they could snap. It was a foolish thing to do, I suppose, but I got through safely although I still have the boots with marks on them left by the teeth of the 'gators."

RED WILY AND BECKY

THE CHARACTERS

RED WILY—A cruel, scheming old fox.
BECKY BEAR—A playful little bear cub.
BILL BUNNY—An unfortunate rabbit.

Little Becky Bear caught Bill Bunny when she found him taking a nap in the shade of an old oak tree. Now Becky is much stronger than Bill and, having misplaced her bunny doll, she made the unwilling rabbit take its place. Red Wily heard of this and, being very fond of rabbit stew and thinking he might use Becky to rock his children to sleep, has decided to capture both of them. We see him working on a scheme as

THE PLAY BEGINS

RED WILY—(To himself.) Now, let me see, just how will I go about catching them? Let me think. (He walks away, thinking hard. Soon he hears someone singing and, looking from behind two big trees, he sees Becky singing Bill to sleep. Red watches them for a while. Suddenly he has an idea. He boldly steps from behind the trees and walks over to Becky and Bill.)

RED WILY—Good morning. I wonder if you would mind if I sat down and listened to you sing? (Bill sits up and stares at Red too frightened to speak.)

BECKY BEAR—Bad fox, go away. You wake my bunny dolly up.

RED WILY—(Sitting down.) I'm awful sorry, honey. But now that he's awake won't you come over to my house and have dinner? And bring your dolly with you.

BECKY BEAR—(Getting up and walking away.) No! My dolly has to go to sleep. (This makes Red very mad and he leaps up and grabs Becky. Becky is so surprised she drops Bill and the frightened old rabbit looses no time in running away.)

BILL BUNNY—(Running.) Whew! That was a narrow escape. Red won't dare hurt Becky. He's afraid of her mother. But what he wouldn't have done to me. Gosh.

"JUST JACK TEMPLE"
This young man, a student at Leland Stanford University in California, says he wants to stand on his own feet; doesn't especially care to have people know that his little sister is Shirley Temple of Hollywood. He is shown with a classmate.

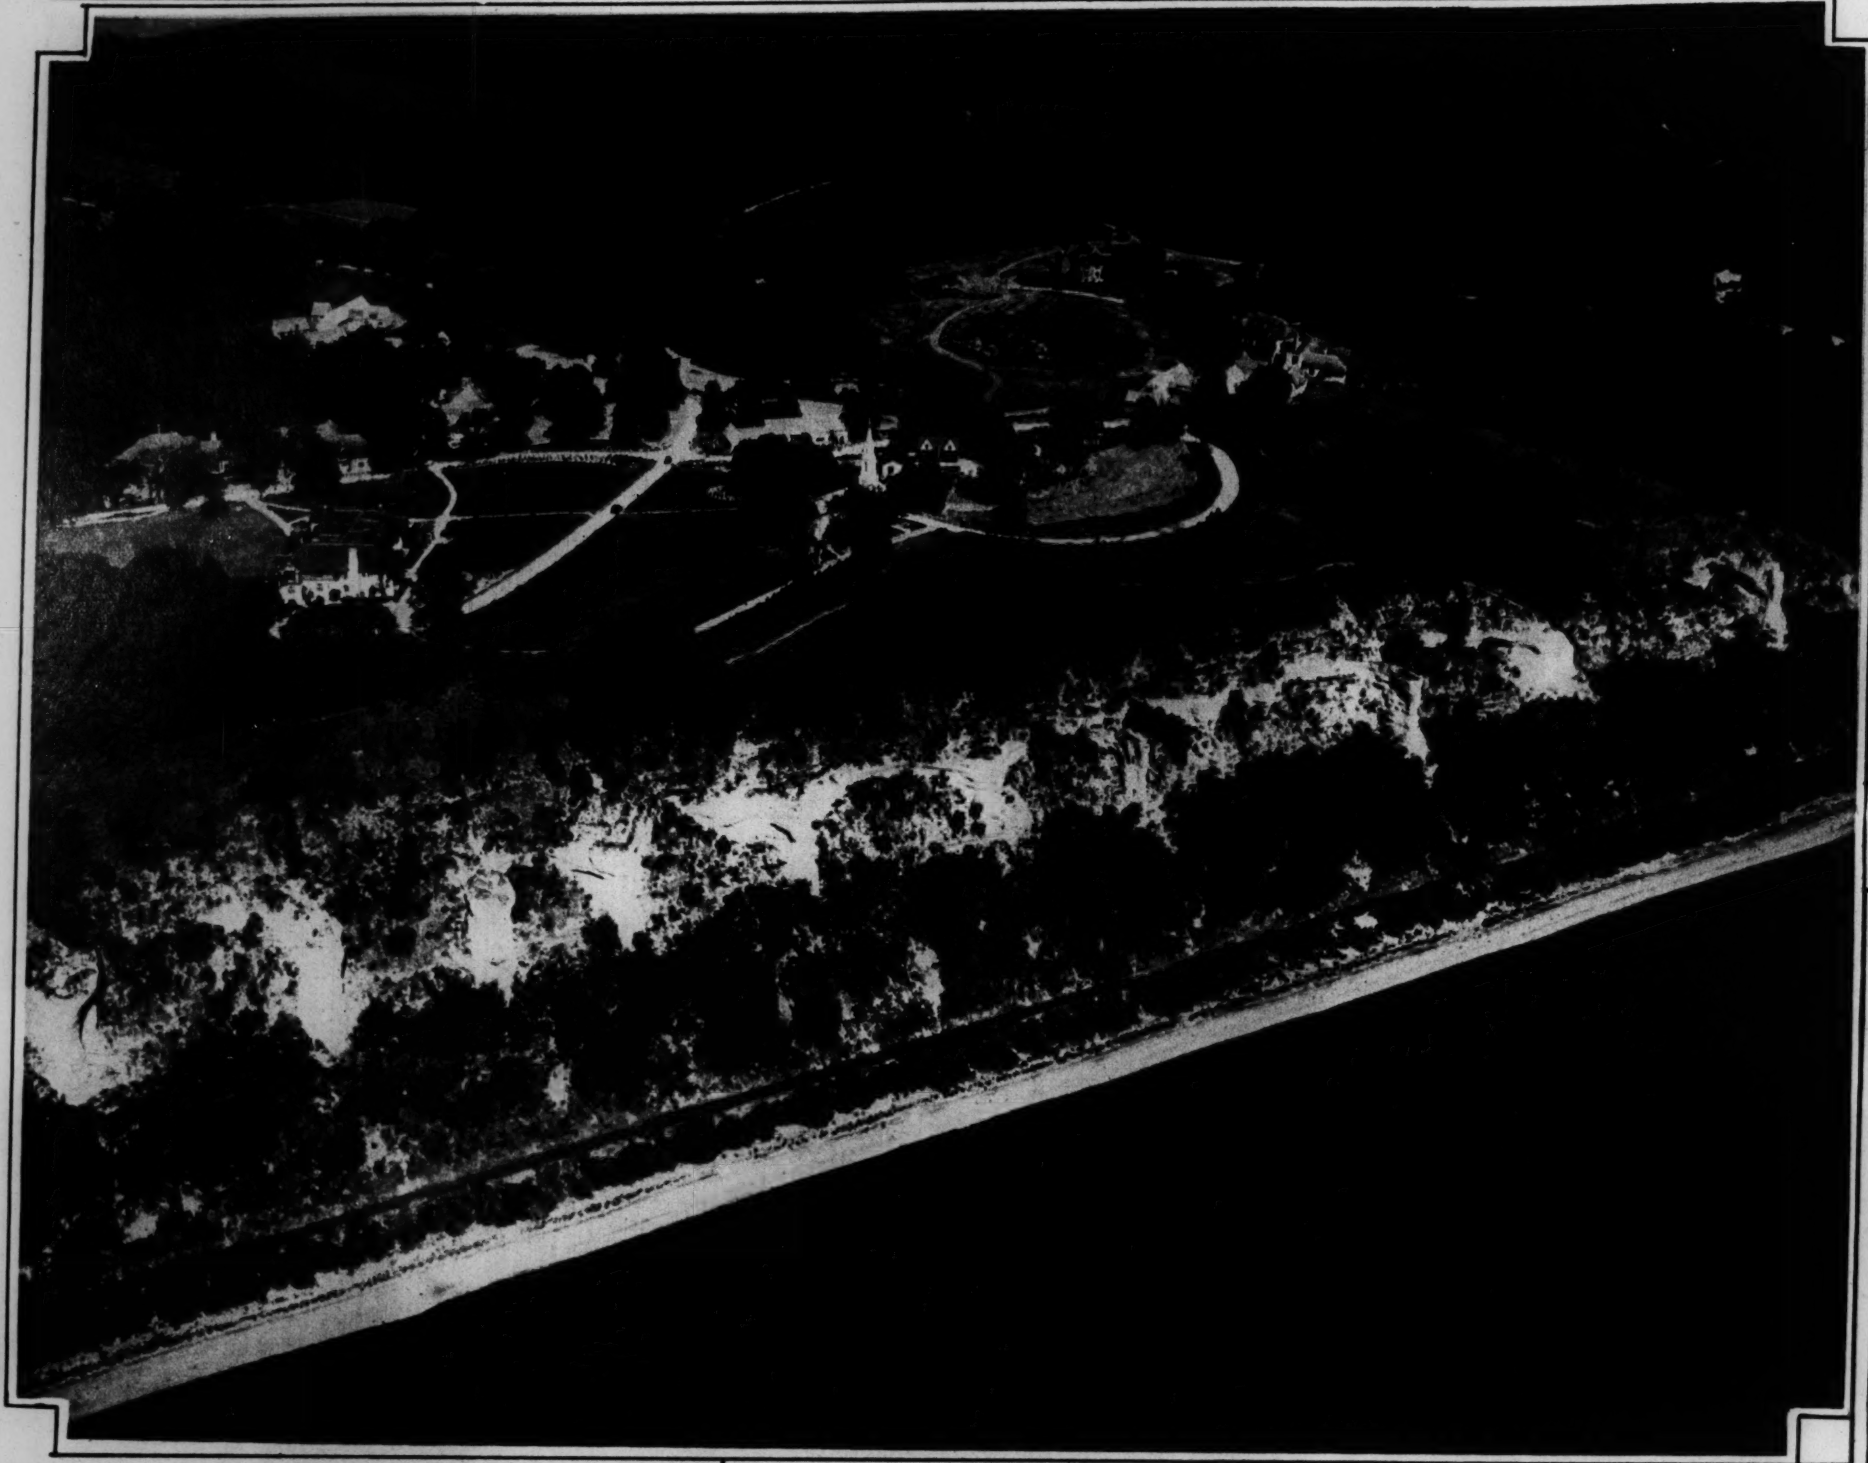
THEY WANT TO SWIM THE GOLDEN GATE
Comanche, a stallion colt belonging to the San Francisco Police Department, and his master, Officer Dan McSweeney, take a long practice swim every day. In a few weeks they hope to try for a long distance record.



ON THE MISSISSIPPI'S PALISADES—Principia College, the new seat of higher education at Elsah, Illinois, is situated on one of the most spectacular sections of the river bank. Here is an unusual aerial slant on the landscape. —From Airphoto Company.

FASHION DISCOVERS THE SHAVING BRUSH—That, at least, is the general effect given by the pompon used to trim this new black felt hat; it matches the silver fox scarf worn with it.

A BELTED FUR

SIXTY AGAINST ONE—In a tug of war at the Ueno Zoological Gardens in Tokio an elephant was matched with 60 fun-loving Japanese. The outcome was not announced.

A STAR TO ALL BUT HIM, UNTIL..
...AFTER THE SHOW
OH DEAR—THEY LOVE ME ON THE STAGE, BUT WHY CAN'T I BE POPULAR WITH THE ONE WHO REALLY COUNTS...WHY DOES FRANK AVOID ME LATELY?.. WHAT'S THAT?
WHAT SHE HEARD
WHAT'S COME BETWEEN YOU AND KAY, FRANK?
NOTHING, TOM... ER-THAT IS-WELL, HAVE YOU NOTICED HER BREATH LATELY? SHE OUGHT TO SEE HER DENTIST!
OF ALL THE LIES!.. I'VE ALWAYS BEEN SO CAREFUL TO AVOID BAD BREATH..STILL, WHAT DID HE MEAN ABOUT ME SEEING MY DENTIST?
SO SHE DECIDED TO FIND OUT-
YES, MY DEAR, MOST BAD BREATH IS DUE TO IMPROPERLY CLEANED TEETH—TO DECAYING FOOD PARTICLES BETWEEN THE TEETH. I ADVISE COLGATE DENTAL CREAM BECAUSE OF ITS ACTIVE, PENETRATING FOAM.
I'LL GET SOME COLGATE'S TODAY, THEN!
YOUR TEETH SHO' LOOK WHITE AND PRETTY, MISS KAY, SINCE YOU BEEN USING COLGATE'S!
AND MY MOUTH FEELS REALLY CLEAN, TOO, RUBY!
AND NOT LONG AFTER
LET'S DITCH THE PARTY, SWEET. THERE'S A MOON SOMEWHERE THAT NEEDS LOOKING AT!
SOMETHING TELLS ME I'LL THANK THAT MOON... AND COLGATE'S

Most Bad Breath Begins with the Teeth!

WHY risk bad breath? Use Colgate Dental Cream. Its penetrating foam removes the decaying food deposits in crevices between your teeth—the source of most bad breath. At the same time, a soft, grit-free ingredient polishes the enamel—makes teeth sparkle.

Thus Colgate's makes your teeth cleaner, brighter—assures you a sweeter, purer breath. Try Colgate Dental Cream—today! If you are not entirely satisfied after using one tube, send the empty tube to COLGATE, Jersey City, N. J. We will gladly refund TWICE what you paid.

THIS REVOLUTIONARY PEN INVENTION ENDS SUCH FAILURES AS TOM GORDON'S

New 2-way writing point won't scratch or drag even under pressure
Visible ink supply
AND 102% MORE OF IT
(Less than actual size)

THE PEN THAT IS NEVER EMPTY

Because it holds 102% more ink and shows days ahead when it's running low!

THE revolutionary Parker Vacumatic with VISIBLE ink supply removes all former doubt as to whether your pen will write, or when, or how long.

Those uncertainties baffled pen inventors for 50 years—finally led Geo. S. Parker to back a scientist's "fool idea," to spend 5 years' time and a king's ransom in perfecting this miracle pen that the world has always needed—always wanted—never could have until now.

A pen that holds 102% more ink without increase in size—that won't unexpectedly run dry in the midst of your writing.

But don't confuse this sacless marvel with so-called vacuum filler pens having squirt-gun piston pumps. The Parker Vacumatic contains none of these—it eliminates 14 old-time parts, including pistons, as well as rubber ink sacs and levers. That is why it is GUARANTEED mechanically perfect.

It's a pen of rare and shimmering beauty—laminated style—built up ring upon ring of luminous Pearl and Jet—wholly new and exclusive. When held to the light, the "Jet" rings become transparent—you see how much ink remains—when to refill. Its Reversible Point—of precious Platinum and solid Gold—writes two ways without adjustment.

Demonstrations are taking place at all good stores. Stop in and see the amazing Vacumatic for the first time. The Parker Pen Co., Janesville, Wis.

GUARANTEED MECHANICALLY PERFECT
Junior, $5 $7.50 Pencils, $2.50,

QUEEN TITANIA'S SUBJECTS
A fairyland scene from the movie version of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," as conceived by Max Reinhardt.

"GOING, GOING...." N. B. Kinsey, famous auctioneer, presided at the opening of the Dog Mart, a Fredericksburg (Va.) institution of colonial times which is to be revived this week. It originated as a means of barter with the Indians; the bell is a relic.

TOOL OF VENGEANCE—Italy had to forgive Ethiopia for the licking that was administered in 1896; she never forgot. Bruno Mussolini, the Dictator's son, was among the aviators sent to bomb Aduwa in the first major attack, in which a Red Cross hospital was destroyed, according to information from Addis Ababa.

DISCOVERING A FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH—Ted Shawn, graying missionary of the dance, has a romp in the fountain with the young men who comprise his troop, during a vacation in England. He is the muscular, convulsively laughing man in the foreground.

THIS CAT WILL LEAD A DOG'S LIFE, no doubt, till he can get out of that costume he's being sewed into. He'll be the laughing stock of the neighborhood cats! "Worst of all," complains poor kitty, "she's sewing it on with J. & P. Coats best 6-cord thread and her mother says it's the strongest thread you can buy."

Despite her 6,000 and more Dishwashings—
...Her Hands Keep Smooth and White!

Mrs. R. McAdoo, Jr., 14 W. 52nd St., N. Y. C.

... How Super Suds has made it possible for Mrs. McAdoo to wash dishes daily for six years—and still have beautiful hands. Why other soaps failed.

YOU, too, can keep your hands soft and young and lovely in spite of daily dishwashing! Just do what Mrs. McAdoo and millions of other women have done for 5, 6, even 7 years—wash all your dishes with Super Suds.

For Super Suds is a new form of soap. Made in tiny hollow beads, it dissolves instantly, completely! Unlike the average, slow-dissolving soap, it leaves no undissolved particles that irritate tender skin and give hands that red, ugly, "dishwashing" look!

And Super Suds also makes dishwashing far quicker and easier. It leaves no gummy, undissolved particles to streak your dishes. A quick rinse and they shine like new—even without wiping.

FLASH! A SHORT CIRCUIT ON THE INSTRUMENT BOARD—FLAMES LEAP UP!

NOW'S THE TIME FOR STEEL NERVES. THEY'RE ONLY 200 FT. UP, AND HEADED FOR THE GROUND!

IN THE NICK OF TIME THEY PUT OUT THE FLAMES AND HEAD HER UP

NOT UNTIL THE "OLE MISS" BEGAN TO SHAKE AFTER 50,000 MILES OF CONTINUOUS FLIGHT, DID THEY DECIDE TO LAND. DOWN THEY CAME, A PERFECT LANDING—AND A WORLD RECORD OF 653 HOURS 34 MINUTES

PARDON ME, DARLING. DO YOU MIND IF I CLOSE THIS DOOR, SO THE NOISE WONT BOTHER YOU FOLKS?
OH MY DEAR, THAT'S PERFECTLY ALL RIGHT.
OH THIS DOOR WONT CLOSE. IT'S...
I HAVE A LOT OF TROUBLE WITH IT TOO, DEAR. WELL...
I CAN CLOSE IT.
THERE! CLOSED TIGHT!
HA! YOU WOULD.
I WOULD WHAT? WHAT DO YOU MEAN? THAT I SLAMMED THAT DOOR? I HAD TO CLOSE IT, DIDN'T I?
SH-H! SH-H!
HA! IN SPITE OF HER SHUTTING THAT DOOR, I CAN HEAR...
WELL, KINDLY EXCUSE ME.
SHES GETTING EXCITED NOW. TALKING LOUDER. I CAN HEAR....
HIM! AT THAT RADIO.... GOING FULL BLAST.
BUT MY FRIENDS
LET US TURN TO 1776 AND

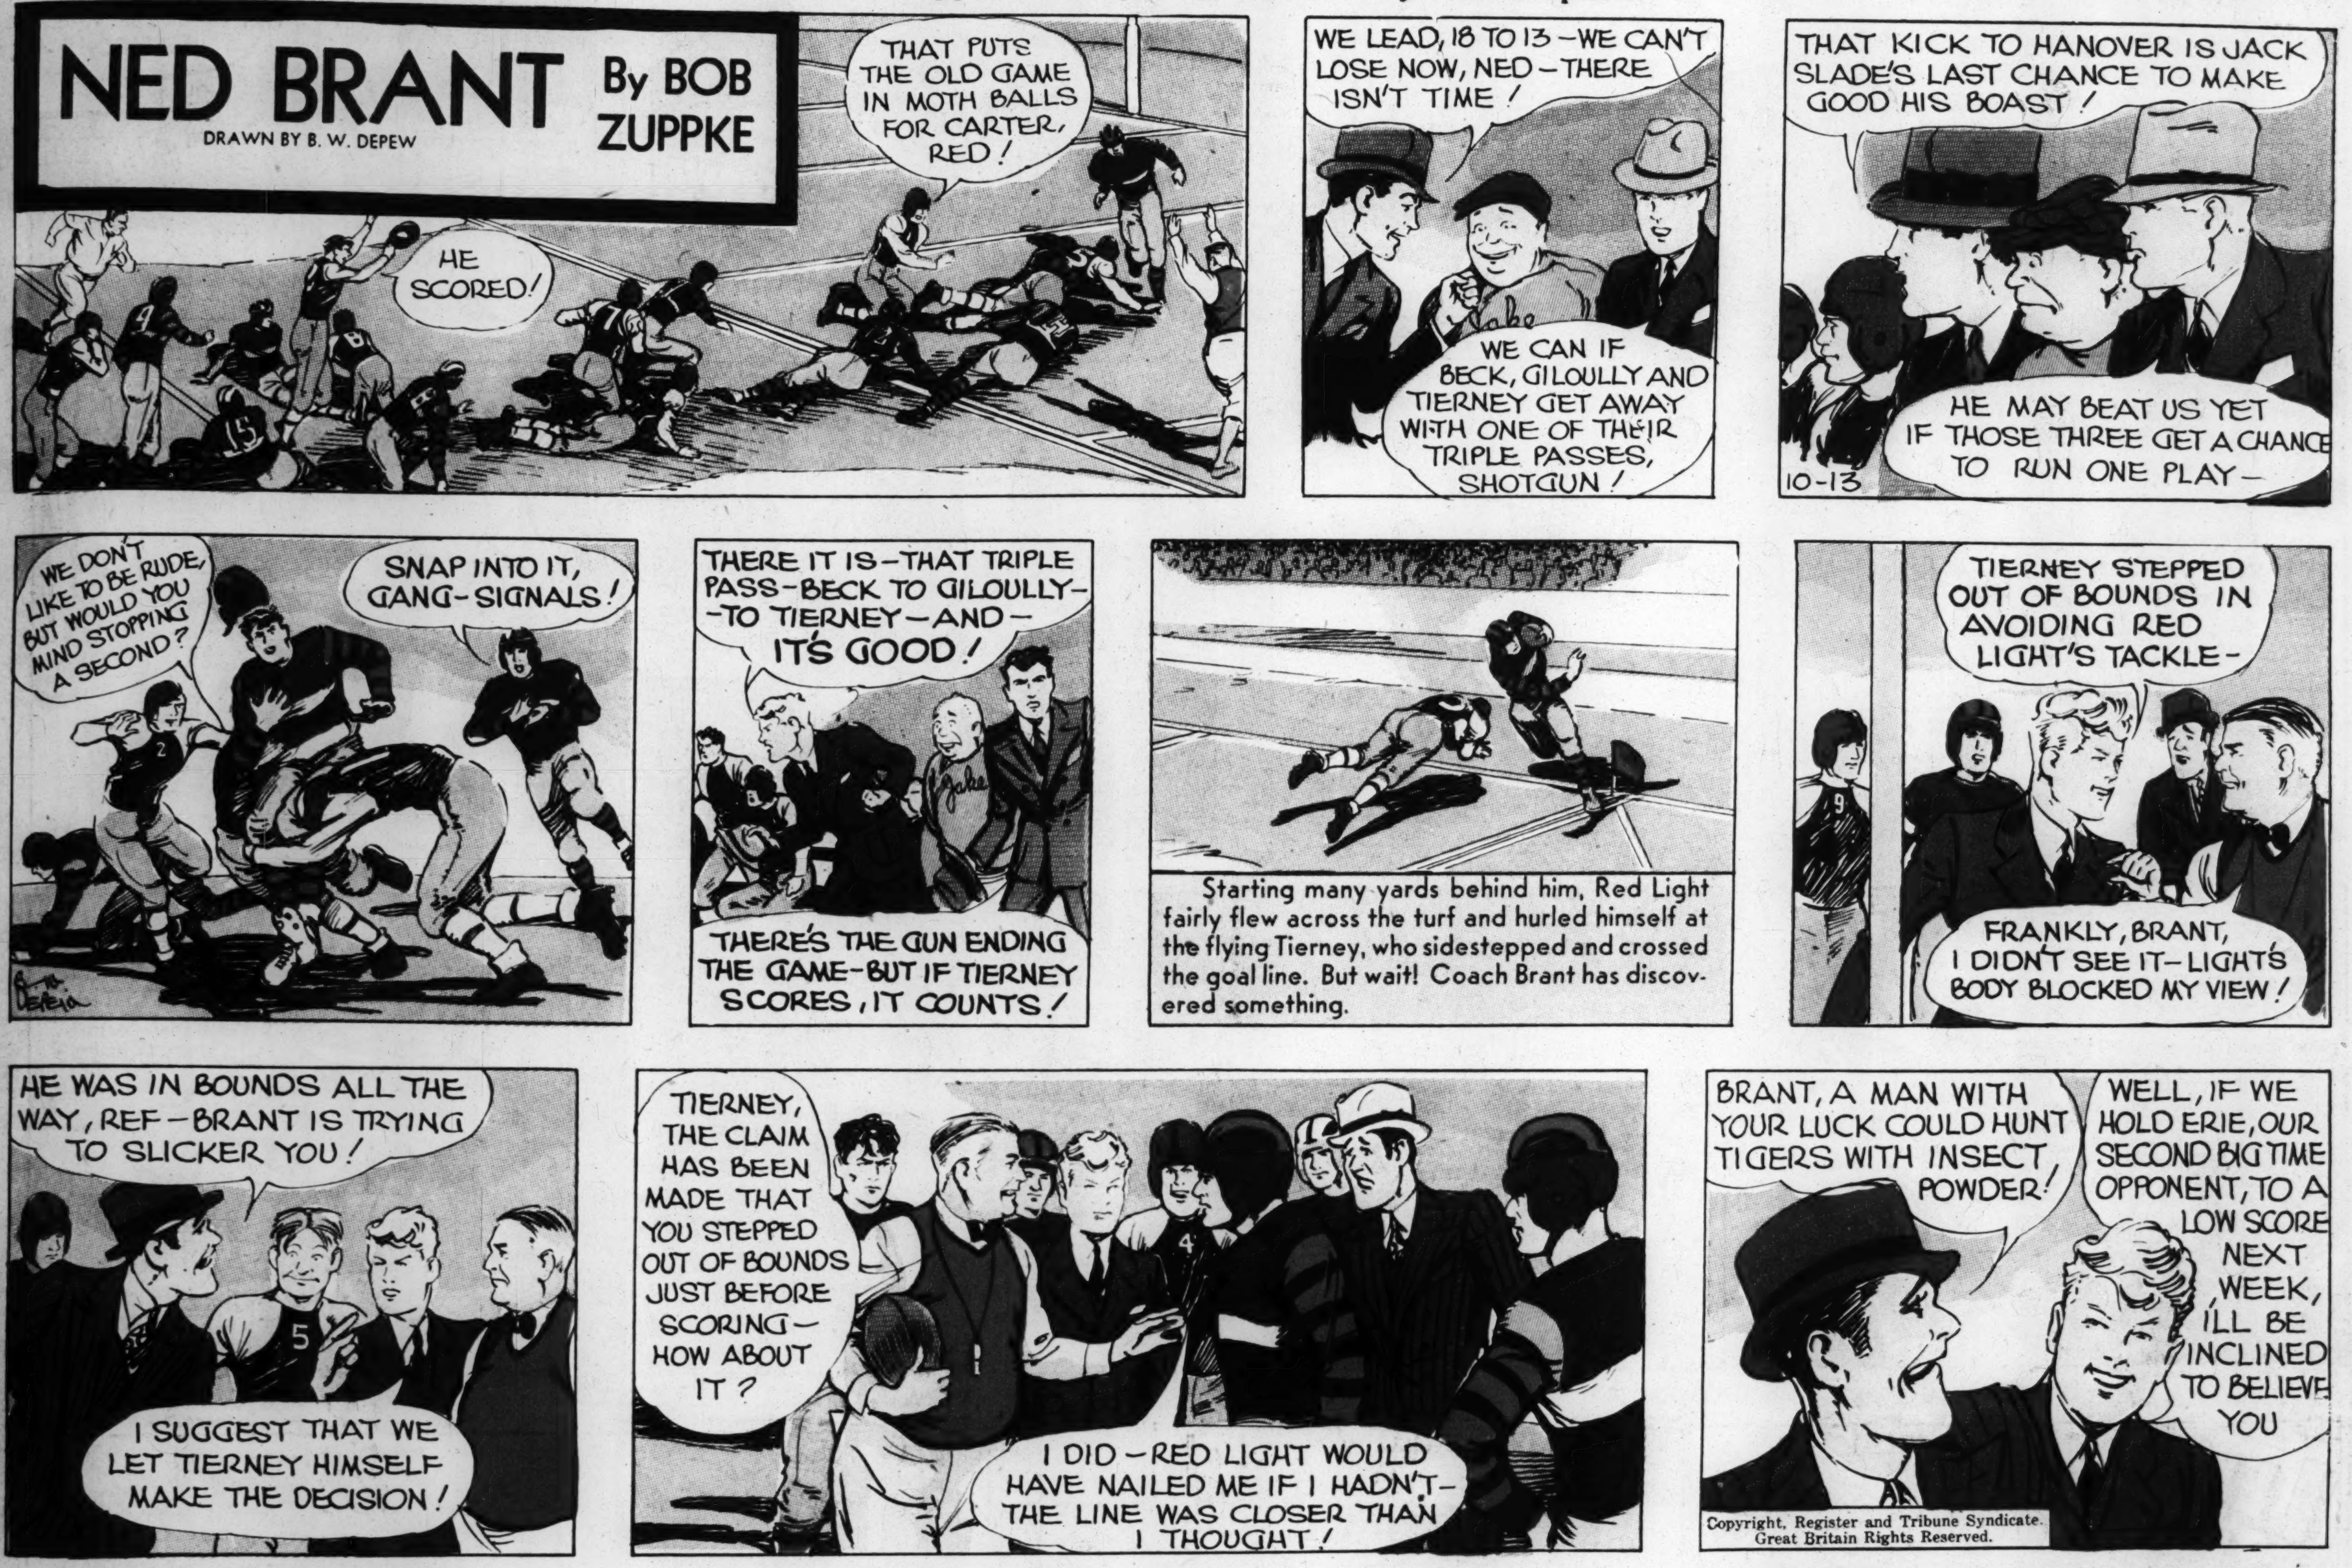
NED BRANT By BOB ZUPPKE

DRAWN BY B. W. DEPEW



THAT PUTS THE OLD GAME IN MOTH BALLS FOR CARTER, RED!
HE SCORED!
WE LEAD, 18 TO 13—WE CAN'T LOSE NOW, NED—THERE ISN'T TIME!
WE CAN IF BECK, GILOULLY AND TIERNEY GET AWAY WITH ONE OF THEIR TRIPLE PASSES, SHOTGUN!
Jake
THAT KICK TO HANOVER IS JACK SLADE'S LAST CHANCE TO MAKE GOOD HIS BOAST!
HE MAY BEAT US YET IF THOSE THREE GET A CHANCE TO RUN ONE PLAY—10-13
WE DON'T LIKE TO BE RUDE, BUT WOULD YOU MIND STOPPING A SECOND?
SNAP INTO IT, GANG—SIGNALS!
THERE IT IS—THAT TRIPLE PASS—BECK TO GILOULLY—TO TIERNEY—AND—IT'S GOOD!
THERE'S THE GUN ENDING THE GAME—BUT IF TIERNEY SCORES, IT COUNTS!
Starting many yards behind him, Red Light fairly flew across the turf and hurled himself at the flying Tierney, who sidestepped and crossed the goal line. But wait! Coach Brant has discovered something.
TIERNEY STEPPED OUT OF BOUNDS IN AVOIDING RED LIGHT'S TACKLE—
FRANKLY, BRANT, I DIDN'T SEE IT—LIGHT'S BODY BLOCKED MY VIEW!
HE WAS IN BOUNDS ALL THE WAY, REF—BRANT IS TRYING TO SLICKER YOU!
I SUGGEST THAT WE LET TIERNEY HIMSELF MAKE THE DECISION!
TIERNEY, THE CLAIM HAS BEEN MADE THAT YOU STEPPED OUT OF BOUNDS JUST BEFORE SCORING—HOW ABOUT IT?
I DID—RED LIGHT WOULD HAVE NAILED ME IF I HADN'T—THE LINE WAS CLOSER THAN I THOUGHT!
BRANT, A MAN WITH YOUR LUCK COULD HUNT TIGERS WITH INSECT POWDER!
WELL, IF WE HOLD ERIE, OUR SECOND BIG TIME OPPONENT, TO A LOW SCORE NEXT WEEK, I'LL BE INCLINED TO BELIEVE YOU

About
Pat O'Dea's
Sixty-two Yard
Drop Kick
On a Muddy Field

WAS IT A PUNT?
I TELL YOU IT WAS A DROPKICK!
W
10-13

An astonished crowd sits tense at the Wisconsin-Northwestern game at Evanston one rainy afternoon in 1898.

One of the greatest kickers of all time steps back to his own 38-yard line and signals for the ball.

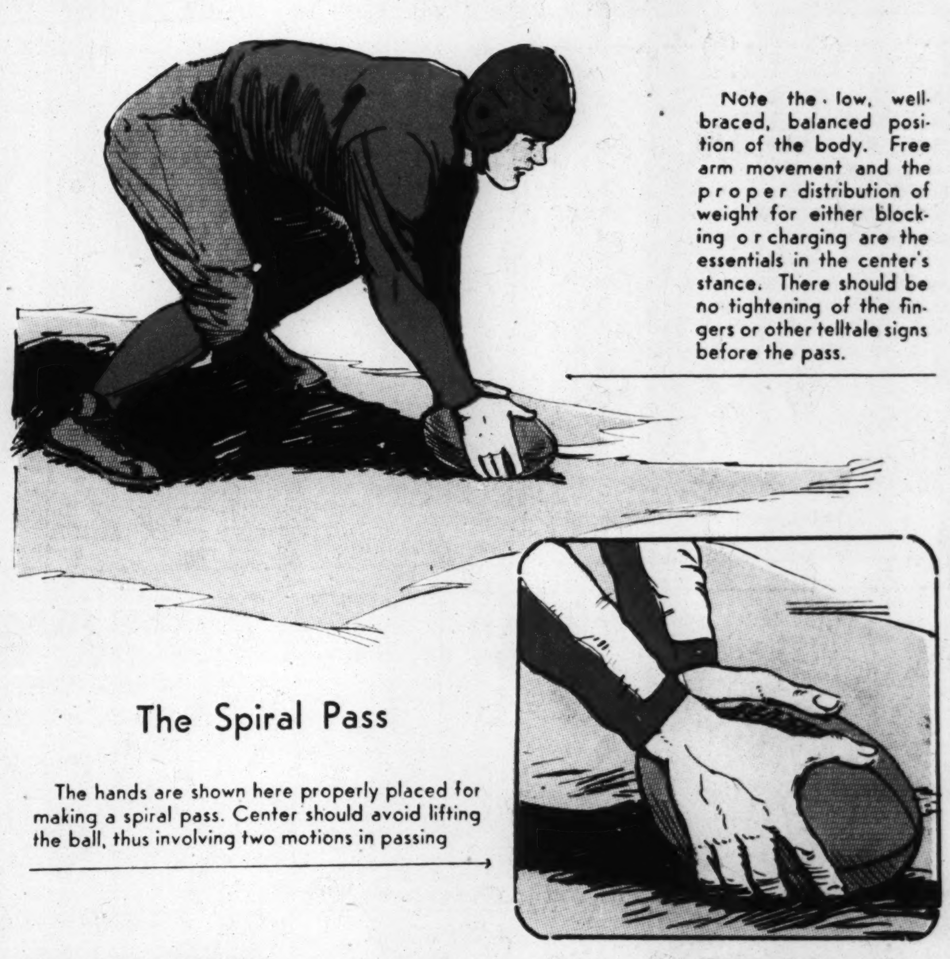
See that watersoaked, mud-smeared football! Sailing over the goal—a 62-yard drop kick!

Wisconsin's immortal kicker—Pat O'Dea, ladies and gentlemen. He was long accounted dead, but turned up very much alive last year when he was guest of honor at Wisconsin's homecoming game with Illinois. He lives in California.

Football ...... By NED BRANT

Stance of the Center



Note the low, well-braced, balanced position of the body. Free arm movement and the proper distribution of weight for either blocking or charging are the essentials in the center's stance. There should be no tightening of the fingers or other telltale signs before the pass.

The Spiral Pass

The hands are shown here properly placed for making a spiral pass. Center should avoid lifting the ball, thus involving two motions in passing

A. F. L. CONVENTION ORDERS NEW FIGHT FOR 30-HOUR WEEK

Delegates Unanimously Adopt Report Urging Use of All Its Resources to This End.

'NOTHING WILL STOP US,' GREEN DECLARES

'We Can't Resign Selves to Caring Permanently for 10 or 11 Million Persons on Relief.'

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 14.—The American Federation of Labor convention voted unanimously today to fight for a 30-hour work week in American business and industry.

"We're going out and fight for this as we have never fought before," President William Green said just before the convention approved the Shorter Work Week Committee's report that the federation should use both its economic strength and its influence in Congress in its campaign to reduce working hours.

"Nothing will stop us from securing the 30-hour week," Green shouted."

"We cannot resign ourselves to a fate of caring permanently for 10 to 11 million persons on relief rolls. It is a menace to our democratic institutions.

"Labor Wants Leisure."

"Labor, too, wants an opportunity to enjoy leisure, to develop the spiritual things in life. There is nothing that so destroys morale as continued unemployment."

The committee reported that the Executive Council should be directed to bend every effort toward obtaining enactment of the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill. The center of the unemployment problem, it said, was the recent increase in workers' productive capacity and, with NRA's collapse, a widespread lengthening of working hours.

The average work week last year, it pointed out, was 37½ hours; this year, 38 hours.

A resulution condemning Gov. McNutt of Indiana for calling out National Guardsmen in the strike of Terre Haute enamel plant workers was referred to the Federation officers, with instructions to seek settlement of the dispute. The convention "deplored" the use of militia in the strike and directed its officers to notify the Governor, the Mayor of Terre Haute and the American Legion of its attitude.

Building Trades Row Settled.

The two factions of the Building trades department exchanged views during the week-end through a mediator, George Harrison of the Railway Mail Clerks. Late today President Green announced a settlement of the dispute.

The Boilermakers' Union submitted a resolution complaining that the Oil Field Workers were absorbing their members, and a similar protest was made by the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers against the so-called Federal unions.

The Brewery Workers complained that the Teamsters' Union was interfering wtih their efforts to organize brewery truck drivers.

Labor Theater Approved.

President Green approved a labor theater project undertaken by union leaders in New York. A corporation was formed to produce plays with labor themes and to assist union amateur theatrical groups.

Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers; David Dubinsky, president of the Ladies' Garment Workers; Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers; Rose Schneiderman, president of the National Women's Trade Union League; Dr. Henry Linville of the Teachers' Guild, and Max Zaritsky, president of the Millinery Workers are listed among those behind the project.

Labor Stage, Inc., the announcement said, "will serve as a rallying center for advanced intellectual and cultural forces desirous of co-operating with the forces of labor along lines of dramatic and recreational expression in order to afford them a medium for active participation in behalf of labor."

Aid to striking workers of the Kohler Manufacturing Co., Kohler, Wis., was pledged by President Green.

He declared: "We will see what we can do for these brothers who are making this wonderful fight," after the convention had directed Federation officers to act in the dispute.

Green said if the officers decided a boycott was advisable the support of the building trades in refusing to use Kohler products would be sought.
